The HOUSEWIFE and HER ACTIVITIES

HOME.
It matters not how high the roof, or low;
Whether exotic blooms perfume the space,
Or on the humble sill geraniums blow.
To savor joy—Love keeps a happy place.
For there is toil of eager hands and heart,
Quickened to serve by that immortal dart;
And faith that will not die; and happy song
When a rest is needed; quiet of content.
And understanding of a strength too spent;
For singing, skill to wisely tend and heal;
Soul-wounds; and arms too brave and true
To spruce freedom; and belief too stout!

Cave is life's hearth-fire and its candle-glow—
It matters not how high the roof, or low.
—JESSIE L. BEATTIE.

DESIGN FOR BEAUTY BASED ON ROUTINE

The following should be your daily beauty routine—
Clean face and throat while the water's running in the tub. Apply cream and leave it on while you bathe. Afterward, massage your throat with firm downward strokes, slip the flesh under the chin twenty times. Wash thumbs and forefingers pinch along the jawbone from centre of chin to ears eight times.
Using third fingers, work clockwise around your eyes. Smooth out the lines on your forehead. Quickly massage cheeks with light upward strokes. Remove cream and put on tonic or, if you are past 35, a mild astringent.
Give your hair a hundred vigorous strokes with a clean brush, and go to bed. All of this should not take more than half an hour. Of course, you may need to use hair tonic a pore cream, or some gowns are slit or intricately draped to look shorter in front than at the back. Judging solely by the past drapes and slits always indicate that, within a season or two, hemlines themselves will be shortened.

CHECK YOUR HAT
Hat styles are so delightfully numerous you can dress your head more or less to your type and providing you observe the rule for flowers, for back-swaying veils or ribbon "streamers," you can be in fashion.

Double-roll brim and pneumatic edges are important. Suzy, Agnes and Blanche et Simone are responsible for small bretons and smaller salons.

Coille hats in medium width promise to be immensely popular because of their very shallow crowns and their extravagant yet lovely floral trimming.

The off-the-face hat suffers a change from the halo, since it flings back in "girlish" carelessness, and its rolled edge softens the contour.

Stiffened lace is used particularly by Agnes, veiling appears everywhere, dipping on to the shoulders or over the cheeks—sometimes surrounding a small hat and flowing out beyond the shoulders.

Linen, Baku, Ballinatal, Natural Leghorn and Pedal straws are used by the leading millinery creators for the season.

Petersham and grosgrain in contrasting colors serve to bind or roll the edges. Shot ta-feta ribbon

Exchanging Old Husbands for New Ones Sel-dom Brings the Happiness That Many Women Seem to Think it Will—All Men Have Their Faults

A woman who is getting her third divorce says she is determined to be happily married if she has to marry a hundred times in order to get a husband who suits her.

Wise old Ben Johnson declared that a second marriage was the final triumph of hope over experience, and one wonders what he would have thought of this optimistic lady matrimonial vendid that have flopped. But in his day Cupid did not run a bargain counter where one swapped old loves for new and the motto on wedding cards was not: "If at first you don't succeed, try, try again."

In a way, however, this woman expresses the point of view of a large number of modern women about marriage. They regard it as an experiment and an experience, not as a binding contract, and even as they swear at the altar to cleave until death shall them part to the men to whom they are being united, in the back of their heads they are thinking that their husbands they will leave them for others who come nearer to their ideal of satisfaction, why there is always the divorce court around the corner and as long as he kept his wanderings quiet.

There is nothing for which the girls of today so pity the women of the past as they do over the permanence of their marriages. Poor old Grand-ma had to stand Grandpa, no matter how much he tired her or how tired she got of listening to his old stories; no matter how grumpy and disagreeable he was to live with; no matter even if he philandered a bit as long as he kept his wanderings quiet.

Of course, in the past when women married for keeps and took their remedy for better or worse and when divorce was such a scandal that there is no doubt that many women endured a life-long martyrdom in marriage. There were brutes who beat their wives and kicked them in the very food they ate. Vile-tempered men who cursed and insulted them. Bullies who got a sadistic pleasure out of torturing their wives and keeping them in trembling fear.

Always there have been men who would mistreat any creature in their power, and their wives were the predestined victims of these human fields in an age in which divorce was a disgrace, and where the woman who left her husband had nowhere to go and no way to support herself. And in so far as this is true, we may rejoice that now no wife need suffer wrongs at the hands of her husband.

But, considering marriage in general and husbands as they mostly are, I wonder if the tried-on-approval-plan marriage of today is any improvement with their third or fourth or fifth husbands than they would have been with their first?

Doubtless a few are, but for the most part the woman who trades off one husband for another finds that all she has acquired is a different set of faults and foibles. Tom drinks, while John gambles. Joe won't work and makes her support him, while Mac was too absorbed in business to argue his coffee.

And so on and on through the whole litany of things that get on wives' nerves. More than one woman who has sampled all the fifty-seven different varieties of husbands has told me that the least was no better than the first, and that if she had used as much tact and forbearance in getting along with No. 1 as she does in getting along with No. 5 that she would have been just as well off and saved herself all the mess and heart-ache of divorce.

