

GIRLS! GIRLS! YOU MUST TRY THIS!
DOUBLES BEAUTY OF YOUR HAIR

FOR 25 CENTS YOU CAN MAKE YOUR HAIR LUSTROUS, FLUFFY AND ABUNDANT.

Immediate?—Yes! Certain?—that's the joy of it. Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant, and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after a Danderine hair cleanse.

awaits those whose hair has been neglected, or is scraggy, faded, dry, brittle or thin. Besides beautifying the hair, Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair, but what will please you most will be after a few week's use, when you see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair growing all over the scalp.

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY ATTRACTIONS AT THE EDEN MUSEE, NEW YORK. Special preparations are being made by the Eden Musee Management of New York for Washington's Birthday celebration. Large new groups of the European War Heroes and scenes have been installed and other large historical groups appropriately. The subjects consist of travel, scenic, drama, comic and miscellaneous pictures and are most beautiful.

For the holiday week, Mr. Dunnigan, the clever magician and illusionist has prepared a novel and unique program for that week and will present the same at the afternoon and evening performance. The latest addition "Red Cross Scene on the European Battlefield" is a most striking one. A figure of Gov. Whitman has been installed in the Entrance Hall.

ALBERT S. JANIN COMES INTO HIS OWN. NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—Albert S. Janin, cabinet maker, has quit his job. It was a good job and paid him five dollars a day, but he doesn't need the money now. For the next ten years of his life, at least, he can sit back in his easy chair and watch the money roll in.

The other day the Board of Examiners in Chief of the Patent Office sent Janin a telegram. It informed him that he, and not Glen H. Curtiss, was the inventor of the hydro-aeroplane. The board's decision was unanimous, and now Janin will get royalties on every hydro-aeroplane that has been manufactured, is being built now, or will be built within the next decade.

Janin has been living at Rosebank, Staten Island, and he says he will continue to live there. "We will stay here where I was born and reared," he declared, but no more of these flats for me. The first thing will be to get a home with plenty of ground around it for the kids to play in.

"I've got the knack of inventing things in my blood," he said. "My great grandfather, Antoine Janin, invented the percussion cap for cartridges in France years ago. I got my idea for the hydroplane while I was a cadet on one of the War Line's coast-wise steamers. Standing on the bridge I used to watch the fly fish and the seagulls and I wondered why a flying boat could not be invented that could rise in an arc from the surface like a gull. My friends laughed at my first drawings made in 1900, but one capitalist gave me $3,000 to buy a motor."

SIDE LIGHTS OF TRENCH LIFE ARE AMUSING

Taking Turn for Bath at Convent; "Pinching" Others' Chance if Possible.

DIARY FULL OF WIT. Tells of a "Patriotic" Pig With Appreciation for the Entente.

(By P. M. Sarie, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

LONDON, Jan. 23.—(By mail.)—Side-lights of trench life are amusingly described in the following extracts from the diary of an officer in the Bedfordshire Regiment: "Sunday. Another horrid wet day. Church parade in the courtyard. The C. O.'s (company commanding officer) billet—principally hymns, which attracted a curious crowd. I cannot say that the singing, well meant and certainly hearty, as it was, would have attracted me very far on a wet day.

"The next sentence should be written in capitals, as it is in my mind. Had a lovely hot bath at the convent. Rum place to go for a bath, wasn't it? Anyway, I met a clean looking fellow who said he had bathed there, so I summoned up my courage and rang the bell, and in my best French asked the lady who appeared if I might wash myself there. I was promptly ushered into a sort of office, where I found I could book my turn later in the morning.

When I eventually turned up on the stroke of five, I found I was only just in time to forestall a total stranger who was trying in execrable French to assure the sister that I was his great friend and that I had booked for him. That boy—he was a subaltern—should get him up in the army. I hope to see him swing off myself, for his barefaced audacity. If the good lady had been able to understand his French—she mercifully was not equal to the task—he'd have had that bath too.

Anyway I got it, and thoroughly enjoyed it—came out looking rather pale, I expect, as it was my first real wash worth speaking about. The next morning I jolly sporting of these nuns. I think their poor box does not suffer over it either. My enjoyment was somewhat marred by the subaltern, in no way embarrassed, importuning me through the door to hurry up as he did not expect to "pinch" the turn of the next fellow booked after me.

"Wednesday. This time we are in local support—some 400 yards behind the trenches. Our billets are in a farmhouse, one of the few that have not been flattened out by a shell. It is sure to catch one sooner or later. Hope it does not arrive during our three days here. I secured a bed with a spring mattress which apparently suffered from indigestion. Not so much Machiavellian diplomacy required to secure the bed this time as usual, owing to the fact that it lies across, and not the level of, a window which faces towards the Germans and is plentifully punctured with bullet holes. Well, anyway it's comfy, and I'll hope for the best.

"Thursday. A very pleasant and restful day, wet of course. Did a little foraging in the farms along the road, running parallel to and about 400 yards behind the firing line. Borrowed some potatoes and some leeks from what was once a garden. Also there was a chicken (courtesy title) for dinner; I think it must have followed us home. They shelled the line of roadway a good deal this morning, but never seemed to drop them where we were, not that I am complaining of inattention.

"I am now sitting here in positive comfort after lunch, writing at a real table. In the intervals for thought I watch B—, who came in late for lunch. He is one of those weak, dapper fellows in ordinary life, but now he is apparently playing a medal round with a slippery lump of butter. It never will stick long enough on his knife to carry the bunkers, and he is using most horrid language. I should judge he is about seven down on bogey and by the color I should say he requires a new ball.

"There is also by the way, a pig here. I rather fancy from the way it follows one about, obviously trying to speak that its feelings of appreciation of the Entente is so warm as to make it meditate accompanying us down to the trenches tomorrow, murmuring to itself (it looks a learned pig) Dulce est decuram est pro patria mori. Possibly it will come; it has a patriotic sort of face, but, as is so often the case with

DAILY WARNINGS

Bad Fires In Nova Scotia

Baptist institutions Burned at Wolfville BATHURST, Feb. 3—The Leger Hotel here was destroyed by fire at 5 o'clock this morning. Nearly everything was destroyed. John P. Leger, the owner, estimates his loss at $30,000, partly covered by insurance. DIGBY, N. S., Feb. 3—Lour Lodge summer hotel just rebuilt after a fire last autumn, was again burned to the ground today.

Items like the above appear in every daily paper we pick up but we go right along carrying little or no insurance evidently thinking our property wont burn.

Tomorrow Other People may be Reading of Our Loss

Better see to it that when the fire comes you are well protected by insurance in good companies. Under present financial conditions it is folly to insure in a weak company.

We Represent Nine of the Strongest Doing Business

If your property is uninsured or underinsured, we strongly advise you to stop carrying the risk yourself and stop it TODAY.

Write, Telephone or call on us at once and be protected. We will give your business prompt and careful attention and appreciate any you have to offer us.
