Action Necessary To Ensure Vets Obtaining Necessary Priorities

By The Canadian Press

EDMONTON, Sept. 4 — Dominion Chaplain Rev. Glen Stephenson told the Dominion Command Convention of the Army, Navy and Air Force veterans in Canada that it was time "something drastic was done" to ensure that veterans secure priorities to which they are entitled for building materials.

"In Port Alberni, B. C., a large pulp mill is being erected and the lumber used for cement forms is being buried while veterans are crying for lumber for homes" he said.

The convention endorsed the padre's stand and resolved that the association call on Federal, Provincial and Municipal authorities to see that the promise of priority on building materials for homes for veterans be implemented and that all unessential building and, if necessary, lumber exports be curtailed until all ex-service personnel are housed.

The convention turned down a suggestion that all exports of lumber be prohibited until Canadian veteran needs are satisfied. Delegates said conditions in the devastated areas of Britain and Europe required that Canadians be prepared to share what they have with less fortunate peoples.

Thinks Everything Canada Did In War Was Right

(By Douglas How, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

OTTAWA, Sept. 4—(CP)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King told a press conference late today that "I have never been more satisfied in my own mind that everything Canada did in the war was right."

Reviving his memories of a recent trip through the Normandy battlefields of the Canadian army, Mr. King said he was "confident that if Canada hadn't done everything she did none of us would be assembled here in this room."

Fresh from the international complexities of the Paris peace conference, the Prime Minister said he had found that Canada's position in the world "never stood higher."

International conferences, such as the peace conference, were creating "fresh problems in themselves." They required the absence of ministers from the governments of many countries.

He had found "a good deal of delay" at these conferences through sheer procedural problems and their ilk. Staffs were shorthanded. There was no precedents in some cases.

He thought the Paris conference might have benefited from less publicity, particularly in committees. It "does come to a stage where a few men sitting around a committee table could reach a decision much quicker if they were not aware that their every word would be flashed around the world.

"A man has to get special training to be able to concentrate most effectively while knowing that his every sentence may go around the world and while he may be photographed as he talks."

The Prime Minister said he felt that "what we need in our individual and national lives is patience." With patience and the cultivation of an attitude of goodwill and with faith "we'll get through."

More than anything the world needed goodwill. That "counts more than anything." All the international machinery for compromise was as nothing in comparison.

Asked about Canada's participation in European peace, the Prime Minister said he thought it would be "the worst thing that could happen to Canada" if she "suddenly jumped into the European arena to say with a loud voice what should be done."

Arab League States Will Be Represented

(By Arthur Gavshon)

LONDON, Sept. 4—(AP) —The Jewish Agency tonight handed Britain an answer to the invitation to a conference on Palestine's future, opening here Monday, and informed sources said it agreed at least to "limited participation."

Colonial Secretary Hall, meanwhile, informed the Jewish Agency by letter that Britain has decided to invite a number of non-agency Jewish individuals and organizations, from Britain as well as from Palestine, to the conference.

And Palestine Arab Higher Executive has rejected the invitation to the conference, but the seven Arab League States, at suggestion of which Britain called the meeting, will be represented.

Government sources said, however, they believed the Palestine Arab executive was reconsidering its decision and might at least send "observers."

The decision of the Jewish Agency on the invitation was handed to the British Government following an all-day meeting of members of the Agency executive, who had flown here from Paris, and Dr. Chaim Weizmann, their chairman, at an undisclosed place outside London.

Authoritative sources said non-Agency Jewish groups invited to the conference are the Jewish Board of Deputies, Agidrath Israel, Vaad Leumi (the Jewish National Council) and the World Misrachi.

Heirens Pleads Guilty To 3 Murder Charges

CHICAGO, Sept. 4—(AP)—William Heirens, who found perverted sexual satisfaction in crime but never felt remorse, pleaded guilty today to three gruesome murders in a move his counsel hope will save him from death in the electric chair.

The 17-year-old Jekyll-Hyde personality, a model University student by day but a vicious prowler by night, pleaded guilty to every charge the state entered against him.

In throwing himself upon the mercy of the court, Heirens pleaded guilty to the kidnap-killing of six-year-old Suzanne Degnan Jan. 7, the "lipstick murder" of Frances Brown Dec. 10. The fatal stabbing of Mrs. Josephine Ross, 43, June 5, 1945 and 26 burglaries, robberies or assaults.

