Address And Presentation

A very pleasant evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Younker on Friday, June 29th, when nearly two hundred people of Kingston and Hampshire held a reception in honor of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Jewell.

The home was beautifully decorated for the occasion with roses and snowballs. While the wedding march was being played by Mrs. Everett Holmes, Mrs. May Willis escorted the bride to the seat of honor. Mr. George Kilson acted as chairman and called on Miss Rita Ridd to read an address to Mr. and Mrs. Jewell and Miss Katy Campbell and Mrs. Isobel Green on behalf of the Kingston people presented them with a complete set of china dishes, while the Misses Olga Tremere and Verna Kilson on behalf of the people of Hampshire presented them with a beautiful rocking chair and foot rest. Little Miss Joyce MacSwain presented the bride with a bouquet. Mr. and Mrs. Jewell very fittingly thanked the friends for their kindness after which all joined in singing "For they are Jolly Good Fellows."

A delicious lunch was served by the ladies present. Soon after this, the people dispersed to their homes wishing Mr. and Mrs. Jewell many years of happy wedded life.

The following is the address: Mr. and Mrs. James Jewell.

We your friends of Kingston and Hampshire have gathered in this spacious home to extend to you our best wishes for a happy and prosperous wedded life.

To you Lulu, we say we are overjoyed to have you remain in your old home district with us. Your friendly manner and sunny disposition has radiated the spirit of good cheer and good fellowship to such an extent that all dullness and gloom have been chased away, and an atmosphere of sunshine has prevailed as you have moved among us. We would feel that something sad had happened if in passing your home we did not see your friendly wave and hear your jovial voice say, "Hello there."

To you Jimmie whom we have known for years and have always held in our highest esteem, we extend to you a hearty welcome and as the years go by may our friendship still increase and our community be benefited by your presence.

We ask you to accept these gifts in the kindly spirit in which they are given.

Again we wish you health, joy and happiness in the journey through life.

Signed on behalf of your friends of Kingston and Hampshire

Pheasant Kills Big Bull Snake

VERNON, B. C. (CP): July 20.—A four-foot bull snake found that in the feathered realm at least the female is deadlier than the male, and died in the learning.

E. H. Harkness, traffic superintendent of the Canadian National Railways here, investigated a commotion on a hill near his home. A cock pheasant and his mate were clawing and pecking at something on the ground. The hen flicked her head back and a long black object went hurtling through the air. She jumped on it again as it landed, while the male bird moved away. She clawed and pecked, and when Harkness got close he found a dead snake. The hen pheasant at a most cautious distance kept an eye on the reptile for signs of life.

Pheasant feathers in the snake's mouth showed it died fighting.

Canada Makes The Best Tack

It has been said that he who makes a better mouse trap will find a pathway made to his door by reason of the demand. Now consider the lowly carpet tack, not much in itself but capable of making its presence painfully felt if the carpet ends are stepped on. Canada makes a good variety of tack, in fact Canadian upholsterers' tacks are preferred in Argentine for their better quality, but lower prices from the continent have interfered with imports from Canada, states the Industrial Department of the Canadian National Railways. Argentine gets most of her requirements in shoe-makers' tacks, nails and rivets from England. In the matter of horseshoe nails, Sweden has almost a monopoly of the Argentine trade. Canadian tacks and nails, particularly the used in shoemaking and by upholsterers, are well known in Argentine and are considered second to none as regards quality, and there appears to be a growing market for the Canadian product.

NEW YORK, July 19.—Martinez Sierra, Spanish playwright, author, editor and publisher on his way to Hollywood to supervise the production of films had a kind word for American journalism. The journalistic tendency in modern writing is "not hurting literature," he said. "Journalistic writing can be very fine, and much of it is, especially in America. It is better here than anywhere else."

Senor Sierra is best known for his "Cradle Song," first produced in 1911 and since translated into many languages and played all over the world.

Spinach is O.K. If You Like It

BALTIMORE, Md. (CP): July 19.—"In this matter of spinach Johnny gets a break," says the Baltimore Sun editorially.

"No less an authority than Miss Grace Abbott, who recently resigned as head of the Children's Bureau in Washington, says spinach is not so much. She adds that if Johnny throws a spasm every time he is forced to take a mouthful of it, the thing to do is to cut out spinach. When Johnny hears the news he can be counted on to produce the spasm."

"And there are grown-ups who, having long pondered whether the benefits alleged to be derived from the eating of spinach were worth the struggle to acquire a taste for it, will give Miss Abbott's views on the dietary value of the vegetable close reading. When she says that 'spinach is all right if you like it,' everybody has an out."

"With the backing of a dietary expert, who states the incontrovertible fact that many other foods than spinach contain iron and mineral salts, a man may become master of his own fate in respect to spinach. The edict will come as a new charter of liberty and the removal of a dietary obstacle to pursuit of happiness, glory be."

