Troops and Rebels Alleged To Have Clashed
 (A.P. By Guardian's Special Wire) NOGALES, ARIZ. Nov. 5—Reports of fighting between Mexican troops and rebels reached the border today. The reports were wholly unconfirmed, brought vivid details of the supposed clash, said to have occurred last night near the Sonora town of Tobari. Two Mexican military airplanes were reported damaged when they discovered a rebel camp and attacked it with bombs. The insurgents were said to have returned the fire with modern machine guns. The rebel band was said to number about 650. Of these, 250 were reported carrying United States-made guns of the latest type. Several Ciudad Obregon merchants said they had received United States currency for goods purchased by the insurgents. Opposition to state officers, and their attitude toward the church situation, labor laws and farm problems was proclaimed in a manifesto circulated in Ciudad Obregon. Word that rebels were "adequately backed and financed" and that they "meant business" was brought to the border by Dr. W. S. Sutton and Lee Paul, Americans, on their return from a hunting trip in Sonora and Chihuahua.

Probe Opened Into Stavisky Scandal
 PARIS, Nov. 5.—The first defendant cross-examined in the Stavisky pawnshop scandal trial asserted today that the swindler's threat of suicide forced him to join illegal dealings lest "the body be found in my office."
 Raoul Desbrosses, former director of the Orleans City Pawnshop, said he signed "irregular" bonds to keep the late Serge Stavisky, standing with a revolver pressed to his (Stavisky's) forehead, from committing suicide.
 Stavisky later was to die by the gun and his beautiful widow, Mrs. Ariette Stavisky, wept today at the mention of his death. She is one of the 20 defendants.

are the following:
 "1. Where did the idea that business cannot be conducted honestly have its origin? Are we all just born crooked—big and small—or is it the system under which we live that would make us all crooked—big and small—provided we lived efficiently up to it?"
 "2. Do the people realize that we live in an age of abundance? When did this abundance come about, and how?"
 "3. Can adults learn?"
 "4. What is the truth about machines? Are they a curse or a blessing?"
 "5. Have we grasped the idea that we are all consumers? We were led to believe that we are all statesmen, financiers, potential capitalists, etc."
 "6. What is the philosophy (and religion) behind laissez-faire?"
 "7. How are men going to make a living in the future?"
 "8. Do you know that when 'forgotten' men see a vision of a better future depending on their own efforts, they are never the same afterwards, like the man who once saw a ghost?"
 "One of our first principles is to crash into business, into the economic field, as quickly as we are ready, thus giving the people a chance to repossess the earth."
 "Co-operative buying and selling and credit unions. These the speaker discussed also at some length, pointing out in the case of the credit unions that they are fool-proof, that is none of the members are able to cheat."

FEAR TRAP

Rev. J. J. Tompkins, D. D., speaking on adult education, co-operation and credit unions at Prince of Wales College Auditorium last night said: "In our co-operative technique, education holds the first place. The educated co-operator has, above all, to learn how to work with and for other people, and at the same time, to do his own thinking, so far as he can. We in Canada—in Eastern Canada at least—would not do well of securing upon an co-operative project without months and perhaps years of study club work, directed by trained adult leaders. The more informal this work is made, the better. One of our chief difficulties is to devise ways and means of keeping our co-operative members sufficiently ahead of the movement, educationally."
 The speaker was introduced by Rev. J. A. Murphy, D. D., Rector of St. Dunstan's University.
 After the address several of the audience asked questions and made suggestions. Dr. Tompkins very carefully explained the different aspects of the cooperative stores, credit unions and the workings of the study clubs. Among those taking part in the discussion were Dr. Croteau, Judge Duffy, W. E. Bentley, Dr. J. A. Murphy, Professor Blanchard, J. W. Dixon, Professor MacMillan and others.
 Rev. Dr. Tompkins spoke in part as follows:

Co-operation in Canada
 "Co-operation in Canada," the speaker pointed out in beginning his address, "though it has more or less muddled along during the last thirty or forty years, has to its credit some outstanding achievements. Students of co-operation must have heard of the wheat pools of Western Canada, of the Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers, of the British Canadian Co-operative Society of Sydney Mines, in the extreme east, operated on the Rochdale plan and perhaps the most successful co-operative store on this continent; of George Keen and the Canadian Co-operator in Ontario; and of Alphonse Desjardins in Quebec, pioneer of Credit Unions on this continent. And now, interest in co-operation in Canada has largely centered around St. Francis Xavier's College and its extension activities."

