J.C.W.L. MEETS—The June meeting of the J.C.W.L. of St. Mary's was held on Tuesday evening, the 14th Miss Marion Conway presiding. Meeting opened with the League Prayer by the president, and a special prayer for the spiritual and temporal welfare of Her Father Ignatius MacDonald was said by the Juniors. After reports of the secretary and treasurer were read, the business of the meeting was attended to. Money for prizes was voted for St. Mary's Convent, St. Joseph's High School, and the Boys' Catholic Club. Since the party sale held some time ago at the store of the J.J. Hughes Co. by the Juniors was such a success, it was decided to hold a similar party. The Juniors thank all the members of the Senior League and others who helped to make the other sale successful. As there are no regular meetings during July and August, activities for those months were discussed. An Ice Cream Festival was suggested, and plans were left until later. A chapter of the "Life of St. Stanislaus Coste" was read and the meeting closed with the singing of "Mother Dear O Pray for Me."

Second Chance

"I'm beginning to wonder."
"You came to Messrs. Murray Brothers from a financial corporation—from, in short, a bank, I believe?"
"Yes."
"Would you have hidden similar irregularity on the part of a colleague in the bank?"
"In similar circumstances I think about it."
"You think you would?"
"Yes. Both Foskett and Trevitt are married men with young children."
"And you think that the fact that a man has children—even young children—justifies him in robbing his employer?"
"You twist everything I say!"
"Answer the question!" His lordship ordered.
"No, I don't. But if such a man has acted foolishly one hesitates to do anything which would ruin him if there is a chance of his saving himself."
"If the position had been reversed, would these men have risked their position and livelihood to save you?"
"I don't know."
"You were in a position of trust."
"Yes."
"And you betrayed that trust?"
"It was a case of conflicting loyalties. Loyalty to my employer and to the men I was working with."
"You falsified your accounts?"
"Yes."
"That is—you betrayed your trust?"
"To that extent, yes."
"You heard what Mr. Thomas, the accountant, who gave evidence yesterday, said?"
"Yes."
"You do not contest his evidence?"
"No. It was true."
"When he pointed out the irregularity in the first place did you lie to him?"
"I had to attempt to bluff him."
"Again out of the kindness of your heart?"
"What do you mean?"
"By that time I was in the mess as well."
"Exactly."
And, at this point Mr. Jerome, according to the "Daily Courier" account "resumed his seat."

Twice Mary Donovan read that cross-examination. She could understand exactly what he wanted through, understand that the motives behind his conduct were just what he had said they were. And they had sent him to prison for it!
The page in front of her dimmed for there were tears in her eyes.

Bess—Certainly. Why right now my wife is thinking of the things she is going to say to me for getting home late—and so am I.

Difficulties Foreseen In Administration Of Act.

OTTAWA, June 15—(CP)—The operations of the new Dominion Housing Act were studied this afternoon in committee of the House of Commons.

The bill, designed to increase the amount of money available for loans on privately built houses, to encourage housing loans in small communities and on low cost houses and to enable municipalities and corporations to borrow up to $50,000,000 from the Government for low-cost low-rental housing schemes, received second reading without debate.

"The present Dominion Housing Act has its enemies today," said Mr. Dunning. "The new Housing Act will have its enemies, self-interested enemies."
This comment was provoked when Gordon Innes (Lab. Halifax) mentioned the difficulties which had arisen in Halifax as a result of houses built on loans under the act not coming up to specifications.

Mr. Dunning said that was a matter of contract between the owner, the lending institution and the builder. Both the owner and the lending institution were on the spot and interested in seeing the builder fulfilled his contract and conforming to specifications. He called to see whether the government should be called in to settle disputes between them and compel the party to fulfil his contract.

Mr. Innes thought there was some obligation on the government to supervise building operations and see that specifications were complied with.

The measure, said Mr. Dunning, was not designed to "usher in a millennium." It was a serious attack on the housing problem and on one phase of the problem of unemployment.

Foresees Difficulties
Conservative leader Bennett told the House he believed some parts of the measure were unworkable but up to the time the House turned to other business he had not specified what objections he would raise.

He found difficulty with a section which limits loans under the act to cases where the borrower borrows not less than 70 per cent of the value of his house. This, he thought, would have the effect of forcing a man to borrow more than he needed in order to obtain the benefits of the act.