Heirns rattled off "guilty" as the indictments charging minor offences were presented against him. When the murder indictments were reached, Chief Justice Harold Ward spoke up.

"You understand, Heirens, that in pleading guilty you are waiving a trial by jury . . . the court may sentence you to death, or natural life imprisonment or for any number of years not less than 14? Having been informed of this do you still persist in pleading guilty.

Heirens paused a moment and then said, "yes".

In the Brown case, Mrs. Martha Engle, a maid, told of finding blood on the young woman's bed and a lipstick message on the wall reading, "for heaven's sake catch me before I kill more, I cannot control myself."

C. of E. Synod At Winnipeg

By SHANE MacKAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG, Sept. 4—The 16th session of the General Synod of the Church of England opens in Winnipeg today with a colorful procession of lay and clerical delegates to St. John's Cathedral, where a service of holy communion will be conducted by Most Rev. Geoffrey Fisher, Archbishop of Canterbury.

Business sessions of the lower house will commence in the afternoon at St. John's Anglican College.

The House of Bishops, which has been in session for several days, will hold private meetings and will send "messages" to each session of the lower house. The Synod will hold daily meetings until Sept. 13.

Probably the most prominent of the committee reports to be made to the Synod will be that of the Anglican committee on proposed union of ministries with the United Church of Canada. It is understood that some contentious suggestions will be put to the delegates by the committee. Discussion is scheduled for the Sept. 10 session.

Later today, a special convocation of St. John's College will be held for the conferring of the degree of Doctor of Divinity upon the Archbishop of Canterbury and Most Rev. Derwyn T. Owen, Toronto, Primate of all Canada.

In the evening a service of witness at the civic auditorium will be conducted by the Archbishop of Canterbury, and tomorrow he will speak over the national network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation at 6:30 P.M. E.D.T. (7:30 P.M. A.D.T.)

Campaign Followed Pre-invasion Plans

LONDON, Sept. 4 — (CP) — Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery said today, in an article published by the War Office as a supplement to the London Gazette, that his campaign in France following D-Day 1944, was fought "exactly as planned before the invasion."

The Chief of the Imperial Staff —now touring Canada—wrote that his delaying tactics at Caen where Canadian troops engaged in some of the bloodiest fighting of the war, were designed to draw off German reserves to the left of the Allied line while the United States 1st Army smashed through weakened enemy defences to the west.

Commenting on the article, the London Evening News called it an answer to the New York Publisher, Ralph Ingersoll, whose book, "Top Secret," criticized the British leader for delays in attacking all-out on the Allied east flank in the weeks following the June 6 invasion of Normandy.

The 20,000-word report related how "operation Overlord" was planned, describing the beachhead link-ups after the initial landings, the breakout of the Argentan Peninsula and the battles that carried the Allies across the Rhine and forced the surrender of the Third Reich, May 8, 1945.

Among actions important to the success of the Allied cause, Field Marshal Montgomery listed high the reopening of Dieppe in the late summer of 1944 by the 1st Canadian Army. The move wiped out a threatened supply shortage for the whole 21st Army group under his command at a time when reserves were dwindling and "we had both feet off the ground."

After the Seine was crossed the Anglo-Canadian forces had to maintain supply lines 400 miles long from Bayeux in Normandy to Antwerp, Belgium. The Germans had done extensive damage to bridges and railways. Hence the task of opening the Channel ports —the Canadians took Dieppe Sept. 1—was one of the most urgent ever entrusted to Gen. Crerar's troops.

His report also said the Allies achieved greater success because of "faulty strategy of the enemy."

German Panzer divisions were unable to concentrate on the invasion forces, he said, because Field Marshal Von Rundstedt, German Commander-In-Chief in the west, and Field Marshal Rommel could not agree.

"The result," Field Marshal Montgomery's dispatch declared, "was that the Panzer divisions were forced to engage us prematurely and were unable to concentrate to deliver a co-ordinated blow until it was too late."

The British leader expressed the belief that had 'reasonable weather conditions obtained," the Arnhem bridgehead, aimed to open the northern Ruhr and the north German plains by a British Airborne operation would have been established and maintained.

The battle of the Ardennes Bulge, Von Rundstedt's major effort in the drive on Belgium and to the coast, "was won primarily by the staunch fighting qualities of the American soldier," the British report declared.

