Discovers New Fishing Grounds

MONTREAL, Que., July 30—"In charming and nearby Bermuda a new fishing ground has just been discovered for sportsmen," says Captain Paul E. Curtis, editor of "Game," New York, who has just returned from five months there for the purpose of investigating the deep-sea fishing conditions. Captain Curtis is now en route to Jasper National Park where he will later be outfitted for a big game expedition in the Canadian Rockies.

"Strange as it may seem, the commercial fishermen of Bermuda had no idea of the sporting possibilities there until a few curious anglers investigated for themselves last winter," stated Captain Curtis. "This is accounted for by the fact that the Bermudians catch fish within the barrier reefs for groupers, rock fish and other deep feeders. They had never trolled four or five miles off shore for the sporting surface varieties." Captain Curtis started fishing on the 15th of March last, when, upon that day, he came back to the wharf with four

Woman Explorer On Way to Wilds Of B. Columbia

MONTREAL, Que., July 30 — En route to a little-known section of Northern British Columbia, Mrs. Mary G. Henry, wife of Dr. Norman Henry of Philadelphia, passed through Montreal recently by the Canadian National Railways bound for Dawson Creek, the end of rail in the Peace River Block. From that point the party will travel by car to Fort St. John, the starting base of their long journey on horseback. In addition to Mrs. Henry and her daughter, the party will consist of a head guide who will make a map of the country, a cook, two horse wranglers and two packers, with thirty horses to carry the outfit. The expedition will ride along the Peace River, then north along the Halfway River, their route taking them over Laurier and Caribou Passes to Deese Lake and finally to Telegraph Creek and Wrangell on the Pacific Coast. For this adventurous trip Mrs. Henry has organized and equipped her own expedition, this being her fourth excursion into the vast northern wilderness and her eleventh trip to the Canadian Rockies. Mrs. Henry will make collections of dried plants for the Royal Botanic Garden, Edinburgh, Scotland, the Academy of Natural Sciences of Philadelphia and will also take home living specimens to augment her own collection of rare plants. She will also visit Mount Mary Henry, named in her honor by the government of British Columbia. She is a director of the American Horticultural Society, contributing editor to the National Horticultural Magazine and also an executive of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, in addition to holding other important positions along that line of interest.

TUBA ROOT IN DEMAND FOR INSECTICIDES

There is a big demand for tuba root from Singapore for use in manufacturing insecticides, due to its high retene content. Supplies, however, are limited, which has had the effect of raising the price considerably, according to the Agricultural Department of the Canadian National Railways. The root is produced entirely by Chinese squatters but owing to the demand, there is strong possibility of its production being undertaken by others on a more extensive scale.

Atlantic tuns in his boat. The professional fishermen who viewed the catch admitted that they had never seen tuna before. Since then, hundreds of school tuna have been taken on rod and reel.

Many sportsmen have rushed down from Canada and the States to take advantage of this new fishing territory. Captain and Mrs. Curtis landed 95 fish in 97 hours fishing over a period of two and a half months, the catch consisting of bonito, yellow tail, albacore, barracuda, tuna, wahoo and dolphin, to say nothing of a 6 ft. in. shark taken on a six-ounce rod. The wahoo of Bermuda waters undoubtedly average larger than those found anywhere else, the biggest one secured weighing 84 1/2 pounds, less than a pound below the world's record. These terrific fighters probably smash more tackle for their weight than any other sea fish.

"The Canadian National Steamships service, sailing from Halifax via Boston to the year round, and also from Montreal during river navigation to the British West Indies and southern mainland, affords a splendid opportunity for economical sport during the autumn and winter months in Bermuda waters, but it should not be forgotten that it is a splendid summer resort as well, with an average temperature of about 80 degrees," stated Captain Curtis. "In view of its accessibility and the low rates for hiring fishing boats, Bermuda is the least expensive game fishing resort upon the Atlantic seaboard."

Adopted Children Grow Into Family

LONDON, July 30—Princess Alice, Countess of Athlone, a cousin of the King, has gathered many a true story of real-life Cinderellas in her 16 years' presidency of the National Child Adoption Association. The Princess is busy with preparations for celebrating the adoption of the 5,000th child through the agency of the association. One of these adopted children was presented at the last Court. One little boy, only a few months old, had such curly hair and such an

