As has been the case the past several years in the play for the Island intercollegiate football title, a large crowd of football fans yesterday saw the underrated S.D.U. intermediate squad come through with an unexpected victory over the favored P.W.C. team to send the series into a third and deciding struggle which is expected to take place on Saturday afternoon next.

✦ ✦ ✦ ✦

Outplayed in the first half by the heavier P.W.C. team, Saints had the power and stamina to come back yesterday afternoon in the second half and take play away from their opponents. Once they had pushed over their try there was no denying them and the third game of the series should provide local football fans with one of the hardest fought football games they have witnessed in recent years.

Home in Calgary from Toronto where he was reported to have quit the Maple Leafs because of stomach ulcers, goalie Frank McCool said that he had been dismissed when he asked for a $5,000 contract instead of the $4,500 offered.

✦ ✦ ✦ ✦

"Fed up and disgusted" with what he claimed was a "raw deal," McCool said that when he asked for the $5,000, which he believed he was worth after talking it over with other players who were getting that much, Manager Conny Smythe immediately charged him with trying to break his word.

✦ ✦ ✦ ✦

"I don't think I could go back now even if they offered me the $5,000," said McCool. "After the way I have been treated I wouldn't have the right spirit."

✦ ✦ ✦ ✦

He had made no agreement to play for $4,500, he said, prior to asking for the $5,000.

✦ ✦ ✦ ✦

One of the greatest problems that will face the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association in the next couple of years or so will be to prevent the indiscriminate raiding of players on the part of such organizations as the British and Scottish Ice Hockey Associations.

✦ ✦ ✦ ✦

And not only will the two aforementioned loops have to be contended with, for we feel sure that with the return to normalcy, more and more hockey leagues are going to be organized. They will have only one place to turn for players —Canada, the cradle of a game which is becoming increasingly international.

✦ ✦ ✦ ✦

We do not know just how the C.A.H.A. is going to settle what might well be the toughest problem it has ever had to decide. Naturally, controlling thousands of hockey players, it is, to a certain extent, in the driver's seat.

✦ ✦ ✦ ✦

But the interests who are going to want hockey players have a pile of money behind them, and that long green stuff has a nasty habit of talking pretty loud. Under such circumstances, that's one mighty big reason why the C.A.H.A. can't afford to go to war with such bodies as the British and Scottish Hockey Associations. Amicable arrangements will have to be made.

✦ ✦ ✦ ✦

There is one idea we have been mulling over in our mind which might help temper the situation, and that is the C.A.H.A. could endeavor to effect an agreement with associations like the S.I.H.A., B.I.H.A., United States Amateur and Pacific Coast loop, whereby they pay for players just as the National Hockey League does.

✦ ✦ ✦ ✦

While we fully realize this would not prevent hockey players from leaving the country in large numbers, it might, we think, prevent indiscriminate raiding. Clubs would not sign more players than they actually had need of, while they would be more cautious as to whom they signed.

✦ ✦ ✦ ✦

We have always felt that so-called amateur leagues such as these we have mentioned above should have to give as well as take. In pre-war years, hockey was big business with London promoters such as Joe Elvin, at Wembley, and Gen. Critchley, at Harringay.

✦ ✦ ✦ ✦

They were not in it just for their health. Yet they could come to Canada every year and pick up the best pucksters in the land without spending a pound note. Not even the N.H.L., which now works in complete harmony with the C.A.H.A., could do that.

Maple Leafs Handed 4-3 Defeat By Boston Bruins

TORONTO, Nov. 7 — (CP) — Led by the youthful forwards Don Gallinger and Bep Guidolin, the Boston Bruins scored a 4-3 victory over the Toronto Maple Leafs tonight before 12,582 fans and took over third place in the National Hockey League standings.

The hapless Leafs, who haven't won a game this season, outshot the Bruins all the way through the piece but their scoring average was much lower. Boston goalie Paul Bibeault handled 39 shots and the Bruins fired only 22 at Aldege Bastien in the Toronto nets.

Lorne Carr, the veteran Toronto right winger from Calgary, scored the 200th goal of his N.H.L. career early in the third period on an assist from Sweeney Schriner.

Coach Hap Day, whose Leafs have tied one game and lost four in five starts, juggled his lineup in an effort to find a winning combination. Taylor went back to his old pre-army service spot between Schriner and Carr. Syl Apps made his first pro appearance on Toronto ice in nearly two seasons between Bob Davidson and Mel Hill. Gus Bodnar centred a scrappy and dangerous line with Stewart and Bill Ezinicki on the wings.