Minister Dies While Officiating At Funeral

NEW ROSS, N.S., July 20.—(C. P.)—A Baptist minister was stricken and died Wednesday while he was officiating at a funeral service for a member of his congregation.

The 71-year-old cleric, Rev. A.H. MacLeod, in a tense moment during the service, surprised the mourners when he suddenly requested: "Please sing 'Safe in the Arms of Jesus.' As the music swelled out, he collapsed.

But the service went on. Rev. P.G. Corban, rector of the Anglican Church, filled the gap. When he returned from the graveside of Mrs. Harold Rafuse, his brother clergyman was dead.

Rev. A.H. MacLeod had a lifetime of service to his church. For a time he was stationed at Fredricton, N.B., Saint John, and several Nova Scotian communities. He leaves four sons Dr. Clark MacLeod of Montreal, Randolph of Montreal, Everett, formerly in British Columbia, and Homer, in Chester, N.S. Miss Myra MacLeod of New Ross and Mrs. Lewis of Ottawa are daughters.

Canada Misses Popular Stars For Big Game

By Elmer Dulmage.

Canadian Press Staff Writer.

One of the strange aspects of Canada's British Empire Games team is the number of famous figures it leaves behind. It is a strong team in most departments because it required no little gusto behind the scenes that kept several noted athletes out of the group.

Two "sure bets" remain in Canada—Hilda Strike, the Montreal sprinter and Jackie Callura, Hamilton's mighty bantamweight boxer. They were both on the last Olympic team and the two years since 1932 were thought to have developed them into even better performers.

Miss Strike was the fourth of Canada's sprint queens. She came on the scene in the summer of 1932 to take up the speed which had been held by Rosa Gross, Bobby Rosenfeld and Myrtle Cook. And for two years she played second fiddle only to Poland's Stella Walsh.

Slender and pretty, the Montreal girl was the real queen of the Canadian track and most critics allowed she would rule the Empire sprint world before this summer was over. Hilda lost just enough drive in two years to make this out of the question.

Three youngsters who were juniors in 1932 came along at London, Ontario and finished one-two-three in the 100 yards final. Miss Strike hadn't even reached the final. She watched from the sidelines while Audrey Dearney, Peggy Matheson and Betty White romped in.

Callura's reign over Canadian amateur bantam ringmen was more significant, if less colorful. The boys really didn't give the black-haired fighter a fair chance. They kept their distance and Jackie won on many cards in the east for the simple reason no one would get into the same ring with him.

Until he was unexpectedly beaten in the trials at Montreal by Jimmy Gordon of Scotland, Callura had not lost a decision since the Olympic Games. He won the Canadian title at Winnipeg in 1933 and was voted the best boxer in the tournament.

Callura probably would have turned professional a year or so ago had the Empire Games trip not been in the offing. He wanted that excursion before settling down to the serious business of throwing straight lefts and uppercuts for a living.

The Empire Games will be without these two. Percy Williams, the former "fastest human" who was slated to manage the track and field squad, is staying at home. There wasn't enough money in the coffers to take him to England.

Toronto Thrilled By Woman's Drill

TORONTO (CP): July 19.—Another spectacular triumph in the Toronto Centennial celebration was the march of 800 women of fraternal societies at the Exhibition grounds. The highlight of the drill was the performance given by three Eastern Star corps.

In each corps a small group of women in purple and white uniforms with Jacks with two Canadian marine flags and one United States' flag. The loveliness of color and the unanimity of action in the drill exercises drew burst after burst of applause from the throng.

The first groups appearing on the stage comprised the Border Cities Drill Team wearing brilliant red capes lined with black, the Women of the Moose in purple dresses with all white accessories, and the Ancient Order of Foresters in red and green capes and caps.

To the tune of "O Canada" the Daughters of Scotland in blue and green caps and Pierrot collars, the Canadian Daughters in red capes lined with green and gold tams, and the Cente District of the Robeccas in white, paraded on the stage. The final groups to appear included the Shrine of Jerusalem and the Macdougall Ladies Drill Corps and the veiled Taj Mahal, Patrol, Ladies of the Orient.

Most unusual of the groups was the latter with their strange head-dress, their red shoes and boleros, purple pantaloons and gold sashes. The entire drill of the group was done with the arms folded and the movements were slow and mystical.

School Closing At East Royalty

On Thursday, June 28th a number of parents and interested friends of the pupils of East Royalty school gathered for their closing exercises.

The pupils in the primary room were examined by their teacher, Miss Isabel Brown, in various interesting subjects and showed by their ready replies that they had been carefully prepared over a period of time.

Leaving the primary room, the visitors heard the senior pupils in a short examination by their teacher, Miss Pearl Weeks.

A short program followed, consisting of a chorus by the senior room, a trio by Louise Andrew, Jennie Cudmore and Irene Smith, two recitations by Florence Roper, Allie Holmes, instrumental music by Sadie Shaw and a Red Cross demonstration by older pupils.

