A COMPACT PICNIC

With four covered pint glass containers, and a thermos jug of coffee, a complete picnic may be had with the exception of bread. For the sandwich spread in one container, season one cup of mayonnaise with one teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce, add one cup of chopped ham and three chopped, hard-boiled eggs; mix together lightly.
For the salad in the second container, mix together one cup of shredded cabbage, one cup of grated fresh carrots, one teaspoonful of celery seed, one-half a cup of boiled salad dressing and a dash of dry mustard.
For the chicken in the third container, although fresh beef liver may be used, simmered ten minutes in slightly salted water, freed of membrane and cut in small pieces. Measure one cup of the pieces of liver, and add to one pint of aspic jelly made with chicken broth or beef broth highly seasoned with pepper and salt; unless the broth will produce a firm jelly when cold, add one tablespoonful of granulated gelatine, softened in two tablespoonfuls of cold broth and melted over hot water.
The fourth container of bananas in strawberry jelly. Add one tablespoonful of gelatine to one pint of rich, cooked strawberry juice, stir until dissolved, allow to cool, and add sliced bananas before the jelly is set completely.

Black found the distance from her far northern constituency too great for a mid-summer trip. The question concerning the party left other outstanding questions still in the air. The one definite conclusion was that Mr. Bennett will remain leader for the time being and that organization work will proceed under his leadership. There was no word as to whether Mr. Bennett is to continue indefinitely or whether he still contemplates the possibility of retiring in the middle or distant future. Neither were any decisions reached on the policy the party will pursue in parliament at the next session or the platform it will lay before the people at the next election.

Test Sugar Beets For Varieties

During the three year period (1934 to 1936) a number of varieties and strains of sugar beets have been tested at 12 of the Dominion Experimental Farms throughout Canada, including the Central Experimental Farm at Ottawa. The tests as a whole have been under the general supervision of the Division of Forage Plants. In each of the three years data have been obtained with respect to the yield of beets and tonnage, percentage of sugar in the beets, percentage of nitrogen in the beets and finally, the yield of sugar per acre. The results for the different varieties have been consistent and also quite conclusive.
The tests indicated that sugar beets could be grown with reasonable success at all stations. This does not mean however, that the crop could be produced economically at all places, for the commercial production of sugar. There are a great many other factors to be considered in the beet sugar industry, in addition to the actual growing of the crop.
In view of the fact that Canada imports approximately 1,000,000 pounds of sugar beet seed annually, tests were conducted to determine the possibilities of sugar beet seed production in Canada. These tests were located on the same stations as the sugar beet variety tests. The results obtained during the three year period (1934 to 1936) were quite consistent and showed that good yields of seed are possible at Nappan, N. S., Ottawa, Ont., and Saanichton, B. C. An average production of 1,000, 1,800 and 2,200 pounds of seed respectively was obtained in the tests at these stations. Good yields were also obtained at Leithbridge, Alta., Jordan, Man., and Kapuskasing, Ont., although at the latter station the seed produced was low in germination indicating that the season was rather too short for the seed to mature properly at this place. Indications are that good yields of seed may also be obtained at Fredericton, N. B., and possibly L'Assomption, Que. Where low yields have occurred at these stations they have usually been due to the poor condition of the mother beets resulting from unsatisfactory conditions during the winter storage.

Retires After 40 Years With Boston & Maine

(Portsmouth Herald)
Robert A. Wilson of 439 Lellington street, yard foreman for this city, retired from the service on Thursday after completing 40 years with the railroad. Mr. Wilson will be greatly missed at the local yards, where practically the entire forty years' service has been passed.
Mr. Wilson was born in Charlestown, P. E. I., 25 years ago. Last May, at the age of 21, he came to this country and shortly after entered the employ of the Boston & Maine Railroad in this city. Mr. Wilson recalls that on the day he first began work with the railroad, May 10, 1897, one of his first duties was assignment to a crew engaged in raising the old Concord & Montreal Railroad roundhouse, then situated on Bridge street.
Mr. Wilson has always been popular with his associates and members of his working crew, being most agreeable to all. He has always taken a great interest in organizations and measures for the welfare of railroad men. He has always striven for maintenance of the highest standards of working conditions for the men. Mr. Wilson has been an active member of the Brotherhood and of the Railway Employees' National Pension Association, being vice president of the local pension club, Chapter 120 of the latter organization. He has served on several boards of arbitration and adjustment, committees, etc. Mr. Wilson is also a member of Osgood Lodge of Odd Fellows.
Becoming eligible for retirement, it is Mr. Wilson's belief that jobs should be opened up for younger men so he is retiring in keeping with this policy.
Mr. Wilson is also a native of the vicinity of Charlottetown, although both had come to this country during the fact that their parents were acquainted with each other. Both Mr. and Mrs. Wilson are enjoying excellent health. Both have resided in this city the past 45 years and they have made many firm friends.
Mr. Wilson has served the railroad faithfully through the routine work of 40 long years and through the emergencies of wrecks, blizzards, freshets and flood. He has won the esteem of all with whom he has worked. He has kept the welfare of his men uppermost. Retiring now to the quiet of the employment of some younger man, he leaves the railroad service with excellent health and with the strength and spirit to enjoy his well-earned leisure. — Mr. Wilson referred to above left home in 1893 and is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. David Wilson, Glasgow Road, P. E. I.

LONDON, Aug. 5—The "Nineteenth Hole Reunion" of the Lucifer Golfer's Society held here unearthing some tall stories.
For instance, the Junta, Uganda, course one rule is that if a ball drops into a hole, it is a hole-in-one. It was a hole-in-one and played again without penalty. Another "I can go one better" concerned a Nairobi course in South Africa. When a snake was found it was the custom to leave the reptile—usually a three-foot cobra—draped around the hole.
The Duke of Gloucester, sitting at a table labelled "bunkered," referred to a suggestion he should receive golf clubs with him on his next Empire visit. "I am all in favor of tours to consolidate the Empire, but if I take up golf it may be said I am a golfer. For instance, if I went to the Union of South Africa I am sure I would leave gaps on the beautiful fairways of every course I visited."
A Kenya spokesman told of a woman "who under our unlimited hydraulic system plays regularly with a handicap of 72. She has not yet won a prize—but 'nil desperandum' is her motto."

GLACE BAY, N. S., Aug. 8—A $36,000 seizure of contraband liquor of the alleged Sydney, N. S., Government building tonight after Constables Tumulty and Dolan, of the local detachment of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police swooped down on Catalone Beach, 30 miles from here, as the liquor was landed from a powerful speedboat.
A larger craft waiting off shore was believed to be carrying a large cargo of the banned spirits. On shore, a man who gave his name as Peter Tarrso, Reserve Mines, N. S., was arrested and a three-ton truck seized.
The mounties were said to have noticed several cars and trucks heading for the beach, and hid near the spot where landing started. When the transfer from the boat to the shore was well under way, they stepped into the midst of the alleged smugglers. All the men but the one who gave his name as Tarrso escaped.
The liquor was taken to the Sydney Federal Building after the seizure.