Lord Montgomery paid high tribute to the 'splendid spirit of co-operation" established between the British and American services under Gen. Eisenhower.

Should Be Initial Step Toward Union

(By Shane MacKay, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

WINNIPEG, Sept. 4—(CP)—The Church of England must "make explorations," toward union of the Protestant churches, Most Rev. Derwyn T. Owen, primate of all Canada, told delegates to the 16th session of the Anglican Synod today.

Earlier in the day, lay and clerical delegates joined in a colorful procession to St. John Cathedral in North Winnipeg, where a service of Holy Communion was conducted by Most. Rev. Geoffrey Fisher, Archbishop of Canterbury. The occasion marked the first time in history an Archbishop of Canterbury has addressed a session of the Church of England Synod in Canada.

The Archbishop said the Anglican Church was "in full communion" on one side with "the old Catholic Church of Europe" and on the other with Lutheran and other European Protestant churches. No church was "a more unifying whole" and people looked to it with respect and hope.

A common communion, he said, should be the first step toward union of the churches.

"I doubt whether the search for organic union of the churches is the most helpful toward that end. We must aim for a condition in which there will be common communion, even though the autonomous parts of the churches remain. We in the Anglican Church ourselves consist of many autonomous dioceses."

Formal meetings of the Synod opened in the afternoon with a joint session of the house of bishops and the lower house.

Later, a special convocation of St. John's Anglican College, an affiliate of the University of Manitoba, conferred the degree of Doctor of Divinity (honoris causa) on both Dr. Fisher and Primate Owen.

Occasionally red snow falls in the Arctic—the coloring is caused by minute particles in the atmosphere.

Blight Noticeable In Some Sections

The prevalence of damp weather and heavy dews for the next few days — favourable conditions for the spread of the potato blight — could easily prove disastrous to the prospects of a good potato crop in the Province this year, Mr. S.G. Peppin, Chief Inspector of Seed Certification, told the Guardian last night. Already, Mr. Peppin said, the late blight has made itself noticeable in scattered sections throughout the Province, and he recommends that all potato growers redouble their efforts of control by keeping their green potato tops covered with spray material.

In the meantime, while no accurate forecast can be made at this time respecting this season's potato prices, a prominent potato dealer informed the Guardian that the proabilities are the price will not be so nigh as that of last year.

United States, the dealer said, will have this year the second highest potato crop in its history, a crop only inferior to its record-breaking one of 1943

Three local factors will also have an adverse effect on high prices, the dealer continued. Those factors are: (a) an increased acreage in the Province this year over that of last; (b) the almost-certain shortage of box and refrigerator cars; and (c) the loss to Island producers this season of the American dollar premium which those growers have enjoyed for the past few years.

Faces Serious Charge

TORONTO, Sept 4 — (CP) — Police said today that Ernest Pearch, 22, of Toronto was arrested and charged as the man who last Saturday seized a five-year-old girl by the throat, dragged her into a lane and committed criminal assault.

Hospital attendants said today the girl's condition is improved but she will not be released for 10 days.

Cites Co-operatives

"I am in favor of taking practical measures to resist that trend. I believe that one of the practical measures that can be taken by way of resisting that trend is by the encouragement of co-operative enterprise.

"Leave as much of the business and as much of the social and economic enterprise of the nation in the hands of the co-operatives as their members wish to have. Let Canada organize; let them be encouraged to organize to market their products and to produce their own supplies."

He said three objectionable features were removed from the co-operative taxation bill as a result of opposition criticism, but there still were two others as bad.

"First, new co-operatives were to be exempt from taxation for three years, but that exemption was not to become effective until January of next year," he said. "That means that any co-operative organized this year and many of them that were organized last year would have to pay taxes. We objected as strongly as we could to this time limitation, but our objections were overruled.

"Second the government said in its legislation 'whether you pay out your patronage dividends or not you will pay a corporation tax on an amount equal to three per cent of all your operating capital.' Then came the big government joker. They said 'you will not even have to pay this if you agree in advance to pay interest to your members.'

"What did this mean? It meant, as I said, that the bill was not primarily a taxation measure at all. It meant that the government was trying, by legislation, to make these organizations not co-operative enterprises, but investment enterprises. The government was trying to make them interest-paying enterprises. It was trying to transform them into the same kind of corporation that they were organized to compete against."
