WOMEN'S NEW WAY WITH WEDDING RINGS

Are women becoming less sentimental? They are not, at any rate, so concerned about their wedding rings as they once were, Jewelers declare.

The manager of one establishment, asked how the changing fashion in rings was affecting trade, said the marriage emblem is now regarded in a totally different light.

"Women will today come into a shop, and taking off their wedding rings, worn thin with perhaps ten or fifteen years' use, will ask for it to be remodelled to the fashionable curtain-ring type.

The general reason given is: Oh, I am tired of this shape - want a change.

It is a surprising development, because for centuries there has been a superstition of prejudice against even taking off the wedding ring, and certainly not letting it pass into other hands.

"When I was young, women would take their wedding rings to their graves.

CHANGE POSITION

Another subtle change is seen in the wearing of the ring. It is becoming a vogue to keep it on the third finger of the right hand instead of the left.

The old-fashioned 18-carat gold ring is still popular, but it is being largely supplanted by those made of platinum or platinum "white gold." The latter is a secret trade alloy of precious metals.

Women who are still sentimental make the remodelling process the occasion of the wedding day anniversary to celebrate the tenth or twentieth year of marriage.

COLOR IN KITCHEN MAKES CHEERY COOKS

Make your kitchen as cheerful as possible, and if you like color use plenty of it in your kitchen. You may attain it by means of wall coloring, woodwork, curtains, the furniture and decorative design on oilcloth valances and stencilled table cover. A soft velour finish applied to the walls and ceilings is charming, although less smooth than enamel. Spots may be easily removed with cloth and water. Holland enamel gives the woodwork a pleasing contrast to the walls. White curtains with yellow gingham borders and stencilled, yellow petalled brown centred daisies with green foliage were used by one housewife.

Although he was among the people for only a few months this presentation speaks for itself the manner in which he endeared himself to the people of the district. Mr. Myers although taken completely by surprise thanked the people in a few well chosen remarks especially the host and hostess, for the lovely entertainment. At quite a late hour all wished their way homeward after wishing Alvin every success in his new work.
