

Nail Him Down to a signed replacement Contract

IF you are investing $150 to $500 in a new chesterfield suite, you should be sure of getting absolute protection against moths. What is the use of paying for beauty, comfort and quality, if there is no insurance against moths?

It Must Be MOTHPROOF

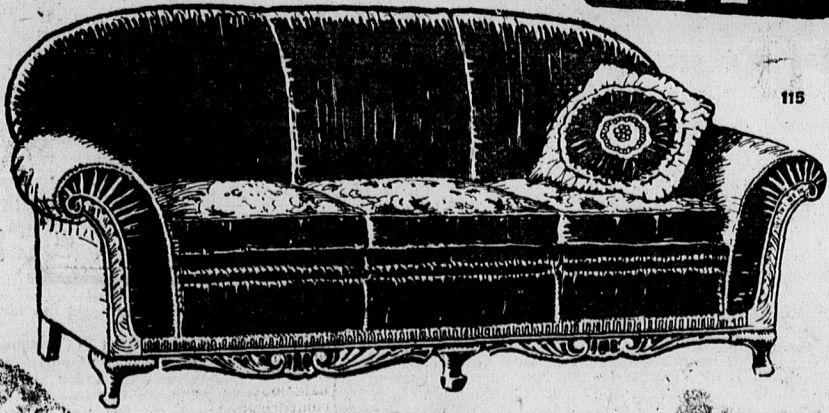

So, ask this question and "nail him down to it": "Is this suite guaranteed MOTHPROOF?"

If you are assured it has been "treated" for moths, drive the nail to the head. Ask this:

"Do you give a written guarantee of replacement?"

Only "Sani-Bilt" Upholstered Living-Room Furniture carries a guarantee of replacement in the event of moths ever doing any damage. Such a guarantee accompanies every piece of genuine "Sani-Bilt" Furniture. Read it.

As to the beauty of design and covering fabrics, Snyder's range Europe and America for the newest and best. Insist on seeing "Sani-Bilt".

Presbyterians In The Church Court

The third regular meeting of the Presbytery of Lanark and Renfrew, of the Presbyterian Church in Canada was held in St. Andrew's Church, Carleton Place on Tuesday, the twentieth instant and was conducted over a forenoon and an afternoon Sederunt.

Rev. E. C. McCullagh, of Pembroke, who was elected to the Moderatorship for another six months occupied the chair, and Dr. A. H. Scott, of Perth was in his place as Clerk of the Presbytery.

After devotional service, the roll call was responded to by ministers and representative elders from all parts of the two counties of Lanark and Renfrew. Five young men, who served during the summer months in various Mission fields within the bounds, were welcomed by the members of the Court by a standing vote. Two ladies, representing the Women's Missionary Society, had a cordial reception as well, and in addition, the Rev. Allan S. Reid, of Montreal, Synodical Missionary, and Mr. S. Dinick, who devoted some months to evangelistic work in the Presbytery were extended the courtesies of the Court and addressed Presbytery at the afternoon Sederunt.

The first matter to which Presbytery gave consideration was introduced by Dr. Scott who made a presentation upon the New Pension Fund of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, the objective of which is the securing for aged and retired ministers an annuity of $1,000 and to widows of departed ministers a yearly payment of $500. The Presbyterian Church in the United States North completed an endowment this year of 15 millions of dollars, 40,000 laymen and 4,000 clergymen leading in the accomplishment regarding which a leading journal said that no other enterprise of similar magnitude had ever been presented to a church in this western world with such hearty and whole-souled interest on the part of the General Assembly. The General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada presented a Pension plan in June of this year which will soon go into operation. Interest is being shown in it already, and Dr. Scott intimated to his brethren that he had in his possession a voluntary contribution of $500, which the donor desired should give distinction to the Presbytery of Lanark and Renfrew by having it placed first on the list of gifts to the New Pension Fund as soon as the book are opened for subscriptions to the New Endowment.

From four Presbyteries—Sarnia, Hamilton, Lindsay, Prince Albert and Saskatoon—came notices to the Presbytery of Lanark and Renfrew that through them applications were to be passed on to the General Assembly next June from four ministers belonging respectively to the Primitive Methodist Church, England, the Presbyterian Church U. S., South, and the United Church of Canada, for admission into the Presbyterian Church in Canada.

