The Australian Commonwealth

Four Per Cent. at Par

There has been a notable improvement in the demand for Australian securities, both on the local exchanges and abroad. When the Commonwealth Government converted Australia's internal public debt, amounting to 556 millions, issuing 4 per cent. stock in substitution of stocks bearing from 5 1/4 to 6 per cent., quotations on the Australian stock exchanges fell to 76 pounds. At the beginning of this month there were sales of the 4 per cent. up to 100 pounds 5 shillings. Towards the end of the month the sales were at par, or slightly under, with a firming tendency. There is a supply of cheap money and a greater inclination to use it for new enterprise.

Confidence

The better feeling throughout the Commonwealth is due to different causes. Political contentions have ended in the establishment of safe government in Commonwealth and States. The bountiful rains have made the countryside a spectacle of beauty and bounty, assuring seasons Australia's pastoral, agricultural and fruit growing interests have ever known. In the three main auriferous States, the high price of gold has encouraged the flotation of mining companies, and there is a consistent increase of the gold yield. Wholesale prices for wheat, wool and other rural products are still unfortunately low, although the Sydney wool sales just closed showed an advance of 20 per cent. This is the one factor standing between the country and the restoration of prosperity. But the Ottawa Conference, and an expectation that general efforts, as well as natural tendencies, must soon improve the world position, have promoted a better spirit.

The Director of Agriculture for Victoria said on August 24: "I have never seen the wheat prospects brighter at this part of the season; and my memory goes back 40 years."

Business Advances

The Bank reviews point out that the turnover of large city emporiums is higher than it was at this time last year, and that the declining tendency has been arrested. The National Bank's review says: "One helpful factor is the increasing proportion of goods of Australian manufacture which is being absorbed by the buying public. The country buying demand is strong for this quiet period of the year, and sales of galvanized iron, fencing wire and wire netting are ahead of last year's figures. Among other things, Victoria notes an increase of 108,000 in the number of daily cattle as compared with this period of last year. If an average yield equal to that of the previous season be attained in Victoria, a further 1 million pounds will be available for distribution. A still further increase in output should result from herd testing and pasture improvement."

Favorable Trade Balance

For the first half of this year the value of Australia's exports over and above the value of imports was 40 million pounds sterling, or 12 million more than for the first six months of the previous financial year. With the help of the months of last year's figures. Among other things, Victoria notes an increase of 108,000 in the number of daily cattle as compared with this period of last year. If an average yield equal to that of the previous season be attained in Victoria, a further 1 million pounds will be available for distribution. A still further increase in output should result from herd testing and pasture improvement."

moratorium on the war debt, which, in the case of Australia, suspends interest payments to the amount of 4 millions sterling a year, the trade balance will cover public obligations abroad and leave about 7 millions sterling for private interests, dividends, etc.

Expectations From Ottawa

The preferences to Dominion's rural products agreed upon by the Ottawa Imperial Conference are expected to give a stimulus to rural production and promote the type of land settlement that does not depend upon Government. The great water storages constructed on the upper Murray at a cost of several millions will bring under irrigation about 700,000 additional acres of arable land, and give a stock and domestic supply over a vast area. Owing to low world prices there has been doubt as to the best means of bringing the new irrigation areas under profitable settlement. If Australia, as it expects, secures a larger share of the British market and be assured of improved price stability, this land will be eagerly taken up for vine, citrus and other fruits, lamb-raising, dairying and baby beef. Further, the position of agriculture in general will be more encouraging.

New Field For White Men

The prospects of the Ottawa agreements developing a better Empire market for Australian beef have directed attention to the improved chances for enterprise in the Northern Territory. This great tract of land in Northern Australia, situated in the Temperate and sub-tropical zones, comprises about 520,000 square miles, or an area nearly five times as large as that of England and Scotland. A great part of the vast, and almost empty, province—a rare possession in a white man's country—is fine cattle country. Hitherto, attempts have been made to develop it for other purposes by Government officialism, which has failed. Gold has been discovered in various parts, and prospecting companies now have their representatives searching for reefs of fabulous richness said to have been discovered by prospectors who perished in the wilds.

There are already cattle stations in the Territory, including one at the Victoria River Downs, covering 20,000 square miles, held by Bovril Estates Ltd. Other stations range from 3500 to 11,000 square miles. Great sums have been spent by the Commonwealth Government in making railroads, which at present represent heavy losses. The development of the beef industry there needs capital to amount that, in its present position, Australia cannot afford. Labor difficulties are no longer a barrier, the failure of the Government as a conductor of business enterprise has been conclusively proved, and Australia would be glad to meet capital with generous concessions. Much depends upon the rate of Empire preference for beef.