"It is only within the last five or ten years that co-operation in Canada has started to take on a sure and definite stride and has begun to know its own mind and its possibilities."
 "It might be interesting," Rev. Dr. Tompkins said, "to know why we place such emphasis on education and now it has come about that the name of a modest little town like Antigonish has recently become synonymous with adult education and co-operation far and wide."
 "Organization is the fruit of intelligence, of knowledge, and without education we feel sure that co-operation would be built on sand. Some American has said recently that American co-operation and American community life might be compared to concrete without enough cement in it. If this indictment is true, we venture the opinion that 'knowing what it is all about' would supply that lack of cement."
 "What type of education do we promote? We select a number of dynamic ideas that are calculated to appeal to the ordinary people. I say 'ordinary' because we have never wasted much time on the bourgeoisie. We have found that the ordinary common man is usually free from prejudices. He rarely has axes to grind, frequently has lots of ability, is a good judge of sincerity, and gives you a ready response if you have a real message. I might add, too, that he has been hungry for late."
 "A society naturally good is what we should all desire. Living in a maladjusted world, as at present, is a great handicap to say the least. Common sense would dictate that we should line up all the natural forces of society with us rather than against us. If we are really kind to the service of justice and charity our service should issue in something practical."
 "The Apostles went out without any apparently formulated economic doctrine but with tremendous convictions about the dignity of man, the worth of human personality and of the human soul. Before their political, social and economic kingdoms crumbled. If we in our day have a society that is pagan and reeking with injustice it is logical to expect that the same thing should happen now, if we take our religion seriously. It seems to me that Christianity is the instrument that will do the job, provided there is real Christianity amongst us. We must today do more than talk platitudes and formulate metaphysical theories."
 "So far I have talked theory myself, because I affirmed that our principal contribution is in determining what theories work and what theories do not work in co-operation. (We Catholics like to keep our theory in pamphlet form.) To get down to real practical things, what are the dynamic ideas to which I have referred, that form the basis of our adult education? Some of the leading ideas—with which we indoctrinate the people came by the Fascist high command, eager to keep its carefully-mapped plan of advance intact.

 The bivouac in the mud of northern Ethiopia will allow completion of truck roads to catch up with the armies, giving a free flow of supplies. Officers, encountering little resistance except from nature, expressed confidence the Fascist banner would wave over Makale by Friday, signaling success in another major step in the campaign of occupation.
 Native Troops Lead
 If Italian plans go well, an Ethiopian will lead the Fascists into the coveted city. Degiac Gugsu's native troops, on the extreme left, are well in advance and expected to move into Makale by Thursday—a day in advance of the main columns.
 (Degiac Gugsu, a son-in-law of Emperor Haile Selassie, early in the campaign deserted to the Italians. He is an important chieftain in northern Ethiopia.)
 Fascist strategy is to allow natives to enter towns first in order to win over the sympathy of the inhabitants to the invaders.
 Another reason for the halt was that native troops of the central column had to penetrate "much more difficult territory" than the right and left wings. This force is led by General Alessandro Pirzio-Bitoli.
 Hautilen Occupied
 On the left there is General Ruggero Santini's column, which has occupied Hautilen, while the "mystery brigade" of Danakil warriors led by General Mariotti are on the right and have taken Eastern Danakilla.
 A fourth column is "mopping up" in the Adiba district between the Marob and Takaze Rivers. The territory is extremely hot and only about 1,500 feet above sea level. In addition to these four columns are the troops of Degiac Gugsu. Italian reports said the natives are welcoming the invaders.

Financial Aid Sought In Restoration Work—Five Known Dead.
 (A. P. by Guardian's Special Wire) MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 5.—The city of Miami pleaded for money today to pay the bills of its post-storm convalescence.
 After a survey showed five dead, 137 injured and possibly $3,000,000 property crop and shrubbery damage in Dade County alone from the freak storm which struck yesterday, Mayor A. D. H. Fossey asked aid from state and federal officials.
 The Mayor said he did not know where the city, its budget already sadly unbalanced, would get $150,000 he estimated was needed to finance emergency repairs on broken water mains, destroyed docks, damaged streets and the like.
 Real estate officials said $50,000 would be available immediately for emergency relief.
 While crews of hastily engaged workmen—their hiring helped relieve the city's unemployment problem—went to work cleaning up the wreckage, coast guardsmen announced three boys for whom fear had been expressed had reached safety after their boat foundered they were Don Putman, 19; Bob Ford 19; and Arthur Drake 20.
 Police listed 13 persons missing, but they said they believed a majority of them safe and unlocated by members of their families because of disrupted communications.

Body Of Toronto Girl Found In Ravine
 (C. P. by Guardian's Special Wire) TORONTO, Nov. 5.—The body of a woman about 24 years old, tentatively identified by police as Ruth Taylor was found this afternoon in a ravine off Gerrard St. East, opposite Beaton Avenue.
 The body was only half clothed when found, part of the clothing having been torn off. There were indications the girl had been criminally attacked and there were wounds about the head.
 Ruth Taylor was employed by the Toronto General Trusts. Police said they learned she telephoned home last night and said she would not be home for dinner, and that other employees of the firm reported she worked late last night. Her father is also employed there.
 The police investigated the possibility the girl was killed in an automobile and the body dragged down the hill into the ravine.

 (A. P. by Guardian's Special Wire) MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 5.—The city of Miami pleaded for money today to pay the bills of its post-storm convalescence.
 After a survey showed five dead, 137 injured and possibly $3,000,000 property crop and shrubbery damage in Dade County alone from the freak storm which struck yesterday, Mayor A. D. H. Fossey asked aid from state and federal officials.
 The Mayor said he did not know where the city, its budget already sadly unbalanced, would get $150,000 he estimated was needed to finance emergency repairs on broken water mains, destroyed docks, damaged streets and the like.
 Real estate officials said $50,000 would be available immediately for emergency relief.
 While crews of hastily engaged workmen—their hiring helped relieve the city's unemployment problem—went to work cleaning up the wreckage, coast guardsmen announced three boys for whom fear had been expressed had reached safety after their boat foundered they were Don Putman, 19; Bob Ford 19; and Arthur Drake 20.
 Police listed 13 persons missing, but they said they believed a majority of them safe and unlocated by members of their families because of disrupted communications.