A matter that engaged the attention of the Court arose out of correspondence between the minister of St. Andrew's Church, Carleton Place, and the Rev. Dr. Drummond of Hamilton. As a result of this correspondence the Session of St. Andrew's sought for all investigation. The finding of Presbytery has expression through a report submitted by Dr. J. K. Fraser, the convener of a specially appointed committee by the Moderator to investigate the correspondence, to the effect that after reading a statement addressed to the clerk of Presbytery the Court is of the opinion that Dr. Drummond was evidently misinformed, and that the statements contained in his letter to Mr. Hardwick were unfounded.

An inspiring hour was devoted to the work carried on in the Mission fields of Lanark and Renfrew during the last half year. Dr. Buxton McLeod, Convener of the Presbytery's Standing Committee on Missions, detailed the progress. Mr. Neil Campbell read a financial statement. Mr. Allen Reid, of Montreal, spoke to the report. Mr. Dinick outlined the season's activities and the services of the Student Missionaries were duly acknowledged. The Presbytery is strengthening her stakes and lengthening her cords in this department of the work, and the area over which the Lanark and Renfrew activities are to be conducted is enlarging. The Synodical Missionary's presentations were pregnant with optimism.

Resolutions of condolence were passed, the parties being immediately concerned being the widow of the late John Stewart, of Carleton Place, and the Rev. J. J. Monds, formerly minister of St. Andrew's, Carleton Place, who recently lost his wife through a motor collision.

The Rev. Dr. Robert Johnston formerly of New Glasgow, Nova Scotia, the newly-inducted minister of Knox Church, Ottawa, was nominated for the Moderator's chair at the approaching meeting of the Synod of Montreal and Ottawa, which is to convene in Cornwall about the middle of October.

Presbytery is called again in special session on the 17th of October to meet with Dr. Andrew S. Grant, who is slated for a visit to all the Presbyteries from the Atlantic to the Pacific in the interests of the Budget and the financial and other departments of the work carried on through Presbyterian agency in the Dominion of Canada.

Arrangements were made to certify students to the various colleges for the winter session with particular mention of Gordon Taylor, who speaks their native tongue and who has given years to work among the Chinese in Canada as he goes from his home town, Carleton Place, to his Sessional Course in the Montreal Presbyterian College.

By TEMPLE CHAMBERS (British United States)

The resignation from the Cabinet of Viscount Cecil of Chelwood reminds one how unusual it is to find two sets of brothers in one Cabinet, as there have been in the present administration. Lord Salisbury (his elder brother) is Lord Privy Seal and Leader of the House of Lords.

There are, in fact, three Cecils in the Lords, the third being the Bishop of Exeter.—Lord William Cascoigne-Cecil and two in the Commons.—Lord Hugh and Sir Evelyn.

The other brothers in the Cabinet are Sir Austen Chamberlain and Mr. Neville Chamberlain.

In the days of the Coalition, Sir Eric and Sir Auckland Geddes were both members of the Government. The Commons provides several examples of brothers who are M.P.'s but the best known couple are Mr. G. Locker-Lampson, the Under-Foreign Secretary, and Commander Oliver Locker-Lampson, who very freely heckles his Ministerial brother at question time.

One person who will probably be relieved at Lord Cecil's resignation is his stenographer.

When he was at the Foreign Office, Lord Robert, (as he was then) had the reputation of being the fastest dictator ever known even in that brilliant department. In contrast to Lord Balfour, who was rather deliberate, Lord Robert could roll off a long and difficult despatch in a few minutes without a mistake and without a second's hesitation. As he did not like being interrupted or forced to repeat himself, he was very difficult to follow.

Lord Onslow, the Under-Secretary for War, who will take Lord Cecil's place at the Assembly of the League of Nations at Geneva, is a man of some diplomatic and political experience. Since he entered the Diplomatic Service in 1901 he has held various posts in the service at Madrid, Tangier, Leningrad, Berlin and has served on innumerable committees of one sort and another.

He is blessed with a cheerful disposition and never fails to see the brighter side of things.