Balancing the National Budget

It was estimated in May, 1931, that the Federal Budget for 1931-32 would show a deficit of 18 millions. Through the improvement in general conditions and more economical administration, the financial year closed with a surplus of 1,300,000 pounds. Had it not been for the Hoover Moratorium for war debt interest, however, there would have been a deficit of about 3 millions. The chief seasonal business for the Federal Parliament, which reassembles at the beginning of September, will consist of retrenchment measures effective enough to save a further 2 or 3 millions annually.

A reduction is to be made in the old age pension rate, which will be 15s instead of 17s 6d per week. The pension is paid to women on reaching the age of 60, and to men who reach the age of 65 (earlier if they are disabled), providing that they do not have in property a value of more than 350 pounds. It has been found that certain elderly people make over their property to their children in order to qualify for the pension, and there is considerable abuse. The law is to be made more effective, and it is possible that it may be amended to compel well-to-do people to contribute to the support of their indigent or disabled parents.

Slogans By Post

For some time past the Australian Postal Department has stamped letters passing through the post with slogans approved of by the Commonwealth Government. At Darling, said: "I firmly believe different times the letters have borne messages like these—"Grow More Wheat," "Always Ask For Australian Products," "Eat More Fruit," "Give Employment to Assist National Recovery," "Post Each Day," "Use The Air Mail," "Say it by Telephone," "Electoral yet surer in its gains, which, after

THIS doubled income would continue from the date of your death until your youngest child became 21 years of age. Then the full face value of the Policy would be paid to your heirs in cash.

If an ordinary policy for say $10,000 became a claim the income from the money, if invested at even 6%, would be only $600 a year. Under a $10,000 Double Income Policy, however, the Imperial Life would guarantee to pay $1,200 a year and this income would be paid until your youngest child became of age, and then the full $10,000 would be paid in cash.

If you survive the policy it will provide a very welcome cash fund or a desirable income for your own later years.

If you have young children you cannot do better for them or for yourself than to look into this very unusual type of policy without delay.

Responding to a Sabbatarian movement by the Council of Protestant Churches, he has decided to cancel each stamp on posted letters with the slogan—"Observe Sunday." No objection has been raised. The many thousands of Australians who indulge in Sunday motoring, golf, tennis, hiking, fishing and other pleasures feel that they are following the advice together with Sabbatarians, who are stricter.

"Miracle Woman" Emotional Drama

In the hands of an actress with the temperamental quality and histrionic genius of Barbara Stanwyck the title role of "The Miracle Woman" becomes a flaming portrait of a woman's soul tormented by love. It is a magnificent interpretation in a story that has been brought into vivid, vital life by the clever direction of Frank Capra. Shown here for the first time yesterday at the Capitol Theatre, where it remains until Wednesday, "The Miracle Woman" provides emotional stimulation. It is sheer drama, taking a sensitive young girl, smarting from an injustice, and letting her fall into the hands of a trickster who sees big money in her oratorical powers. He exploits her power—capitalizes her faith and purity. The louder her exhortations the deeper the conviction grows in her soul—that she is a hopeless sinner—and then comes a blind boy who falls in love with the beauty that she senses in her. How his love for her—his belief in her power—leads to a showdown with her manager, and her open confession that she is a sham makes "The Miracle Woman" a startling drama, and provides a spectacular fire climax. It is an adaptation of a stage play by John Meehan and Robert Riskin, splendidly acted by Miss Stanwyck, David Manners, Sam Hardy, Beryl Mercer.

Milkman: "I hope you're satisfied, madam?"
 Housewife: "Perfectly, thank you. I was told to give the baby half milk and half water, and yours is just right."

Lionel Barrymore Scores Hit In Engrossing Film

Washington, with its swirl of political intrigue, social splendor and the dramatic details of the "inside" of national political machinery, forms a spectacular background for Lionel Barrymore's newest appearance on the screen in "The Washington Masquerade." Based on "The Claw," one of the famous actor's greatest successes on the stage, the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, which is now playing at the Prince Edward Theatre, presents the actor in a truly "Barrymore-sized" role, as the senator and political power who is master of men, but nevertheless the tool of a designing woman.

Intimate details of Washington and its "inner circle" were written into the screen adaptation on which John Meehan collaborated with Samuel G. Blythe, famous Washington political writer.

Barrymore plays a Middle Western senator who becomes a senatorial leader and national power. Unable to reach him any other way, the lobbyists try a woman, employed to charm recalcitrant legislators. The senator falls in love with her, marries her, sacrifices his career and resigns from the Senate at her behest. After she turns traitor to his party, he discovers the trick that has been played on him. How he battles it out before the Senate, tearing down the structure of political manipulation in a final sensational victory forms a powerful climax.
