After Ten Years

BY MARION RUBINCAM

A VISIT

Chapter 104

Millicent Buchanan stood at the window of her living room looking out on a world that was drenched with rain. It was Spring and as cold and raw and forbidding as only a Spring day can be. As she stood there it occurred to her suddenly that almost exactly two years ago she had stood at that very same window on an almost identical day debating whether she should go to a party at Cora's and whether, if she went, she would dare take out a perfectly new silk skirt into such a downpour. She smiled now at the idea of having nothing more serious than that to think about. What a lot had happened since!

There was the noise of a closing door behind her, and she turned abruptly as her mother came into the room.

"It's awful weather," Mrs. Parke croaked, her voice coming hoarsely from her throat. "It seems as if Spring would never come."

Millicent turned again to the contemplation of the drenched world outdoors.

"You always say that, Mother," she answered. "I don't believe weather ever was made that suited you."

Mrs. Parke stretching a woollen shawl closely round her shoulders croaked some indistinct words.

COCOANUT OIL MAKES A SPLENDID SHAMPOO

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with. Do not use prepared shampoos or anything else that contains too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle and is very harmful. Just plain Mulsified Coconut Oil Shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is just what you need. It is so easy to use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair. Simply put two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified in a cup of water with a little warm water. Then moisten your hair with water and rub it in. It will make an abundance of rich creamy lather, and cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright fluffly and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified Coconut Oil Shampoo at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months. Be sure you get Mulsified. Beware of imitations. Look for the name "Ward's" on the package.

Her 15 Years Search For Health Euded

Even this insignificant remark showed what a change had come over Millicent. A great deal had happened to her in two years. Fundamentally she was the same, shallow, indifferent character, but in a thousand little ways she was a new person.

Discontented lines were sometimes visible around her face, but they were not always present. She looked five years younger than she had looked on that other day when she stood and gazed out the window. The phone rang and she ran out to answer it. She came back to report.

"Cora wants to know when I'll take Paul and Patty to see their new house. I wish ours was built with it. I hear Mrs. Werner is going to build out there too."

She went back to the window again, but kept up a cheerful stream of comment.

"That makes the sixth house to be built out there. There's been a lot of change in the town since Paul was here before. Do you know that Mother? A lot has happened in two years."

Mrs. Parke grunted. "Nothing has happened," she said. "We are all here just as we ever were."

She spoke with the point of view of an old, old lady, to whom change means nothing. She had planned all her life to live with one of her married daughters, instead of alone in her old house. She did not care which one it was. And here she was living comfortably with Millicent and Humphrey, with her own room, her own friends, her own income again. For Humphrey had paid back to her the money that he had lost. She no longer regretted the sale of her house. She no longer thought of the unhappy winter in the city. Everything was quite as she had planned it should be. Consequently it seemed to her that it had always been so.

Millicent, watching from the window, saw a man's figure running through the rain. It turned up the path to the door.

"Here's Humphrey," she said and ran out of the room to open the door for him.

He was stamping wet feet on the porch and shaking himself as though to get rid of the weight of rain that had fallen on him.

"You're soaked through and through," Millicent scolded, busting about him, with a certain affectionate officiousness, taking away his hat and gloves and shaking him with his coat. "Why did you come home on a day like this? You could have hired a car at the station."

"Think a little shower like this would hurt a hardened lumberjack like me?" Humphrey asked, with a damp arm around her shoulders.

"Besides, we don't want to bring our new house in a hard rain, do we?" He was into a dry coat and out of the house before Millicent could protest. Half an hour later he drove up and Millicent ran in the rain to greet Paul and Patty, who were on for a visit at the end of their honeymoon.
