RETALIATION ON MAINE BORDER

VANCEBORO, Me., Aug. 5.—Barrages of complaints that the border laws are being violated have been hurried back and forth around this vicinity lately with the result that the workers who have been crossing the line for their employment do not know just where they stand or when another exchange of ultimatums may force them to seek new employment. The trouble started over road construction in New Brunswick, the gravel for which has been hauled from here. Several Canadians were working on this side of the line in the pits until complaints were made to the Immigration authorities, who had no alternative except to send the Canadians back.

Complaint was then made in Canada that Americans were working in the woods there, peeling pulp-wood, guiding and unloading pulp-wood to the trestle of the Eastern Pulp Wood Company. The Canadian immigration officers retaliated and chased the Americans back to their own yard.

The next move was in form of a word to the Canadian customs that trucks working on the construction job were buying gasoline in the United States. That brought about the desired result, and now all gas bought in this country must pay a duty of one cent per imperial gallon.

As several of the Canadian trucks are running on this side of the border without the proper Maine registration plates, it is understood that the next move is to have these drivers arrested for improper registration of their vehicles. What form the Canadian reprisal is to take is yet to be ascertained.
