...The latest news, first of all.

...An Albion correspondent writes Miss Delta Moore, has returned home from Boston. Neil Collins has recovered from a severe illness.

ACTION WAS AN UNCHRISTIAN ONE.

WASHINGTON, May 23—Delegates from Great Britain to the sixth convention of the World's Sunday School association now in session here, declared in an address delivered by them yesterday at several church services, that the action of the local committee in barring negroes from the men's Bible class parade of Friday last, was an unchristian action. They said that such a thing would not have happened in England, where the negro can occupy positions on an equality with his white brother.

THE MORMAN CITY HAS EARTHQUAKE SHOCK

SALT LAKE CITY, May 23—Sunday morning's slumber of this city's residents, was disturbed by a violent rocking of the earth, the seismograph at the state university recording a disturbance of thirty seconds. The earthquake was sharp, and caused considerable damage to crockery and old houses. The tremor was local, being confined within a radius of 50 miles. Slight damage is reported from the surrounding towns.

MR. BORDEN IMPROVING.

OTTAWA, May 23—Mr. R. L. Borden, while seriously convalescing from his rather serious illness of the past fortnight, is still confined to his room. It is expected that he will be able to be out again by the end of the month.

GORMAN HEARING POSTPONED.

PETERBOROUGH, Ont., May 23—James Gorman, who shot and killed his mother while under the influence of liquor, and while in the act of being arrested by the local police, came up for preliminary hearing, and hearing was adjourned until next Thursday.

THE STORY OF CAMERON'S VICTORY.

ST. JOHN, May 22—A fair sized crowd attended Victoria Rink on Saturday night to see Cameron, of Amherst, winner of this year's Boston Marathon, defeat Sterling for the second time. The time for the race was much slower than that of the former. Five mile contest, being 26 minutes 43 seconds. Sterling was able to put up a much better race with Cameron than on his previous performance, but only once was he able to take the lead, and then only for a few seconds. Peterson, a new word started in the race, but was forced to give up at the end of the first mile, the pace evidently being too much for him. Cameron took the lead at the start and retained it until the end of the third mile when he was passed by Sterling who held the lead only for a moment, Cameron spurting. Both runners finished the race with a good spurt. Cameron leaves for his home today to start training for the Canadian ten mile championship in July.

THE SYMPATHETIC FEELING. What it Means and How it May be Correctly Expressed.

Sympathy is feeling with other people—not only duplicating their feelings, but understanding their innermost thoughts, appreciating their highest pleasure, weeping with them not only because they weep, but for the cause of their weeping. Sympathy reaches out to all the pleasures and pains of this mortal life.

Has it a natural history? May we trace it back to a beginning? Can we imagine some protozoa or mollusca to be in love like ourselves? Certainly, lowly creatures and some of the highest orders of animals would seem to show sympathy. There is the story of the three stags in a young plantation; how two leaped the wire fence, but a young one, frightened, refused to follow; how the two waited awhile for him, and then how one, a good royal, came back to the fence. The little one ran toward him; the royal trotted away, but the little one stayed at the jump. Back went the noble royal over the fence and actually kissed the little one. The watchers saw their noses rub together. But nothing could induce the little stag to jump, and at last the royal, with a toss of his head, as much as to say, "Well, you are a fool," went off to his company. When he was out of sight the little stag took courage, scrambled over the fence, and followed.

Was Weak and Nervous.

Mr. Paul Poul, Caesopedia, Que., writes:—"About five years ago I gave up all hope of getting better of heart, and then my heart would nearly choke, and then my heart could not stop beating. I could not lie on my left side, and became so nervous and weak I could not work. A friend told me to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and before the first box was taken I was almost well, and the second box cured me. I have advised many others to try them, and they have all been cured of the same trouble. I have offered to pay for a box for anybody they do not cure."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are a specific for all diseases of disorders arising from the heart or nerve system. They make the weak heart strong and the shaky nerves firm by imparting a strengthening and restorative influence to every organ, and tissue of the body and curing palpitation of the heart, dizziness, sleeplessness, anemia, twitching of the muscles, sensations of "pins and needles," general debility, lack of vitality, etc.

Price, 50 cents per box or 3 boxes for $1.25 at all dealers, or mailed direct, receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

The following from a letter to a friend, when the Princess May was in her ninth year, is characteristic: "The children are getting on nicely with their lessons, under the tuition of their daily governesses (each very good in her way), and May and Dolly—(Prince Adolphus)—are really making excellent progress. May is, I am thankful to say, outgrowing her delicacy, and has greatly improved in looks. She is quick and clever and very musical, and all three promise to be very apt pupils. They understand German, and are getting on well with it, but unluckily the nice Hanoverian governess who has been with them for the last two years fell ill, and has had to go to her home. sacrifice was unthinkable. Only two thousand years ago did it become a gospel.

