

Healthy Hair
Gleamy, Thick, Wavy
—Full of Life

Modern style in hair dress, particularly constant curling and waving, is slowly burning the color, luster and very life from the hair, leaving it dry, faded, brittle, streaked with gray; often the hair roots shrink, then the hair falls out fast.

A 35-cent bottle of refreshing, fragrant "Dandarine" will do wonders for any girl's hair. This vitalizing beauty-tonic acts on the hair like fresh showers of rain and sunshine act on vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates, nourishes and strengthens them, helping the hair to grow thick, healthy and luxuriant.

Try this for one week! While combing and dressing your hair, moisten your hair brush with a little "Dandarine" and brush it through your hair—the effect is startling! Your hair immediately takes on new life and that healthy, youthful lustre, becomes incomparably soft, wavy and appears twice as thick and abundant.

DISTINCTION.

"I think your boy will become a very distinguished man if he lives long enough."

"Yes? What do you think he will be distinguished for?"

"Longevity — If he lives long enough."

To cool an oven while baking keep the door shut, put in the damper of the oven flue, and if the oven is still too hot remove one of the rings of the hot plate. This will reduce the temperature quickly without admitting cold air to the oven.

W. M. S. MEETING—The W. M. S. of Pleasant Valley and the W. M. S. of Breadalbane will meet together at the home of Mrs. Hugh Mackay on Thursday afternoon Nov 5th.

HALLOWEEN SUPPER—A very enjoyable Halloween Supper was held by the Community Club at Clyde River on Monday the twenty sixth at which the sum of fifty dollars was realized. The hall was appropriately decorated for the occasion, much interest was taken in the guessing contests and the fishing pond, Miss Ina Livingstone, Clyde River winning the barrel of apples and Miss Maimie MacPhail, New Haven being voted the most popular young lady and winning the prize. Mr. Harry MacKinnon, Clyde River was the holder of the lucky ticket and won the prize, a handsome white pekin duck donated to the club by Miss Amy Hood. The next meeting of the Club will be held in Cornwall Hall on Monday November the ninth all the members are asked to attend.

WEDDING BELLS—An event of unusual attraction took place at St. James Church, Freetown on Tuesday Oct. the 27th when Miss Ceilina Murphy only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Murphy, Emerald, was united in marriage to Mr. Gordon Murphy. Although the hour was early Father MacDonald was in readiness to perform the ceremony and to celebrate the Nuptial Mass. The bride looked charming in a tailored suit with fawn hair while Miss Mary White also becomingly dressed acted as bridesmaid. Mr. Carl Hughes was groomsmen. Immediately after the ceremony the wedding party motored to the home of the bride's parents where a sumptuous breakfast was partaken of. Miss Murphy will be much missed in the Post Office where she assisted her father and who by her courteous and lady-like manner won many friends. Mr. Murphy is a valued employee of the Emerald section. The young couple received many useful and beautiful presents including a Cabinet Silver and a beautiful Morris Chair from his fellow employees. Mr. and Mrs. Murphy left on a short honeymoon trip to Moncton amidst the good wishes for many years of happy wedded life. On their return they will reside in their beautiful new home in Emerald.

HUNTER RIVER—The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was dispensed in the Hunter River Presbyterian Church on the morning of Sunday October 25th. A large congregation was present most of whom sat down to the Lord's Table. A very helpful sermon was preached by the pastor Rev. R. H. Stavert. The elders of Hunter River were assisted in the service by some of the elders of Brookfield and of Highfield this was the first communion service held in this church since the time of crisis through which the Presbyterian Church in Canada has been called upon to pass; a deeply solemn atmosphere pervaded the whole congregation. This it was felt was largely due to the feeling of deep gratitude which was welling up in the hearts of the people, because of the fact that they realized that now after the strenuous contest of some months ago was over the freedom which had been purchased for them by the blood of their forefathers was still theirs. Four new members were received into full communion—two on profession of faith and two by certificate. The service throughout was a very impressive one and many spoke of its solemnity and power.

Fashion Fancies

By Marie Belmont.

While cloth frocks have lost some of their popularity, all the lighter materials, such as crepe, seem to be enjoying a special run for early Fall wear.