Bruins were short Bobby Bauer, out with an injury, and used only 14 men.

The summary:

First Period

1—Toronto, Taylor (Schriner) 4:16
2—Toronto, Stewart (Ezinicki) 6:14
3—Boston, Guidolin (Gallinger) 16:26
Penalties: Ezinicki (2), Gallinger, Guidolin.

Second Period

4—Boston, Crawford (Cowley) 5:18
5—Boston, Dumart (Schmidt) 10:59
Penalties: Gallinger, Goldham.

Third Period

6—Toronto, Carr (Schriner) 2:22
7—Boston, Gallinger (Guidolin, Shill) 13:23
Penalties: Church.

How Veterans Will Perform $64 Question

By JOHN D. HAMILTON

NEW YORK, Nov. 7 — (CP) — A pair of the most polished gents in professional hockey came right out with the $64 question of the still-infant National League season today: How will the service veterans perform?

That little problem is wrinkling the brows of Lester Patrick and Frank Boucher, manager and coach respectively of New York Rangers, as they prepare for their 1945 Manhattan debut.

Rangers open at Madison Square Garden tomorow night against Chicago Black Hawks. In three road games so far, the blue shirts have dropped decisions to Hawks and Detroit Red Wings, while winning from Toronto Maple Leafs.

Boucher, back in the town where he won fame first as an all-star centre-forward and later as a coach, was non-committal about his Rangers when interviewed at the Garden.

"Our team is much better than it has been for the last two years—that's for sure," he grinned. "But a lot will depend on how quickly the fellows coming out of the services shape up."

The amiable bench-general had something there. Hockey was hit harder than any other major sport by the war—simply because most pro-hockey players are Canadians and Canada was involved in the war two years longer than the United States.

And take it from Frank Boucher and Lester Patrick. The reconversion of veterans will be a big feature of the N.H.L. this year.

"It's the same thing that happened in baseball last summer", Boucher said. "The vets come out of service and they find it tough getting back their coordination and shooting eyes. Their legs are stiff from marching and they have to get back the feel of the ice. We still don't know what will happen to Rangers, but it will be important to us—and to all of the other clubs. Fellows like Neil Colville, Chuck Rayner, Jim Henry, Muzz Patrick and Alex Shibicky of the Rangers all have had military service. And it takes a while for them to get their muscles limbered up."

Western Footballers Reach Agreement

CALGARY, Nov. 7 — (CP) — After four days of bickering over guarantee and location of the Western Canada senior football final, Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Calgary Stampeders finally came to terms this afternoon. Stampeders will play a sudden death game at Winnipeg's Osborne Stadium Saturday afternoon.

President Jack Grogan of the Stampeders club, notified N.J (Piffles) Taylor of Regina, president of the Western Canada Rugby Union, that the Calgary club had accepted the Blue Bomber proposition.

Amateur Heads Pros At Tourney

PINEHURST, N.C., Nov. 17 — (AP) — An unsung amateur, Lieut. Cary Middlecoff of Memphis, scored his second sub-par round today to lead the professional aces at the halfway post in the north and south open golf tournament with 139.

While the first-day leaders, Benny Hogan and Denny Shute, blew themselves off the pace with 74's, the 24-year-old Tennessean fired a three-under-par 69 to go with his 70 of yesterday and grab a one-shot lead.

Mike Turnesa of Knollwood, N.Y., whose 69 equalled today's low round by Middlecoff, Art Doering of Chicago and Dick Metz of Deal, N.J., was alone in fourth place with 141.

Sammy Snead, Hot Springs, Va., Doering and Gene Sarazen, New York, were bracketed at 142, with Metz and Bob Hamilton, Chicago, the defending champion a shot back at 143.

Fredericton High Defeats Rothesay

FREDERICTON, Nov. 7—(CP)—Fredericton High School defeated Rothesay Collegiate School 6-0 today in the first game of a home-and-home series for the New Brunswick interscholastic rugby championship.

If hockey leagues outside of Canada want our players, we believe it is only fair that they should have to pay for them. In that way, the clubs across Canada who devote a lot of time and money in developing hockey players would receive recompense which is justly due them.