Mr. Dunning agreed to reconsider the section but said the whole object of the bill was to help builders who had little money, not those who had substantial amounts. He thought a man who needed less than 70 per cent of his house could obtain his loan without governmental aid.

The difficulty was in fixing the limit rigidly at 70 per cent, Mr. Bennett. It would be better if a margin were allowed for discretion.

J. J. Kinley (Lab. Queens-Lunenburg) thought if the limit were reduced to 60 per cent it would induce loan companies to finance building in rural areas. They would have a larger margin of security. Mr. Dunning disagreed and said other sections of the bill were designed to accomplish this purpose.

Nothing was inserted in the bill to control prices or prevent a rise in the cost of building materials, said Mr. Bennett. In answer to D. A. McNiven (Lab. Regina) who feared a rise in costs would destroy the bill, he said materials advanced 30 per cent following the inauguration of the home improvement plan.

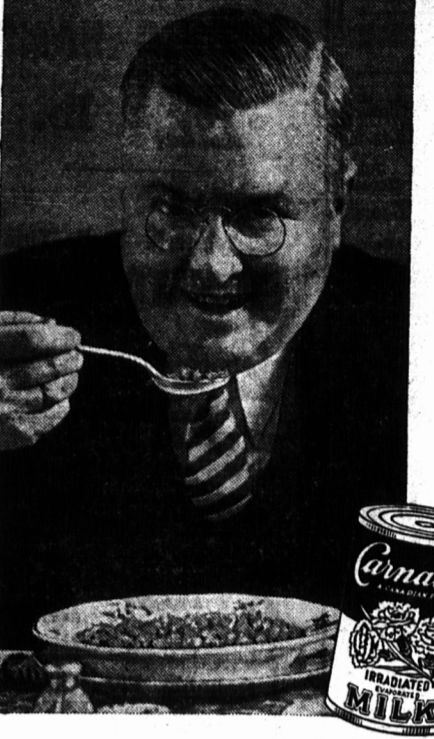

The minister did not know if this was the case but reminded the House the Combines Investigation Act and other laws were enacted to check undue price advances and profiteering abuses.

The success of the measure depended on the co-operation of the building industry. Judging by the message he had already received from representatives of both capital and labor in the industry he was confident the industry and the public were ready to cooperate.

The government, he told Denton Massey (Con. Toronto-Greenwood) had obtained all the information available on pre-fabricated houses and intended to follow up all developments in this field. There was some question as to how far such houses would meet Canadian climatic conditions.

But, he added, "some people do not welcome changes in technique which involve pre-fabrication."

IN MEMORIAM

MR. WILLIAM AUSTIN CARRIER

Mr. William Austin Carrier passed away in Somerville, Mass., on May 26th after a trying and very painful illness borne with true Christian patience to God's will. Being a native of Prince Edward Island, deceased was born in Cherry Valley in 1860, being 77 years old. Son of the late John Carrier and Margaret McLaren Carrier he was for over 40 years one of the best known building contractors of East Boston and went to Somerville, Mass., in 1925. Since then he has been retired. He leaves to cherish his memory a sorrowing widow and the following daughters: Mrs. Lillian Martin, Cleveland, Ohio; Mrs. Gertrude Pendergast, Mrs. Margaret Chisholm, Mrs. Marion Belgerne and Mrs. Irene Bolster. Burial was in North Attleboro, Mass. He was honored by a police escort that led the funeral procession to his final resting place.

Face Broke Out In Large, Red Pimples

Many an otherwise beautiful and attractive face; many a cheek and brow in the mould of beauty, have been sadly defaced, their attractiveness lost by the presence of skin eruptions.

Pimples are caused by the blood being in an impure condition, and are a source of embarrassment, and many of those so afflicted are ashamed to go out in company.
Burdock Blood Bitters drives out the impurities from the blood, and leaves the complexion clear, smooth and healthy.
Miss FAYELLA TRIDDY, Ivanhoe, Ont., writes: "Last spring my face and back began breaking out in large, red pimples.
It was very embarrassing for me to go out in company, and people began to avoid me.
I tried several kinds of blood purifiers, but none of them seemed to help me. I heard of Burdock Blood Bitters. I took three bottles, and my friends wondered where all the pimples had disappeared to."
