In all Judea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth.

His Lordship said this is a text of wide horizons and expanding horizons and pointed out the growth of the early Church from Jerusalem until the present time. Bishop Sovereign gave a very vivid word picture of the growth of the Christian Church in the far north of Canada, and said the Christian faith is never truly possessed until it is freely given to others and presented this as a challenge to all Christian people.

At the evening service Very Rev. R.C. Brown, D.D., Dean of St. Paul's Cathedral, London, Ontario, preached a very forceful sermon which he entitled "A Tale of Two Cities" -- Tarsus and New Jerusalem. In St. Paul's early life he boasted of Tarsus as being a city of materialistic excellence. Later when he was converted Paul said that here he have no lasting city, but we seek one that will endure made through the hearts and souls of men -- the City of New Jerusalem. This is not attained in an hour or a day, but through a continual pilgrimage. The Church can only advance through the individual and it is the duty of each and every one of us to bring the Church through its pilgrimage to greatness making the Kingdom of God a reality and a force in the world. The Church moves as its members move from Tarsus to the New Jerusalem.

while improvement had been made in the refrigeration of Maritime fish for the Central Canada markets, still better methods must be devised if sales of fish are to be expanded. We made a point of ordering and tasting fish in restaurants here in Ottawa, Mr. MacNaught observed. "With one or two exceptions flavor and quality of the fish was far below that served at home despite refrigeration. The industry if fully cognizant of the situation and the department is eager to cooperate in furnishing scientific information as to how quality standards may be improved."

In the shuffling around of rooms in the House of Commons prior to the opening of the 21st parliament, both Mr. MacNaught and James Lester Douglas, M.P. for Queens, will retain the offices they held during the last parliament. W. Chester S. McLure, Progressive Conservative member for Queens, has been moved around the corner from his old office on the fifth floor of the building. So far, Mr. Douglas has the office to himself, but may be forced to double up owing to pressure of demands for accommodation. Mr. Kitchin, M.P. for King's will not inherit the large single room at the front of the building formerly occupied by Dr. Grant, but will be bracketed with another member for the Maritimes.

cessions from the United States. However, there were signs that the United States government representative on the 48-country fund would oppose granting any loan to Britain, unless the other Western European countries devalue their currencies.

American government officials have said that the value of the pound has fallen in the United States and Canada would pick up considerably, thus enabling her to earn more dollars.

They acknowledge it also would increase the cost of raw materials and food Britain buys in the United States. But they believe the increased sales would outweigh the disadvantage.

Best-informed officials considered that the investment decisions announced Saturday probably make definite, but relatively small, contributions to Britain's current dollar-shortage emergency and to her long-range problem of permanently increasing her dollar intake.

Whether the three governments try this week to loosen up the lending policies of the international banks, whether the United States government will ease the loan qualifications of the export-import bank -- were questions which the statements did not answer in determining the volume of capital that eventually goes abroad.

What the three countries actually did was to decide on steps of three kinds as follows:

1. To make a continuing effort through "study and consultation" to remove obstruction to the flow of private capital (that is, dollar capital) and create "adequate opportunities and incentives" to encourage and assist "prospective borrowers to present well-conceived projects which would qualify for financing" by the world bank. Also to get together countries which use the pound sterling and which do not belong to the international bank and the International Monetary Fund to join up.
2. To use the United States export-import bank, where opportunity permits, "to assist sterling-area countries in financing the purchase of United States goods and services, through a short- or medium-term basis."

GRIM TRAGEDY

waves before one of the engines failed.

He instructed his passengers to hold on to a line he tossed into the water.

"I was not so panic," Palmer continued.

"Somebody suggested they sing and they started one song. But that one song was drowned out by a huge wave.

"I went back aboard to get another line. The passengers were slipping off the anchor line and I thought I'd better cut the boat adrift from it.

"When I jumped overboard again, I couldn't find the people. I kept yelling for an hour but they weren't around."

Then the Navy veteran told of climbing on to the roof of the cruiser's cabin after it broke loose. He said he drifted through the night with a blanket over his head to keep from swallowing too much water.

Young Allenby, the other survivor, saved his clergyman-father; his mother, his younger brother Leighton, his sister, Mrs. Nairn, the latter's husband, Robert, and Allenby's fiancée, Miss Foster, die in the tragedy.

Alfred Allenby, who was picked up Saturday by a Coast Guard motor surfboat, attributed his own survival to stamping acrobatics while working all summer as a life-guard.

Allenby said his father was the first to die after Palmer lost touch with the passengers. His father died about 7 p.m. Friday night.

The clergyman, born in Barbados, the West Indies, was accustomed to warm water. He kept his life preservers around them and cut them loose, hoping the others in the roped-together circle kept waking him up. Finally he fell unconscious and died.

Allenby said his younger brother, Leighton, 20, was the next to die.

MOVES INCREASES IN Clergymen's Salaries

By IRVING C. WHYNOT
 Canadian Press Staff Writer
 HALIFAX, Sept. 11 -- (CP) -- The Church of England in Canada Saturday approved in principle motions to pay its clergymen higher salaries but the Budget Committee still has to map ways and means of raising the extra money.

Three motions which would affect the salary of for married priests on missionary work. Another asked a minimum of $1,800 for married clergymen and the third advocated a cost-of-living bonus.

Under rules of the Synod, all matters calling for expenditure of money must be sent to the Budget committee. If the money can't be raised it can mean that the motion will be shelved.

Present minimum for married clergymen on missionary work is $1,400 and for single clergy $1,200. F. E. Anfield, layman from Prince Rupert, B.C., called for improvement of work in Indian mission schools. Salaries of the teachers should be improved, he said.

"Conditions in some of the schools are far from satisfactory," he said. "Staff conditions are outrageous. Principals have died from exhaustion. The Indian children are the ones suffering."

Mr. Anfield said he, as a former principal of one of the schools for 18 years, was greatly interested in this work and begged for improvement.

Canon H. G. Cook of Ottawa, superintendent of the Indian school administration, said he agreed with Mr. Anfield.

"It is still an unhappy state at these Indian schools," he said, "at times ashamed at some school conditions but not all are the same."

flew to Quebec from Vancouver. Site of the crash was approximately 250 feet from the peak of Cape Tourmente which rises at an angle of 70 degrees from the St. Lawrence River shore.

The plane had plummeted into the forest breaking few trees.

In the crushed forward part of the plane, 20 bodies were found between layers of seats.

Officials took notes and then signalled to a special demolition crew to begin opening up the rear part of the fuselage.

"Axes and crowbars were used. The crew from Quebec moved in and began the grim work of extricating the broken bodies.

The work stopped momentarily when Rev. Rosaire Veilleux, parish priest at St. Joachim, donated surplus and purple stole and recited prayers for the dead.
