beautiful, so attractive, that with his money she might make a brilliant success. Now it was too late because of Miles Sheridan. As things were Nazlo would not want Terry for his wife; yet he could not bear to give her up, having found her. Something that he thought was his heart ached with a grinding ache. He determined to learn what he could about Sheridan and the girl, without approaching them again, until he should know his own mind. Throughout the morning he heard nothing. Every one he knew, who knew Sheridan, seemed surprised at the arrival of the pair. In the afternoon, in the bar of the Sporting Club however, he came across an acquaintance who spoke of Sheridan. This man was able to tell that Sheridan had brought his yacht, "Silverwood", into Monaco harbour early that day.

Nazlo had seen Miles and the girl playing roulette in the Club, though he had kept in the background, out of sight. They looked absorbed and he counted that the "tables" would hold them for sometime to come. He was stopping at the Hotel de Paris, and a car he had hired was in a garage close by. Five minutes after he had hurried out of the Club, and in his car, reached the port. He had no intention of going on board the yacht. There would be nothing to gain by trying that game. But there was a detective strain in the Greek Shoe King, and an instinct that told him he might "pick up something" down at the harbour.

Having arrived, he got out of the car and walked about, pretending to interest himself in the small, brightly painted boats lying ready for hire. He had eyes to spare, however, for other things, and he blinked in the sunshine as he stared at "Silverwood", while as a great waltz in the green water. As he gazed, a woman's figure slowly descended the gangway, and seated herself solidly in a waiting boat; the figure of an elderly woman, he thought. Two smart sailors began to row her swiftly towards shore, and they had not taken many strokes, before Nazlo was inspired. A taxi was standing near her car. He went to it, and offered hundred francs to the chauffeur. "Go up to the Hotel du Louvre and ask if Mr. Eustace Nazlo is staying there," he ordered. "If not, you needn't come back to tell me. I shall expect you only if the answer is 'Yes'."

The man drove off grinning, though he had been engaged to take a woman to Mentone. He would not have received more than forty francs for that service, counting turn face. Nazlo was sure that the taxi would not come back. (To Be Continued.)

CANADA HAS ONLY PLANT DISTILLING FRUIT SPIRITS

What is said to be the only plant of its kind in the world was recently put into operation at Berwick, N. S. The plant will manufacture white distilled vinegar from apples and it is the only concern in the British Empire authorized to produce distilled fruit spirits. The new plant, states the Industrial Department of the Canadian National Railways, will assist materially in disposing of the apple crop of Nova Scotia. It can handle 300,000 barrels of apples annually and is designed so as to permit extension. Apple brandy for export will also be manufactured in the new plant.

HEALTH

A HEALTH SERVICE OF THE CANADIAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION AND LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES IN CANADA

More admiration of personal appearance is conveyed in the phrase "the picture of health" than in any other of the many complimentary expressions which are used to describe the clear-cut, attractive, capable and happy-looking individual. That it is the popular desire to have this healthy appearance is shown by the enormous sums expended to persuade the public of the health value of this and that commercial product. Most of it is cleverly done, but unfortunately scientific truths are distorted in too many cases, leaving no ground for excuses; the method used is simply misrepresentation.

The wrinkled brow, the frown and headache from eye-strain is just a blurred, out-of-focus reflection of health. The diseased or abnormal body cannot reflect the health which it does not possess. Those who look the picture of health are really healthy in mind and body. They have given reasonable care to the bodies and they have made a satisfactory adjustment to the world in which they have to live—they are healthy, happy and contented.

There is nothing artificial about the picture of health. It is an un-touched photograph from within, not a mere paint and powder job from without. It is a matter of taste as to whether or not eyelids should be darkened, cheeks rouged and hair dyed, but no one is deceived into thinking that these alterations are real; they are often an obvious attempt to provide something in the place of the lost picture of health.