The most interesting part of the program was the presentation of prizes and diplomas. Those receiving certificates in Grade VIII were: Arthur Love, Lloyd Holmes and Walter Morrissey. Prize winners were as follows: first rank in grading exams: Grade X (special) Esther Harper, first rank, Sadie Shaw, Grade IX, Vera Roper, Grade VIII, Arthur Love, Grade VII, Zita Morrissey, Grade VI, Vera Smith, Grade V, Keith Clay, Grade IV, Florence Roper, Grade III, Mona Clay, Grade II, Irene Roper, Grade I, Sr. Louis Walsh, Grade I, Jr. Ada Robertson.

Prize for Department Jessie Wheeler, Prize for class work, Esther Harper, Shirley Davis, and prizes for perfect attendance Louise Andrew and Ruth Roper.

After short remarks by some of the visitors expressing their satisfaction with the years work, the exercises closed by singing the National Anthem.

Can't Determine Boy's Residence

HALIFAX, July 19.—(C. P.): What the civic Charities Committee would like to know is just where the prospective patient can hang up his hat and say he's home.

His father lived in Amherst, N.S., but moved to Halifax, where he was married and the young man was born. Then the parents moved to the United States and came back to Nova Scotia, establishing residence at New Glasgow. He died and his widow went to Toronto. The youth was brought up by an aunt in this city.

When he applied for admission to the Tuberculosis Hospital the committee was at a loss to determine whether the City was responsible for his upkeep but it decided to admit him anyway. Maybe the members can figure it out later.

Toronto Adopts Street Dancing

TORONTO (CP): July 19.—The city's Centennial festivities have given a great fillip to the streets as far as colorful ceremonies are concerned. While the "old folks" streamed out of the Exhibition grounds, tired and ready for sleep, thousands of young people who were in the grounds flocked over for street dancing.

Earlier in the evening there had been some old time dancing, but this didn't turn to be as popular as the modern music from modern musicians. Up on the steps of the building was perched an orchestra playing into loud speaker equipment which could be heard plainly all over the large area of pavement.

Street dancing, being the novelty, it, didn't take right away. A few of the more daring of the girls and boys and young men and young women began to dance immediately the orchestra began to play.

N. S. UTILITY BOARD PROBES GAS PRICES

(C. P. By Guardian's Special Wire)

HALIFAX, July 20.—Suggestions to make uniform the price of gasoline in Nova Scotia, that credit to dealers could be controlled, and that subsidiary companies should not have special privileges in loaning equipment to stimulate sales were placed before the Nova Scotia Public Utilities Board as wholesalers aired their views on the new Gasoline Licensing Act in Province House.

The Utility Board, now controlling the sale of gasoline through the Act passed at the last session of the Legislature, called on the public and trade to feel out opinion and Saturday was field day for wholesale company representatives.

H. S. French of the McColl-Frontenac Company was opposed to allowing oil companies' subsidiaries loaning or giving away equipment to the dealers to induce the sale of their gasoline. Since the gasoline companies themselves were prohibited from doing this, he felt the subsidiaries were being given "an unfair advantage."

A number of his firm's customers have been "disturbed" by offers from other companies of supplying battery equipment. L. M. Ritchie of the Irving Oil Company told the commissioners. Salesmen made representations to dealers, he said, and after obtaining the "desired result," the majority for their gasoline, they then said to the dealer that they had exceeded their authority, and that head office for the firm they were representing refused to confirm the offer.

The dealer was then left to his own resources after he had thrown away his old equipment.

"Your company does none of these things?" queried Commissioner J. S. Roper.

"We're not in the tire business, though we have been forced into it, if others are not barred from it."

"Through competition," Mr. Ritchie replied.

"Then you think that the licenses should keep out of any business except the selling of gasoline?" asked Chairman R. H. MacNeil.

"We prohibit the sale of tires any more than you would oil?"

Asked about the number of pumps that would be operated in the Province, Commissioner J. S. Roper remarked that the Commission was concerned with the service to the public and the cost and if there were too many stations, the public could not be asked to bear the burden. If the oil companies desired to do so, that was a matter for them.

Mr. Ritchie said that to withhold permits to pump-owners today would cause a serious disruption to business.

"Are there any more broken this year than there will be next?" queried Major Roper.

"They live in hope," replied the witness.

"So does the public hope," rejoined Chairman MacNeil, "and we hope they won't die in despair."

"Ninety per cent of the retailers we have heard here and seen and talked to in the street say they are losing money and yet they all want to stay in business. I wonder why?" Commissioner Ira MacNab interjected.

In closing down stations, regard should be had to the brand of gasoline handled, Mr. Ritchie declared.

If a standard were fixed, then a monopoly might be the cheapest way, Chairman MacNeil added.

"Then we must pray for control," Mr. Ritchie rejoined.

"If the grades were standard, would the service to the public be improved?" asked the chairman. He said this was pioneer legislation and it "may blaze a trail across the continent."

"It may get as far as New Brunswick anyway," added Major J. S. Roper.
