—PLAY ENJOYED — On Thursday April 4th., a variety concert sponsored by the Young Adult Group of the United Church, Kensington, was presented to a large and appreciative audience in the King George Hall. The curtain went up on a very picturesque camp fire group singing old familiar songs beloved by young and old. Among the various attractive items on the program were readings by Mary Forbes, Mrs. Thomas Humphey and Mrs. Bruce MacLeod. A quartette by Roscoe Walker, Parmenus Phillips, Russel MacKay and James MacKenzie. A skit entitled "everybody works but Father", and instrumental music featuring Ferdy Kilbride at the violin and Mrs. Russel MacKay at the piano. Nick and his Prince County Pioneers from Summerside, trio with the exception of Johnny Ingles of Kensington, enlivening the program, gave their usual great performance featuring jigs, reels, and popular cowboy songs. Nick gave a great imitation of Donald Duck and a little girl singing over the radio. The main features of attraction for the evening were two one act plays presented by the Group entitled "Pickles is Pickles and A Fat Chance to Get Thin. These were hilarious comedys enacted by excellent casts. Mr. Harry Brown capably handled the position of Master of Ceremonies. A dainty lunch was served by the ladies of the Group at the conclusion of the play in the basement of the church. The Group anticipates presenting the concert again in Kensington at a later date.

C.N.R. Special Investigator Is Crack Marksman

MONCTON, April 22—Major R. G. Pickrell, E. D., whose promotion to the position of special agent, investigation department, Canadian National Railways at Saint John, N. B., is announced by George A. Shea, O.B.E., director of investigation for the railway in Montreal, Que., boasts records in the revolver and pistol shooting world never equalled by any other marksman. He has won every Canadian revolver and pistol championship since 1927 and every United States revolver and pistol title at some time or another. He has taken many Canadian trophies for revolver and pistol shooting out of existence, by virtue of consecutive victories but has given them all back for further competition.

Major Pickrell, who was a C.N.R. patrol sergeant at Winnipeg previous to his present appointment, was born at King's Lynn, Norfolkshire, England in 1898. As a young lad in 1914, he enlisted with the 12th Battalion of the London Rifle Brigade and saw active service in France. He was transferred to the Royal Air Force and served with it until 1919. He was wounded four times and mentioned in dispatches for "gallantry in the field."

His record in the Second World War was also outstanding. He joined the Winnipeg Grenadiers in 1939 and at the outbreak of the war was company commander and weapon training officer. He went on active service in 1942 with the reconstituted battalion, Winnipeg Grenadiers, C. A., and served with the unit on operational duties in northern British Columbia and Alaska. In 1943, Major Pickrell was appointed chief instructor and 2nd in command of the Canadian Small Arms School. In 1944, he was appointed a member of the Inspection Board of the United Kingdom and Canada, and in 1945, was awarded the Canadian efficiency decoration. He returned to reserve status in February of that year.

Describes Visit To Mount Stewart

(Island Traveller in Halifax Herald)

When I started out by car from Charlottetown, I was uncertain as to whether or not the roads were open to motor traffic. Our snow storms of a week or so ago had blocked many of the highways, but with the exception of a snow bank here and there which did not hamper travelling any, the road for the most part was good. However, along the ditches and in many of the driveways leading to farm houses there were three or four feet of snow in places. As a result of this several farmers had been forced to park their cars out on the highway.

Mt. Stewart is a railroad junction on the line between Charlottetown and Souris, and passengers for such eastern points as Montague, Georgetown and Cardigan, change trains at this centre. Large quantities of farm produce are shipped from here each year and it is a section of the country where blueberries and strawberries grow in abundance.

Two or three familiar landmarks in this vicinity have disappeared since my last visit. Last January, St. Andrew's Roman Catholic Church in the nearby village of St. Andrews, was destroyed by fire and levelled. The loss of this historic church was a serious blow to the members of the congregation but they are now using the parish hall as a place of worship. Father Campbell is the parish priest. In February, another serious fire occurred when Clark's potato warehouse, which was located in the heart of Mt. Stewart itself, was burnt. A considerable quantity of potatoes was lost in this fire.

As I entered Mt. Stewart today, the first person I saw was Lieut. (Nursing Sister) Margaret McLeod, who recently returned home after a year's service overseas. She is the daughter of William L. McLeod, the merchant. The next resident I perceived was Urban McDonald, who appeared to be carrying water as he had a pail in each hand and was heading for the house when a shout from me interrupted his labors. His son Vickie, who served in the Navy for several years, came on the scene then and we had quite a lengthy conversation. Just across the railroad track from where we were parked, is the general store of the Mt. Stewart Consumers Association. Jimmy Doyle is manager of the organization, and other members of the staff are Fred McDonald, Walter McDonald, Margaret Douglas and Margaret Rose.

Harry McKay still presides over the affairs of the railway here in his capacity as agent and Noreen Barrett has been his assistant for a number of years. I found Evelyn McIntyre in her familiar place behind the post office wicket and a few doors down was the barber, Roy Jay.

During my visit I learned that the two brothers, Reggie and Colin Macdonald, are now operating a theatre in the village, showing pictures three nights a week. The two MacAskill boys, Lewis and Preston, have established a shoe repair shop. Another brother, Jim, was one of the first from Mt. Stewart to go overseas and he just returned home last June. His English bride arrived a short time ago.