Sound teeth and healthy gums are made possible by proper foods and reasonable care. You cannot make bricks without straw, neither can you build sound teeth without calcium, and the best source of calcium is the old reliable friend from the cradle to old age—milk. The picture of health is a clean one. There is no staining of the cracked and varnished finish of some d'ing old painting; there is color, brightness and cleanliness. The clear skin is a healthier skin; it covers a body that appears strong and capable. The starved and hungry-looking individual is not the picture of health, neither is the person who is over weight. Neither under-eating nor over-eating promotes good health.

If you wish to be the picture of health, you must rely upon good habits of living to attain this. There is nothing which refreshes like sleep, there is nothing that cleanses like soap and water. There is no food to replace milk. These are the things to know and to make use of in your daily life.

NAME OF "534" MAY BE SECRET TO QUEEN

GLASGOW, Scotland, Sept. 6.—Even Queen Mary may not know the name of "534" until she launches and christens the great Cunard liner on September 26. Strict secrecy is being maintained as to the breaker of the potential record. Such a course is unprecedented in the history of shipbuilding on the Clyde, but "534" is herself unprecedented. The News Chronicle points out. The biggest and fastest passenger ship in the world—she will also be the fastest merchant ship to be launched by a Queen of England.

Six enormous "triggers" now almost complete, will hold the ship just before launching. Then, when the Queen presses a button, the triggers will be released, and "534" will slide into the water, and "534" will be a special reason for selecting 3.15 p.m. as the time for the ceremony. It has been calculated, that the tide will then be most favourable. The King will also be present, and it will be a gala day on Clydeside.

Zane Grey's "Under The Tonto Rim" At The Capitol

Twenty-seventh of the films to be made from a Zane Grey novel is attraction at the Capitol Theatre. Stuart Erwin, Fred Kohler, Raymond Hatton and Verna Hillie head the cast which enacts it. "Under the Tonto Rim" is the story of a cowboy who just couldn't do anything right, up to the time a girl laughed at him, and made him lose his temper. Erwin is the cowboy. Falling at everything else, he is assigned to guard several hundred head of cattle on a ranch near a railway line. But he fails at that too. The cattle are stolen from under his very nose, and he decides he's a complete failure and might as well follow the advice of two wild cowboys, who want him to invest a small inheritance in a hog ranch. But the work thoroughly disgusts him. And the cronies, deciding that he needs a woman, cook up a scheme. They take him to a border-town saloon, where they spread the report that he's a notorious desperado. Women flock around him; men shy away. But he is soon exposed, and the daughter of his former boss, who had been deeply impressed by him, turns upon him in scorn. The scorn has its effect. He becomes just as wild as the wildman he had been painted.

"MEAT SHIPPING REGULATIONS.—The Guardian is informed by the management of Davis and Fraser that their firm has never refused to kill hogs or cattle. A statement to the contrary was reported as having been made at Wednesday's meeting of the Charlottetown Board of Trade council. In connection with the discussion on meat shipping regulations, it being alleged there that the building of a public abattoir was necessary and that "it was impossible to get animals killed at Davis and Fraser." The Guardian further understands that the abattoir service now available is capable of handling, not only all the requirements of our Island producers, but the whole Maritimes if necessary.

BRISTOL GREAT GRAIN PORT

When John Cabot sailed the port of Bristol over four hundred years ago and landed on Canada's eastern coast, he incidentally laid the foundations for a future industry for that port which, however, was not to take shape until the great flow of grain from Canada's western prairies commenced. Fifty years ago, states the Agricultural Department of the Canadian National Railways, the amount of wheat flowing through the port of Bristol was very small. In fact, there was only a single small granary. Today the port has a capacity of 3,000,000 bushels of grain and there are four public elevators capable of accommodating 2,000,000 bushels. All of the public elevators are connected by a conveyor system. This has brought about expansion of the milling trade of the port. Until five years ago there was one small grist mill at Avonmouth. Today there are six modern mills and Bristol is now an important trade. Bristol is also prominent in the tobacco trade, being an important bonding centre for the United Kingdom.