Sympathy is of two orders—of imitation and of experience. You see a trapeze artist miss the crossbar with his hands as he swings through the air. Though you know it is all pretence, it makes little difference; all your nerves are suddenly bunched together, and so remain until the artist magically saves himself, and you have a sigh of relief. It is then that you truly sympathize, for you imagine what would have happened if he had not caught the crossbar with his feet. When the clear speaker begins to imitate the stammerer with whom he lives; he gives evidence of the instinctive origin of sympathy. Man can admire, and become like what he admires. Let his gods be cruel and he will be cruel; let them be holy and he will seek holiness.

But there can be no intelligent sympathy without experience. Real sympathy is the duplicating of pleasures and pains. A dancer, lamed, watching others dance, feels his muscles working in sympathy with the music. This is sympathy as true as pity for foundlings. And from this real sympathy you go on to the ideal sympathy, the conscious direction of desire toward things unrealized, which never are, and perhaps never can be.—London Express.

QUEEN MARY'S CHILDHOOD.

The published Life and Letters of the Duchess of Teck give the reader an intimate idea of the way in which the little daughter, the Princess May, now Queen Mary of England, was brought up. Her Royal Highness Princess Mary Adelaide, Duchess of Teck, was one of the most beloved of English princesses, and her letters and extracts from her diary show abundant reason for her popularity.

As a mother, Her Royal Highness devoted to her children all the time she could spare from her other duties. She watched over their progress in their studies, joined them frequently at their games and in their walks and drives, and had them with her for a considerable part of each day. She knew intimately the nurses and governesses who had charge of the Princess and her three brothers, but even though she possessed her confidence she did not think of delegating to them her responsibilities and duties.

The following from a letter to a friend, when the Princess May was in her ninth year, is characteristic: "The children are getting on nicely with their lessons, under the tuition of their daily governesses (each very good in her way), and May and Dolly—(Prince Adolphus)—are really making excellent progress. given by 'Mama' and a great pleasure to her and the little ones; they really are most attentive, and very ready with their answers to my questions. The Duchess was never happier than when she saw her children enjoying themselves, but her indulgence was tempered with wisdom. She was firm in her resolve that her daughter's childhood should be free from exciting gaieties. 'A child has quite enough to do,' the Duchess said to a friend, 'to learn obedience, and attend to her lessons, and to grow, without many parties and late hours, which take the freshness of childhood away, and the brightness and beauty from girlhood—and then children become intolerable. There are too many grown-up children in the present day.' The little princess and her brothers had plenty of play, however, and spent hours out of doors every fine day, in the garden at White Lodge of the Kensington Palace grounds.

In order that the children might realize the needs of others, the Duchess sometimes asked the vicar to take them with him to visit the poor in their own homes. As the Princess May grew older she was given a share in her mother's work for her poor people.

SENSATIONAL WORK OF N. Y. FIREMEN PREVENTED DEATHS

NEW YORK, May 23—Sensational rescues by firemen prevented more than one death by fire in a blazing tenement on East 70th Street today. As it was, Mrs. Mary Miller, died in a fireman's arms after she had been dragged to the roof, while her husband, Wm. Miller, clutching the seven-months old son of the couple, unconscious and suffering from burns was rescued just in time by another fireman.

Meanwhile numbers of tenants were being carried down ladders and dropped into life nets. Fully forty persons were taken in this way from the burning structure where members of sixteen families had been trapped.

OAK LEAF

sired by Oakley Baron, No. 42,948, 1st dam Barney B., 2nd dam, Kin-bald Maroon. This colt is three years old, weighing 1,000 pounds, with lots of bone and muscle and the cut of a speed horse, which he is even at the present time, going out at about a forty clip, without any training or straps or boots. He is an open-gaited pacer with lots of ambition and determination to make a good race horse.

This colt will make the season of 1910 as follows: leaving his owner's stable on Tuesday, May 10, through St. George's to Anas McDonald's at Launching for noon, then through South De Gross Marsh to L. McIntyre's at Newport for tea, thence to Duncan McLean's at Cardigan Bridge over night. May 11th, through the Seven Mile Road to his owner's stable at Bridgetown, where he will remain until May 17th, when he will go through the St. Peter's Road to Malcolm Finlayson's in Ruskin at 10 o'clock; thence to John Lader's, Bangor, at noon; thence to John Murphy's, Morell, for tea; thence by Morell Rear to H. McEwen's, Bristol Mills, over night. May 18th, he will go through the Marsh Road to Sam Rapson's at noon; thence to Edward Sharkie's for tea, thence home by the way of Forest Hill to his owner's stable, where he will remain until May 24th, when he will go over the Launching route. This route will be continued fortnightly for the season, health and weather permitting. Mares at owner's risk. JAMES McDONALD, 5-7dshrtuIm, Owner in Charge.