The largest store in the community is operated by Russel Clark who I last saw occupying his seat in the Provincial Legislature as the member from the Third District of Queen's. His son Sterling Clark manages the store with the help of John MacAskill, Bill Lacey, Helen McDonald, Leona Handrahen and Genevieve Handrahan. Over at the local school house are three teachers in the persons of Henry Clark, principal, Mary Rossiter and Mrs. Helen Comiskey. I saw several young men who were formerly members of the armed forces, including Henry Romard, Ralph Dunn and Basil Jay who are in the garage business, and Harry Timmins who is helping his father in the meat shop. Another ex-navy man is Leith Affleck whose brother Bruce is proprietor of a local store. Up at the corner of the road is another garage managed by Dan Mullen with the assistance of Harold MacDonald. In the store of Adrien Feehan's I saw Adrian himself and Dan MacDougall, and further down the street Harold Affleck apparently is as busy as ever supplying meat to his customers.

One well known figure I never miss seeing, is Earl Jay who drives a truck and is quite often a visitor to Charlottetown. After an absence of several years, Dr. G. D. Redden has again established a dental office in Mt. Stewart. At the local branch of the Royal Bank of Canada, I renewed the acquaintance of the manager, Lyle Morrison, while the teller, Helena Rossiter, was looking after a few customers. I found McLeod Douglas in his customary place of business with Mrs. Douglas taking an active part in the store duties. I understand that June Jay is acting as librarian at the Mt. Stewart branch of the P. E. I. Libraries.

My longest call of the day was made at the home of Lyle Morrison where I found Mrs. Morrison (a former Parrsboro, Nova Scotia girl) in conversation with Mrs. Elias McKay, whose husband is a railroad man. Mrs. McKay's home is in Halifax. Mrs. Morrison insisted that I have a piece of cake and a cup of tea, which I did, and then I bid farewell to Mt. Stewart and took off again for Charlottetown.

AVARELL - DOUGLAS WEDDING

A pretty wedding was solemnized at Parkdale Presbyterian Church Toronto, Ont. on March 9th at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, when Lovelyn Muriel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Douglas, Charlottetown, became the bride of Roy Arthur, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Avarell Dauns-View, Ont., with Rev. H.M. Keer officiating

The bride wore a two piece suit of powder blue with accessories to match and a corsage of white carnations.

She was attended by Miss Dorothy Avarell, sisters of the groom while the groom was supported by his brother Kenneth.

After the ceremony the happy couple left for the home of the groom's parents where a sumptuous supper awaited them and where o host of friends extended hearty congratulations and best wishes.

The bride and groom were the recipients of many beautiful and useful gifts, including a number of cheques.

Mr. and Mrs. Avarell left on a honeymoon trip to Niagara Falls and other points of interest and on their return will reside in Toronto.

Top Secret Reveals State Secrets

LONDON, April 21 — (Reuters) A Daily Express correspondent who covered the invasion of Europe today answered criticisms of Allied strategy made in "Top Secrets," newly-published analysis of the European campaign written by Ralph Ingersoll, editor of PM, New York morning newspaper.

Mr. Ingersoll, who served as a liaison officer between American and British military leaders, claimed in "top secret" the late President Roosevelt and Winston Churchill, wartime prime minister of Britain, fell out during closing stages of the European campaign over questions of high strategy.

The New York publisher also sharply criticized Gen. Eisenhower, Allied commander-in-chief during the campaign, and Field Marshal Montgomery, British commander.

The Express correspondent, Alan Moorehead, now is in Australia. He covered the invasion from Normandy to Germany and witnessed the Caen and Ardennes battles.

Headlined "Monty and Bradley: The Facts", the front-page article began: "Ralph Ingersoll either does not know or does not prefer to know the facts about the battle of the Ardennes, about Montgomery and Eisenhower and Gen. Omar Bradley, United States armored group commander in Europe.

Moorehead described Mr. Ingersoll's assertion that Field Marshal Montgomery had "failed" at Caen as a "dreary and empty piece of nonsense."

"Shortly before the Normandy invasion, Eisenhower and all his senior generals and planners met at St. Paul's school in London," Moorehead related. "Montgomery, as Allied commander in the field, outlined the plan. The essence of the plan was that the British armies should hold on the left at Caen, attarcting to themselves the heaviest German forces, while the Americans should break through on the lightly held flank on the right. Only a very few people knew this plan while the battle was on, and consequently a whispering campaign against Montgomery began.

"It was true that he had not seize Caen II in the first rush (as was intended) but the Germans had taken the bait hook line and sinker. They denuded the right flank in front of the Americans and, just as Montgomery had hoped, they were flinging every spare tank and gun upon the British.

"Many call Montgomery's Normandy campaign a classic and a master stroke."

(Canadian troops were in the thick of the fighting at Caen, after being in the forefront of the Empire, drive on the beaches June 6, 1944. Gallantry by the personnel of the First Canadian Army were largely responsible in forcing the Germans to throw heavy reinforcements into the area to the left of the Allied line.)

Argentina Plans Immigration Program

NEW YORK, April — (AP) — Genaro Cooke, Argentine consul-general, today said his country was bent on an "extra-ordinary" immigration project, destined to make of Argentina a country of "possibly 40,000,000 inhabitants."

Cooke, brother of the Argentine foreign minister returned recently from Buenos Aires and said he found people in his country "in an unexpected fever of production... willing and ready to carry agricultural outputs to new peaks."

Cooke said Argentina's projected immigration policy would make of his country "one of the strongest in the western hemisphere," adding that immigrants from Italy, Spain, Eire and the Low Countries "are principally sought."

The policy will be a broad one, he said, with personal health being the only requisite of entrance. He declared immigrants coming to Argentina should "leave their political problems in Europe and dedicate themselves to the task of aiding in the construction of a new nation."

He reported the Argentine Central Bank was willing to extend credits to 100,000 immigrant farmers each year, adding that Argentina's yearly immigration quota will "surpass that of the United States in past years of peak immigration."
