MacINTYRE — PETTIPAS

A very pretty wedding took place at Saint Mary's Cathedral, Halifax, Thursday morning February 3rd, at the nine o'clock mass when Reverend Father Neehan united in marriage Miss Mary Olive Pettipas daughter of Mrs. Samuel Pettipas and the late Mr. Pettipas of Halifax, and Charles Leonard MacIntyre, son of Mrs. Wallace MacIntyre and the late Mr. MacIntyre of Mount Stewart, P. E. I.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her brother by whom she was given in marriage. She was becomingly attired in a gown of white satin with floor length veil caught at the head by a coronet of white roses. Her only ornament was a gold locket gift of the groom. She carried an arm bouquet of Red Roses.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Nora Pettipas as bridesmaid who wore a floor length gown of pale blue satin with flower hat and white accessories. She carried an arm bouquet of pink and white carnations.

The groom was attended by Marshall DeLorey, Edwin Pettipas, brother of the bride, served the mass. The wedding music was beautifully rendered by the organist. Following the ceremony wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Joseph Sutton to immediate friends and relatives. The rooms were decorated for the occasion and the table was centered with a three tier wedding cake. The toast to the bride was proposed by Jerry Sutton and responded to by the groom.

In the evening a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sutton, Spryfield, about fifty guests being present. They received many lovely and useful gifts. Followed by the best wishes of a host of friends, Mr. and Mrs. MacIntyre left for a short wedding trip. On their return they will reside in Halifax.

THIEF STRIP ARTIST

LONG BRANCH, N.J. — (CP)—Police arrested a young gang leader for a series of robberies and received a lesson in the art of strip-tease. The suspect, wearing three complete suits of clothes revealed that he had been dreading capture by ducking into an alley, stripping off his outer suit and appearing in new raiment.

WAR ENGAGEMENTS PRODUCE JEALOUSY

ANSWER—The war engagements seem to be more provocative of jealousy than of giving either party a sense of peace and security. At any rate, my mail is flooded with letters from girls who are half-crazed with jealousy at the thought that their fiancés may be running around with girls they have met at the different camps and who see in every young woman in a uniform, or a U. S. G. hut, or who is a hostess at a soldier's dance a siren who is trying to snatch their boy friends from them.

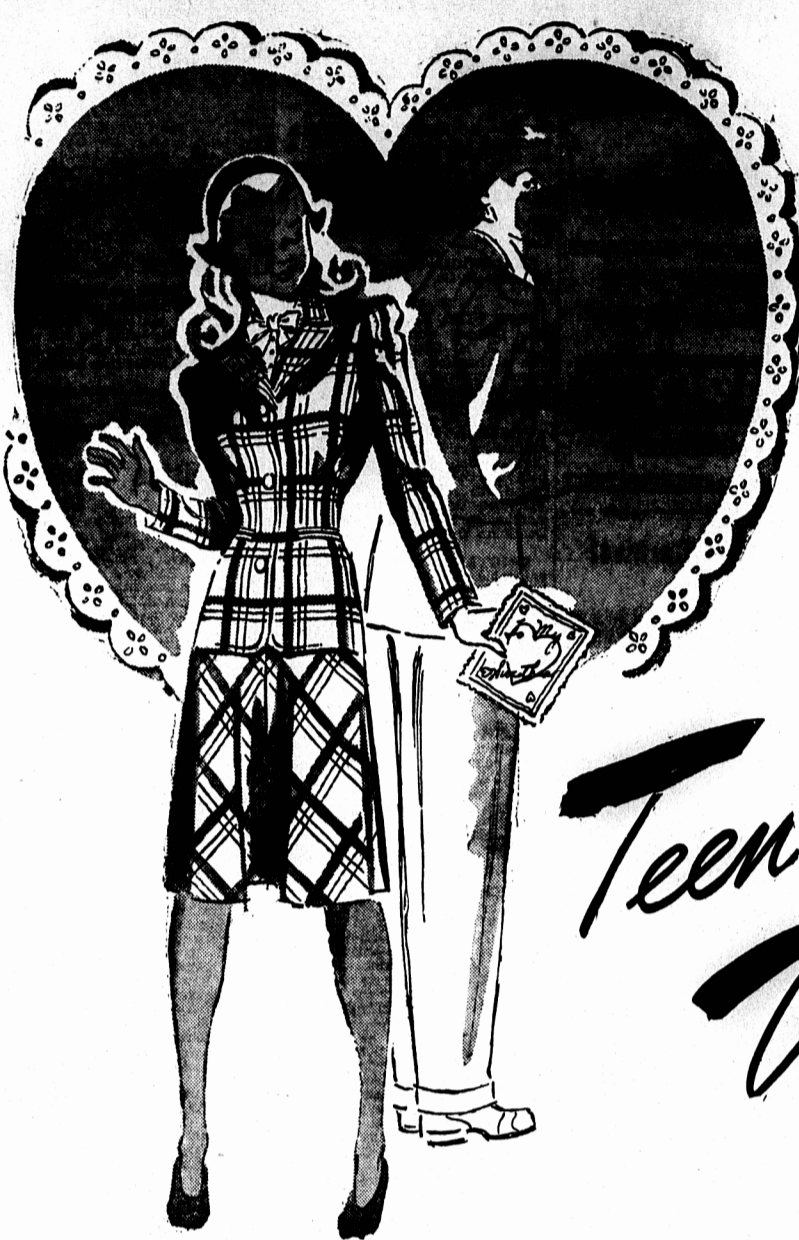

And I get equally as many letters from men in the service who are just as green-eyed and suspicious of what their girls at home are doing. And I suppose, human nature being what it is, that it can't be helped and that there is no cure for it. It is a waste of words to tell either party to view the situation with a little philosophy and common sense.

A girl who has been popular and used to stepping out to places of amusement gets mighty tired of sitting at home reading an improving book and knitting sweaters and writing letters to her soldier or sailor, and she would like to go to a party now and then with her old crowd, even if she is engaged. And that doesn't mean that she is in the least unfaithful to her sweetheart, or that she has fallen in love with some other chap.

And the same thing can be said about the boy in the camp. He is sick and tired of looking at uniforms and having nobody but other men to talk to, and he wants to look at a girl in a pretty frock and dance a little. But that doesn't mean that he isn't true to Polly, or that he is having an affair with another girl.

On the contrary, so far as my experience goes, the whole topic of these boys' conversation is the girl back home. They want to talk about her and to tell about how beautiful and wonderful she is. And there is nothing in their conduct to justify a qualm of jealousy in the Mary or Susie they left behind them.

It seems to me that the girl who cannot trust her sweetheart to look at another girl, and the boy who is so suspicious of the girl he is engaged to he has her watched, have very little faith in them. If I were either party and had a sweetheart whom I thought was of that unstable character and was that little to be trusted, I wouldn't want to marry him or her. I would want a husband or a wife in whose honor and affection I believed.

With the invasion of Europe looming as the greatest blow of the war, Canadian troops in Britain are training night and day for the epochal landing. This picture, just received from overseas, shows how the men might be launched on their grim attack against hostile shores. In these practise manoeuvres, the beach, loaded with heavily armed fighting men, make a quick trip out to sea then turn back toward a specially prepared strip of beach. The men leap from the assault boats under a thin smoke screen spread by the Royal Navy, which will have a major invasion role, and half-wade, half scramble ashore waist deep in water. Bren gun bullets whine overhead. (Canadian Army Overseas Photo)