NEW YORK EXCHANGE

(By Frederick Gardner, Associated Press Financial Writer)

(A. P. By Guardian's Special Wire) NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—Gold and silver shares, favorites of inflation-minded traders in recent months, lost some of their speculative glamour today in a wave of late selling which unsettled the whole market.

United States Smelting and Refining, one of the highest priced shares on the list, was the pivot of the selling movement. After equaling its high of the year at 141, it plunged downward to 125 1-2, closing at the day's low for a net loss of 14 1-2 points.

Here Sound dropped 4 1-2 points. Alaska Juneau, Coeur d'Alene, American Smelting, Dome and McIntyre Porcupine yielded for losses of about 1 to more than 2 points. Revision of earnings expectations for non-ferrous metal producers swelled the demand for Alaska Juneau under pressure early in publication of an estimate showing August earnings below profit in the same month last year. Later, an unofficial financial news ticker report cast doubt upon some of the recent earnings predictions for United States Smelting.

Led by the metals, the share market generally resumed its decline after yesterday's modest rally into new low ground for the past two weeks. Elsewhere sentiment in financial markets were brightened somewhat by a recovery in United States government bonds and dollar against foreign exchanges. Some bond traders professed to see evidence of treasury support in the government list.

Discouraged by the prolonged seasonal lull in industry and outbreak of violence in the textile strike, traders were reluctant to follow yesterday's rally in stocks.

Active trading in the metal shares swelled the day's turnover to 603,330 shares compared with 476,030 in the preceding session. The Standard Statistics Co. average for 90 leading stocks dropped to 71.7, off 14 points, more than wiping out the rally gain.

Chemical lost nearly 6 points. American Can, California Packing, J. I. Case, Montgomery Ward, Kennecott Copper, Santa Fe, General Motors, Chrysler, Bethlehem Steel, Johns Manville, National Distillers and Union Pacific were among shares showing losses of 1 to nearly 3 points at the finish. In face of weakness in recent inflation favorites in the stock list, leading commodities were steady on the whole. Wheat closed 1-4 to 7-8 of a cent a bushel higher but corn slipped 1-4 to 1 1-8. Cotton edged in demand for net gains of 15 to 30 cents a bale.

Not much change in business conditions could be seen in weekly statistics. The Iron Age, estimating current steel production at 19 percent of capacity, unchanged from week ago, said little improvement in steel demand had occurred since Labor Day.

Last week's electric power production was below that of the corresponding period of last year for the second time in recent months. The decrease amounted to six-tenths of one percent compared with a gain of 1 1/2 percent the previous week, according to the Edison Electric Institute.

Greater-than-seasonal gains in loadings of individual railroads provided some cheer but railroad shares did not respond. The F. W. Woolworth Co. reported its August

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

HOW UNUSUAL!

Left: A boy and an engine—a logical shot, yet how often overlooked. Right: What! A picture of the back steps? But the flower and its shadow provide the necessary interest.

SOME folks have the notion that the only pictures worth taking are those of unusual things. They take a camera along when they travel and never use it at home, unless something special is happening. Yet the simple fact of the matter is that some of your finest picture possibilities are at home, around the house. "But," you may say, "I've already made good snaps of the house, the family, the pets, the garden and the new car. What else is there to shoot?" Nobody can answer that question for you, directly. But it's dollars to doughnuts that there are dozens of other picture possibilities. And all of them as interesting as the ones already in your album.

The secret of finding them is simply a matter of keeping your eyes open. Get the habit of looking at things—everything—as though you had never seen them before. It's amazing the way this habit will sharpen your interest—now dulled by sheer familiarity—in even the most commonplace things. Some of the finest pieces of photographic art have been results of appreciative eyes in the heads of stay-at-homes. The pattern of sun and shade on the front steps, the fascinating interplay of roof lines, tree portraits—are typical of pictures that may be made at home—unusual pictures of usual subjects! Not all of us are particularly interested in photography as an art—
