Tax Kingsboro correspondent of the Messenger and Visitor says: We have commenced to build a new place of worship; the old one which has stood as a landmark for some fifty years, and whose spire, visible for miles around, and seems to be ever pointing up-ward to the Eternal Throne is doomed, as having passed the bounds of repair; we are compelled therefore to "arise and build," "necessity being laid upon us." We are by no means wealthy community, but intend to do our best to complete the work so well begun.

The following are the officers and men from No 2 Company that will leave Monday for the week's inspection at the Island of Orleans:

The Lesson.

(London Times, July 23)

Let us admit it fairly, as business people should. We have had no end of a lesson; it will do us no end of good.

Not a single issue, or in one direction or twain. But conclusively comprehensively, and several times and again.

Were all our most holy illusions knocked higher than Gilderoy's Kibe. We have had a jolly good lesson, and in serves us jolly well right.

This was not bestowed us under the trees nor yet in the shade of a tent. But awingingly over eleven degrees of a bare brown continent.

From Lambert's to Delagoa Bay, and from Petersburg to Sutherland. Fell the phenomenal lesson we learned—with a fullness accorded no other land.

It was our fault, and our very great fault and not the judgment of Heaven! We made an army in our own image, on an island nine by seven.

Which faithfully mirrored its maker's ideals, equipment and mental attitude—

And so we get our lesson: and we ought to accept it with gratitude!

We have spent some hundred million pounds to prove the fact once more That horses are quicker than men afoot since two and two make four: And horses have four legs and men have two legs, and two into four goes twice.

And nothing over except our lesson—and very cheap at the price.

For remember, (this our children shall know: we are too near for that knowledge) Not our mere astonished camps, but Council and Creed and College—

A) the obese, unchallenged old things that stifle and overlie us—

Have felt the effects of the lesson we got—an advance no money could buy us!

Then let us develop this marvellous asset which we alone command, And which, it may subsequently transpire will be worth as much as the Rand: Let us approach this pivotal fact in a humble yet hopeful mood—

We have had no end of a lesson; it will do us no end of good!

It was our fault, and our very great fault—and now we must turn it to use.

We have forty million reasons for failure, but not a single excuse! So the more we work and the less we talk the better results we shall get—

We have had an imperial lesson, it will make us an Empire yet!

RUDYARD KIPLING.

THE CAUSE OF HAY FEVER

It's a microbe that floats in the air gets into the throat and lungs, develops rapidly, excites inflammation, &c. The cause is as simple as a thistle in the finger. Extract the thistle, away goes the pain. Destroy the Hay Fever germ—you get well. That's why Catarrhose acts so marvellously in Hay Fever. Its fragrant vapor to you brings cure, but to the microbe death. Catarrhose is as quick to act on these microscopic organisms as lightning. Prevents, as well as cures, and is always successful.