Salt Has Many Household Uses

Salt, most common of all minerals used in everyday life, has literally hundreds of household uses in addition to providing flavoring for food. Many of its uses are commonly known but many others are known only to a few, and many are almost entirely unsuspected. Particularly valuable is salt, when used as a polish for silverware, brass or copper, or even unpainted woods. Using an aluminum kettle, boil the silverware in a solution containing one teaspoon of salt and one teaspoon of soda per quart. After a very few minutes, the silverware may be taken out and will be found cleaned and polished. Use of an aluminum kettle is essential, in a vessel of any other metal the process will fail. For brass or copper, salt moistened with the juice of an acid fruit, lemon or grapefruit, or with vinegar, is an efficient and quick polish. This mixture will also whiten and clean unpainted wood surfaces. Very little rubbing is required. Ink stains can be removed from carpets and other fabrics by covering the spot, when moist, with salt, and continuing to apply salt until it no longer discolors. Fish can be handled much more easily if the fingers are dipped in salt. Hot salt water poured over fish until the scales curl makes it possible to scrape the curls off rapidly and easily. They should then be washed in cold salt water. When frying fish, a little salt in the pan will prevent sticking to the pan. Bee stings and insect bites or hives may be readily soothed by applications of damp salt. Ants have a decided antipathy to salt. By covering floors or shelves with fine salt, their immediate departure is assured.

RARE SPECIMEN IS FOUND IN BERMUDA

(Canadian Press) HAMILTON, Bermuda, July 30—The second specimen of the pterodroma cahow bird to be found in 300 years has been reported by Dr. William Beebe, United States naturalist and explorer. Said to have been found in thousands by early settlers of the island, the species was supposed to have become extinct about 1630, the birds being peculiar to Bermuda. The cahow bird described by William Strachey in 1610 as "a silly bird" was slaughtered for food during periods of famine. It was so tame it would alight on the shoulders of the settlers, Strachey said. The latest specimen was found at the foot of St. David's lighthouse. It had dashed itself to death against the glass protecting the light. The lighthouse keeper sent the bird to Dr. Beebe, who is turn forwarded it to the American Museum of Natural History for identification. Authorities of the museum have informed him the measurements and characteristics of the bird conform with those of a specimen found in 1906 by Louis L. Mowbray, another Bermuda scientist. "I am leaving the bird for the present on deposit in the American Museum," Dr. Beebe said, "but if a Government Museum is ever established in Bermuda, I shall most certainly present this bird, as its proper place should be on exhibition in Bermuda."

R.C.M.P. OFFICER TO REVISE POLICE

(Canadian Press) ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., July 30—New uniforms will be supplied members of the Newfoundland Rangers, the body of police being organized by Sergeant-Major Fred Anderson of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. It has been decided by the Commission of Government. Loaned to the Newfoundland government to train the police force for one year, Sergeant-Major Anderson has designed a uniform consisting of a tunic, breeches with braid stripes on the legs, "jack" boots and a cap resembling those of the army. All will be khaki. The caribou has been selected as the service crest of the Rangers.

Bee Stings Mouth And Cyclist Faints

HAMILTON, Ber., July 30—Stung by a bee which flew into his mouth, W.N. Hutchings, of Hamilton, toppled from his bicycle and lay in a roadside ditch for an hour unconscious until taken to police station by a passing constable. Dr. J.P. Sweeney said that the bee's stinger plunged into a vein and the sudden injection of poison into the blood stream lessened heart action, causing unconsciousness. The physician said that similar instances had come to his attention in which the results were fatal. Two hours after receiving treatment, however, Hutchings was able to proceed on his bicycle.

NEW GLASGOW, July 30—A picture of King Edward VII, chiseled in the coal wall of the Marsh Mine more than 25 years ago by engine driver John Campbell of Westville, was found to be in a remarkably good state of preservation when the mine was being dewatered. The Greenwood Coal Company was having the colliery dewatered to work in new coal areas.

United States Taking More Canadian Fish

During the past thirty years Canada has purchased 67 1/2 per cent of her total imports from the United States, the United States taking in turn 37 per cent of Canada's total exports, according to the Industrial Department of the Canadian National Railways. In 1934 United States exports to Canada were valued at $302,433,000, while Canadian exports to the United States were valued at $277,263,000. Practically all classes of export Canadian fish to the United States showed a considerable increase in 1934. Freshwater fish from the Western Provinces increased from 36,000,000 pounds in 1933 to 45,000,000 pounds in 1934, or 25 per cent. Canadian fresh-water fish sell particularly well in United States markets during the winter months. In the matter of furs, ermine shows an increase in number and value while fox, except silver, rose from 41,231 pelts with a value of $651,570 in 1932 to 75,152 pelts valued at $1,175,005 during 1934. Furpulp and sulphate wood-pulp, along with newspaper, nickel and nickel alloys and chemicals, also show substantial increases.

To Represent Canada Olympic Shoot at Rome

MONTREAL, Que., July 30 — A cable from London, received by George A. Shea, Director of the Department of Investigation of the Canadian National Railways, reports that Constable R.G. Pickrell of the C.N.R. force in Winnipeg has been chosen to represent Canada and the British Empire in the Olympic shooting matches to be held in Rome in September. The cable states that Pickrell suffered a serious injury to his wrist but despite this handicap he lost the Bisley pistol championship by only one point. Last month Pickrell won a classic shooting event for Canada, the annual Scottish pistol match held at St. Andrews. He had a score of 97 out of a possible 100.