Marriage is like business, those who make a success of it make their choice and stick to it and make the best of their bargain.

FLORAL WALLPAPERS, RETURNING TO FASHION
Old-fashioned wall papers in all-over floral designs, are smart for summer rooms. Motifs are larger than formerly, and back-ground colors are softly muted. You'll like little red cherries on a pale gray ground for your kitchen or rather large clusters of strawberries on a pale blue. For country kitchens, there's a white wallpaper with bunches of fresh vegetables spaced far apart.

NONSENSE BOX
Maybe you want to give an invalid something that all the other visitors won't have thought of. Maybe you want to give an original good-bye present to the friend off on a cruise.

Maybe it's just somebody's birthday. The answer to all three is a "Nonsense Box."

You find a box, any size or shape you like, but it must look decorative. If you can't buy one, cover a plain cardboard box with gaily colored paper.

You then proceed to fill it with an assortment of amusing and useful odds and ends. Here are a few suggestions to give you the right idea. You don't have to put in all of them, for that is the beauty of a "Nonsense Box"—it may be as expensive or as inexpensive as you like.

For the Invalid.—A pack of cards, a small box of her favorite candy, some face tissues, a jar of talcum, bottle of toilet eau de

Cologne, a jar of home-made jam or marmalade, a jar of calf's foot jelly, and her horoscope, so that she may speculate on her future! (Horoscopes may usually be bought at stationery or book shop, if you know the date of birth.)

For the Traveler.—Leather label case, a jar of barley sugar (it's good for sea-sickness), folding coat-hangers and shoe-trees, men's gadgets, a book of stamps, some paper-covered novels, a rose pink sponge with bath and toilet soap to match, some hand cream.

It is also an attractive idea to enclose a little hand-written list of the contents of the box, and you can make it even more amusing if you write out the purpose of each article.

OVER-COOKING WILL SPOIL CABBAGE
All vegetables are spoiled by over-cooking, the cabbage particularly so, and most likely to cause indigestion, says a writer in New Health Magazine. Instead, then, of boiling your cabbages in much water for a couple of hours, let us try the time-saving method of boiling them rapidly for fifteen minutes or so in no more water than would be cooked away during this time. Thorough cutting up before cooking is helpful. A sprinkle of fresh ground black pepper and a few pats of butter added just before serving complete the matter. Fresh cabbage cooked in this way is a delicious accompaniment for most savoury dishes, or it may be served simply with grated cheese for a light yet satisfying luncheon item; or serve with lightly fried spring onions and fried

THE COOK'S CORNER

RHUBARB-PINEAPPLE-NUT CONSERVE
2 cups canned Hawaiian pineapple juice
2 quarts diced pink rhubarb unpeeled (about 3 pounds)
6 1-4 cups sugar
1 cup sliced Brazil nuts
Juice and grated rind of 1 large orange.
Combine pineapple juice diced rhubarb, juice and grate rind of orange and sugar, mix thoroughly. Bring fruit to a boil in a porcelain preserving kettle. Boil rapidly until thick, about 25 minutes. Be careful that mixture does not stick to bottom of kettle. Add nuts and seal in clean hot glasses. Makes ten 9-ounce glasses.

RHUBARB-PINEAPPLE PUNCH
3 cups diced rhubarb
3 cups water
1 cup sugar
1 cup canned Hawaiian pineapple juice
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1-2 cups ginger ale
Crushed ice
Simmer the rhubarb, water and sugar until rhubarb is tender. Strain and cool. Add the pineapple juice and lemon juice, and just before serving add the crushed ice and ginger ale. 8 servings.

MIXED VEGETABLE SALAD
2 cups cooked carrots, diced
2 cups cooked peas
1 cup chopped celery
1-2 cup chopped cucumber
1-2 head lettuce, shredded
Salt, paprika
Mayonnaise
Method: If you are not using the canned vegetables, then the vegetables will be cooked the evening previous or left from another meal. Shred the lettuce coarsely and mix with the ingredients. Season with salt and paprika and add enough mayonnaise or cooked dressing to moisten. Serve in a large bowl, lined with lettuce.

This makes a good sized salad, but since it forms practically the entire meal, you will want a generous serving, and then, too, salads are so good for us at this time of year and we are apt not to eat enough of them.

eggs, or for a "Vegetable Dinner," along with tiny new potatoes, broadbeans young carrots and asparagus tips or mushrooms. No protein in this "dinner." Well, the vegetables contain a little and a tasty sauce enriched with an egg yolk will make amends. A fruity sweet to follow, and there is a merry meal enough for these of simple tastes and some regard for good health.

A Morning Smile

The constable called at a villa and rang the bell. Inside the house the piano-playing ceased and a rather scared-looking young woman appeared at the door and asked: "Yes? What do you want?" "Well, miss," said the constable, "we've just had a telephone call to say that there's a fellow called Chopin being murdered in this 'ere 'ouse."

A dear old lady was visiting a prison. "You find the singing of the birds a great comfort to you, don't you?" she asked one of the convicts. "Birds, ma'am?" he said. "Why, yes," she said, "you know, the jail birds we hear about so often."