Lord Onslow's sister, Lady Irwin, is the popular wife of the Viceroy of India.

Field-Marshal Lord Methuen has just reached his 82nd birthday.

The old Field-Marshal has seen a great deal of active service during his 63 years in the Army, ranging from the Ashanti War of 1874 to the Boer War of seven and twenty years ago, and has earned many decorations.

He counts among his many distinctions the only medal of Prussian origin which an Englishman may wear with pride.

Half a century ago, when he was Military Attache in Berlin, Colonel Methuen as he was then, rescued a man from drowning one winter night in the Tiergarten. He thought and hoped that his gallant action has passed unnoticed, but at the next State Ball, the German Emperor presented him, before the whole Court, with the medal of the Prussian Humane Society.

When King Feisal of Iraq, our next Royal visitor, arrives here, even Londoners, who are not surprised at any sort of costume worn by anybody from anywhere, will have something of a shock. Instead of a "sheik-like" Arab with flowing robes and a battery of gold-lilted daggers and what not, they will see a man who looks for all the world like an Englishman who has spent many years under a tropical sun.

King Feisal is full of enthusiasm for all things English. His palace is furnished more like a mansion in the West-End of London than an Eastern royal residence. His wife is shingled, and, like the King, speaks English. Their son is at Eton, the famous English public school,—which phrase means in England anything but "public."

On several occasions recently, men strolling home from dance or night club in the wee sma' hours, have joined the navvies in their all-night toil on the Piccadilly road repairing which, just at present, is one of the sights of London.

Hanging their hats and coats on posts they have seized a pick or spade and worked hard in their white shirt sleeves, to the amusement of the mud-smeared "regulars" about them.

An arduous competition in which two young men in evening dress figured, took place the other night among the excavations.

They challenged each other to a barrow pushing contest and for two hours they wheeled away and emptied barrow-loads of soil. They worked really hard, and the men whose task they were performing were delighted at the end of the contest to receive five dollars each for the pleasure of watching someone else doing their work.

A story is going the rounds of an amusing episode which took place at the recent Conference of Press experts at Geneva, in which the leading figures in the British delegation were the two newspaper magnates, Lord Burnham and Lord Riddell.

One evening a small and select dinner party was given at a certain hotel by two big news agencies, and the noble Lords were included among the invited guests.

The time for dinner arrived, but not Lord Riddell.

After a wait, the telephones were set going but all that could be ascertained was that Lord Riddell had left his hotel apparently bound for the dinner. Ultimately it was decided to begin dinner without him, and in fact he did not turn up.

What actually happened, according to the story, was that a distinguished journalist, representing a rival interest to his hosts, called for Lord Riddell at his hotel in a car which was driven rapidly away.

Do you feel like going back to bed?

AFTER YOU have dressed your children, fed them, and sent them off to school, do you feel like going back to bed? Do you shrink from your daily task of dish-washing and house-cleaning? Are you tired? Discouraged?

Many women have found that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is an excellent tonic for that tired feeling. It builds up the appetite. It induces natural sleep. Read what these two women say about it.

GAINED 18 POUNDS

Cleveland, Ohio: "After having my first baby I lost weight no matter what I did. I went down to 98 pounds. My neighbor told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it helped her very much, so I tried it. After taking four bottles I weigh 116 pounds. It has just done wonders for me and I can do my housework now without one bit of trouble." Mrs. M. Riessinger, 10004 Nelson Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio.

NERVOUS SPELLS GONE

St. Paul, Minn.: "I used to get nervous spells that would last a couple of days and were so bad that I was afraid in my own house in broad daylight. One day a little booklet was left on my porch and I read it through. I found a case similar to mine. I bought Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and have had fine results. Now housekeeping doesn't tire me." Mrs. Jack Lorberter, 704 Dellwood Place, St. Paul, Minnesota.

Before long Lord Riddell realized that he was going in a wrong direction, and then the car drove up at a villa near Geneva where he was effusively received by a large party of ladies and gentlemen who were not in the least those whom he expected to meet. Realizing that he had been successfully decoyed away, my lord was not long in deciding to put the best possible face on the adventure, but it is not every day that anyone succeeds in taking a rise out of Lord Riddell.