S. D. U. Evens Series With P. W. C. For Island Intermediate Rugby Title

St. Dunstan's University was back in the running for the P.E.I. intermediate intercollegiate football championship today, after yesterday defeating the defending P.W.C. squad 3-0 in the second game of the best of three game series. The red and blue team, holders of the title for four years, won the opener 8-0 last Saturday.

Saints scored the lone try of the game less than ten minutes after the start of the second half when Joe J. McDonald got the oval across after a pile-up on the P.W.C. line. Joe Mahar failed by a narrow margin in his try for the extra points from a difficult angle.

P.W.C. had the better of play in the first half but the resurgent red and white team had a definite edge through most of the second.

Although arrangements were not definite it was expected that the deciding game would be played next Saturday afternoon.

The lineups:

Saints: Fullback, Strain; three-quarters, Dorsey, C. McDonald, McInnis, J. J. McDonald; halves, Hammill, Mahar, Mullin; forwards, L. McDonald, Burge, Ledwell, McCarthy, Sark, Wilson, Martin.

P.W.C.: Fullback, Quigley; three-quarters, Blanchard, Nicolle, Dalziel, Reddin; halves, Brehaut, McDonald, Proud; forwards, Hooper, Robertson, Hodgson, Gormley, Large, Court, MacLennan; subs, Forsythe, Carr.

PARIS-WOMEN

BY FRED BACKHOUSE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

PARIS, Oct. 24 — (CP) — The only free sights in Paris today are the usual guide-book places and — the women.

The returning pre-war inhabitant, taking a firm grip on his synthetic fruit-juice in the sidewalk Cafe de la Paix, sees some feminine transformations that really rate a mention by Herr Baedeker.

Shoes, skirts, hair and hats have all gone up to the third floor.

Six-inch platform-soled shoes have given the girls a haughty new stature, and they swear the only reason they wear them is that being made of cork and wood they are off the ration. Incidentally, they are three times as expensive as the well-made leather jobs for which the girls need a coupon.

Skirts, according to cursory male observation, have been hitched at least two inches since last noted in peacetime. Shortage of cloth is the cause, said one informant. Also notable is that most Parisiennes have naturally or artificially bronzed legs, which is a trick British females seem to have overlooked.

Hair — well it seems you can do anything with your hair in Paris, provided the movement is skyward. One young thing at the Place de L'Opera looked as if she was on fire. She had plastered her bright red tresses vertically for nine inches or so and then whipped off the ends to look like flames.

Hats are rarely worn, but are similarly mountainous and imaginative, with the built-up turban having a slight edge over all others. One creation, however, halted the conversation when it passed the cafe. It was a carefully-balanced confection of luscious fruits and vegetables that made the five-course dinner worn by Carmen Miranda look like a hasty snack.

One further piece of fashion intelligence picked up without going near the salons of "Haute Couture" concerns stockings. They are so rare that it is almost dangerous to possess them.

A British embassy secretary who walked down the Champs Elysees in a pair of full-fashioneds got so many dark looks and whispers of "black market" and "ex-collaborationist" that she ran home and stripped them off.

Confirmation of this scarcity came at the "gala of galas" at the swank French officers' leave club. They announced that the first prize in the raffle would be a bottle of champagne. No applause. The second prize, a bottle of brandy. Mild enthusiasm. The third, a pair of nylon stockings. The audience fell apart.

When a pretty blond was awarded the coveted hose, the president of the club dashed forward to kiss her on both cheeks. And the orchestra promptly struck up "The Marseillaise."

Legless Ace Entered In Autumn Golf Tourney

BY GORDON McKEAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Nov. 7 — (CP) —Old soldiers—and airmen—never die — they just play away. Wing. Cmdr. Douglas Bader, legless R.A.F. ace, has entered the autumn meet of the R.A.F. Golf Association at Moor Park, Rickmansworth, and Maj. J.L.C. Dillon, who broke his neck in two places and his jaw in nine pieces, is back playing with his old rugby club, London Irish.

Major Dillon was injured in an accident in Persia in 1943 and spent months in a Cairo hospital encased in plaster and steel, but his playing was so good in his first game that friends said, "You'd never know Jimmie ever had an accident."

Synthetic Balls

The Board of Trade chilled a hot rumor that natural rubber golf and tennis balls soon would be on sale.

"Natural rubber cannot be spared for these goods until supplies are much more plentiful," the board said. "Even then, some time must pass between the release of natural rubber and the appearance in the shops of balls made from this material."

