NEW FILM THRILL-PACKED

Paramount's "Speed to Spare", an excitement-packed drama of the steel-nerved men who drive the huge diesel engine trailer-trucks, opens today at the Capitol Theatre with Richard Arlen and Jean Rogers co-starring.

Produced by Pine-Thomas, "Speed to Spare" is action from beginning to end. It hits a mile-a-minute pace with its opening sequence and continues its acceleration until brought to a pulse-pounding stop by its explosive climax.

The ever-popular Richard Arlen has one of the best of his crowd pleasing, two-fisted roles as a former stuntman turned truck driver. His adventurous brushes with death as he manhandles a giant cargo truck are only topped in thrills by the ultra-exciting finale in which he watches his pal die in an explosion which completely demolishes a truck.

Supporting Arlen and Miss Rogers in "Speed to Spare" are Richard Travis, funny-man Roscoe Karns, Nanette Parks and Pat Pheasant. Milton Raison wrote the authentic and powerful screenplay, and William Berke contributed an excellent directorial job to the suspense-packed film.