Geranium petal, the new color for Fall, is particularly warm and attractive for the crepe frock. The model above chooses this color, and effects a smart cape treatment.

The cape is made in one with the bodice, and the crepe is figured, showing a plain and a satin surface.

Supreme Court

Considering the evidence presented to this Court in all its aspects I am far from satisfied with the bona fides of Spurgeon Diamond's claim.

The most striking feature of the claimant's case is its utter lack of merit. Even on the assumption that he was the owner of the car at the time of the collision, as he testified, then it was operated by his brother as his servant in the regular course of his employment as such and the master was at least equally responsible with the servant for the damage done. By the judgment of the County Court the plaintiff was found entitled to recover the damages and costs for which the very car which did the damage is now under seizure. The claimant retained counsel to defend his brother in the action for damages and no appeal was taken from the judgment. That judgment together with the evidence of the claimant on this appeal establishes beyond question the liability of the claimant to have been held in damages as a co-defendant with his brother, and it is a fair inference that he was not so proceeded against because he was not then known to be the owner of the car and that he was not then known to be the owner because the car was registered in another name by claimant's act and admitted for a fraudulent purpose. The claimant's testimony as to the registration and non-registration of these cars shows not only one but a series of frauds by each of which the Crown was deprived of its revenue.

Adverting now to the ground upon which the judgment creditor appears to have chiefly relied both at the hearing on the interpleader proceedings in the Court below and on this appeal, viz: that even assuming the car in question to be actually owned by the claimant his holding out defendant as the owner and thus misleading the appellant into prosecuting his remedy against the defendant alone, estopped the claimant from now claiming to the contrary. There is no question as to what the applicable legal principle is—that if a man so conducts himself that a reasonable person would take his conduct to mean a certain representation of facts and that the latter with such belief does act upon it to his damage the first is estopped from denying that the facts were as represented. But to come within this principle it must be shown affirmatively or by natural inference to be drawn from the evidence produced that the false representation misled the other party into taking the course he did.

Estoppel is held to arise where a man is precluded from denying the truth of anything which he has represented to be a fact though it is not a fact. The representation may be by words or conduct. In this case the claimant procured the "Star" car to be registered in the Government registry of cars in the name of his brother and carried the "Dodge" car which had been substituted for it under the same registry. So that any person noting the registry number on the "Dodge" car and searching for the owner's name in the registry would naturally conclude that Ellsworth Diamond was the owner, especially as he appeared to be in continuous possession of the car.

It would be difficult to find any more effective method than was used in this case of "holding out to the world" that Ellsworth was the owner of the car. The character and method of such a "holding out" is thus stated by Lord Wensleydale in the case of Dickinson v. Valpy (10 B. & C. at p. 140) "The 'holding out' must be to the particular individual who says he relied on it or under such circumstances of publicity as to justify the inference that he knew of it and acted upon it."

It appears to me that the "holding out" in the present case comes directly within the latter part of the above definition. In the case of Mathias v. Yette (46 L. T. 497) a case on contract, Jessel, M. R., affirming his dicta in a former case before the Court of Appeal, said: "If a man has a material misstatement made to him which may from its nature induce him to enter into the contract, it is an inference that he was induced to enter into the contract by it."

In the present case the claimant, according to his own testimony made a material misrepresentation as to the ownership of the car in question. He made it in circumstances which justify this Court in drawing the inference that the plaintiff knew of it and acted upon it, and that he was induced by the misrepresentation to proceed as he did in this case against the defendant alone and thereby to lose his remedy against the claimant.

The same principle, perhaps more directly applied, is recognized in Smith v. Kay 7 H. L. Cas. 750, in which it was held that where a misrepresentation is false or fraudulent to the knowledge of the person making it, the onus of proof that the party seeking relief is to the ownership of the car lies on the person who made it. There is here a total absence of evidence to satisfy the onus cast upon the claimant. I find accordingly that the claimant is estopped from denying that the judgment debtor is the owner of the car in question.

The claimant fails to establish his claim on any ground. The appeal is therefore allowed, the order of the learned Judge of the County Court set aside and the

The three were bound for Concord where they planned to spend the Sunday. The car was driven by Mr. O'Keefe who had the reputation of being a very careful driver.