"For these reasons it is not possible at this stage to forecast when tennis and golf balls made from natural rubber will be available, but until then they will still be made from synthetic rubber."

Has Derby Hopes

Gordon Richards, this season's champion jockey for the 18th time in 20 years, believes that 1946 will bring him his brightest chances of riding his first Derby winner.

His retainers next year are F. Darling's Beckhampton stable, the Aga Khan, T. Lilley and Stephen Raphael.

"This means," Gordon said, "that I can have the pick of the Beckhampton colt, Edward Tudor, the Aga Khan's Khaled and Lilley's Radiotherapy for next year's Derby. And as they are three of the best colts of this season, I must have an excellent prospect of achieving the only ambition I have left."

Cricket Briefs

Eddie Paynter, Lancashire test match batsman, says at 43 he feels the strain of three-day matches and may not play regularly in first-class cricket next season. Rochdale Cricket Club, members of the Central Lancashire League, have signed Cecil G. Pepper, 28, Australian victory test player, as their professional coach for three years. . . Capt. E.D.R. Eager, 27, Oxford cricket blue and Gloucestershire amateur, has been appointed joint secretary of Hampshire County Club and will captain the county XI.

Dog Trials Cause Stir In Saskatchewan Town

GAINSBOROUGH, Sask. Nov. 7 — (CP) — A simple sign at the crossing of a couple of trails seven miles from this southeastern Saskatchewan town points the way to a playground of millionaires. The sign says "Trials" and the dog trials that go on at the end of the trail bring the cream of American setters and pointers into this part of the country.

Around little Gainsborough, 91 miles east of Estevan, where the sport has been popular for 35 years, the same people have been coming back with dogs for so many years that everyone is quite neighborly about it all. Two handlers showed up so often that eventually they bought property nearby and make the district their summer home.

The others who come in year after year from the United States, handling dogs owned by wealthy and influential Americans, bring much business. Their average expenditure in the three months they were here this year was $3,000 a camp — and there are five camps in the district.

So, such sponsoring organizations as the Dominion Field Trial Club of nearby Pearson, Man., and the Great Northern Field Trial Club of Gainsborough are more like glorified boards of trade than clubs in the accepted sense of the word.

Those interested in the sport have their own publication — The American Field — and a staff writer represented it at this year's trials. Dogs and trainers arrive three months before the trials open, putting the animals into condition for the big events.

At Gainsborough this year, 50 professional trainers arrived, each bringing from 40 to 65 dogs. Trainers rent buildings from farmers in which to house their dogs, and rent or buy horses for use in riding through the countryside behind their dogs.

Canine Aristocrats

The trainers also pay the Saskatchewan government a licence fee of $25 for five dogs and $1 for each dog above that number. The animals themselves are treated like film stars. They eat such things as shredded wheat, fresh meats, commercial dog foods and fresh tripe.

They go out during the trials to see how many birds they can spot, how they can stack up against the other dogs for form. Dogs are run in pairs. Judges, trainers, handlers and spectators follow on horseback. Trainers direct the dogs over the course by word of mouth or by whistle in pursuit of legitimate game—pheasant, partridge, prairie-chicken.

When a dog spots a bird it "freezes" or points, and its handlers yell "Point." Judges then pass on the dog, use a whip to flush the bird from before him. In the course of a day's work, the judges and trainers may go 45 miles on horseback.

Prize money ranging from 50 to $30 is offered in the different trials, and this goes to the handlers of the winning dogs, with a percentage going to the sponsoring club.

While all this is going on the men who own the dogs sit in their offices in Miami, Chicago, Birmingham, Ala., or some other American centre directing the affairs of industry.

Trainers take the dogs from one trial to another starting here each summer and working south, and the better their charges show at the trials the more valuable they become, either to the owners as pets or for breeding purposes. Some are valued at $2,000. The Gainsborough trials rank today as the third best on the continent. The national trials held in Tennessee are considered the best.

BIRMINGHAM, England — (CP) — While escorting prisoners by bus from here to Stafford Quarter Sessions, a warden, John Power, of Wednesbury, was attacked by a handcuffed man. He was taken to hospital with face injuries.

Other features would include wings for Economic and Social Council, separate buildings for 60-odd participating nations, 10,000-seat assembly hall and museum in center capped by 150-foot translucent globe which would overlook waterfalls stair-stepping down hillside.
