Jewellery Raids Are Frequent

LONDON, Eng. Sept. 13.—A large smash-and-grab raid on the premises of Messrs. A. Marx and Co., jewellers, of St. James' street, was foisted recently. A thief impersonated the staff by securing the handle of the door with a rope before smashing the glass-protected window. The hammer he used became embedded in the plate glass, and prevented him from snatching a diamond necklace valued at £2,200. The staff succeeded in freeing the thief and the handiwork of with his spool. He was chased, but escaped. The raid, which occurred soon after noon, was the second to be made on the shop during twelve months.

5700 Rings Stolen

A motor handi recently stole a quantity of diamond rings valued at £5,700 from the premises of Messrs. Thompson, jewellers of Fulham road. The hurried exit of the man was noticed by a tradesman close by, who immediately jumped into his trade motor car and forced the thief. Eventually he forced the handi's car to the curb. Two men jumped out and ran away. A man was subsequently detained and was taken to the police station, where he was charged. A search was made for the stolen property along the route, and subsequently 13 of the rings were recovered.

Some men think they have an inferiority complex, when, as a matter of fact, they're just inferior.

Beach Pajamas Hit City Revenue

VANCOUVER, Sept. 13.—Beach pajamas are costing the city of Vancouver big money. Their wearers do not have to use the bath-houses provided for the park-board at the bathing beaches. Pajamas and the growing practice of dressing and undressing in parked cars are blamed for the loss of close to $10,000 in bath house revenue during August, reported Superintendent W. R. Rawlings to the park board. Mr. Rawlings drew the board's attention to the fact that in some cities motorists are forbidden to use the city's free parking space for purposes of dressing and undressing.

$5,000 HIDDEN IN CUSHION

PARIS, Sept. 14.—Over $5,000 fell from inside a cushion which was being used in a game of toss during a slack hour in a Paris auction gallery.

The cushion belonged to an old lady, on whose death it had been sent with her other household goods to the auction rooms. It was a dull day and the few present became bored with the uninteresting articles up for sale. Someone started a pillow fight but the old cushion being better days, and, unused to such strenuous handling, burst and disgorged a mass of bank notes.

As the old lady had no heir, the money will go to the state.

SALADA REPRESENTATIVE—Mr. R. C. Wall, special representative of the Salada Tea Company of Canada, was a visitor here this week. He intended remaining over the weekend but got an urgent call to go to Halifax, leaving by the S. S. Hochelaga yesterday for Pictou, where he will be met by automobile and driven to Halifax. Mr. Wall says Salada is steadily holding its own in public esteem, notwithstanding keen competition. It is the oldest package tea in Canada, the business having been started by the late Hon. P. C. Larkin 40 years ago, and is now controlled by his son with the managers of the branches at Toronto, Montreal, and Boston as directors. Continuity of quality was the object Mr. Larkin had in establishing package tea, and this is still the watchword of the company, which now has a business covering Canada, United States and Great Britain and her colonies.

Famous Actor Must Have Sleep

LONDON, Eng. Sept. 13.—The heat is affecting people in different ways.

Miss Alice Delys, the famous French actress, whose bubbling sophistication charms London, has been obliged to cancel a film contract of £100 a day for 12 days because she could not wake up!

"I was so disappointed," she said recently, "but the secret of my vitality is sleep. I cannot work unless I sleep."

The Gaumont Company, realizing this, made concessions to help me. I was to come to the studio at 11 in the morning, instead of the regulation nine o'clock, and leave at five in the afternoon, so that I would not be too tired for my evening performance at the theatre.

"My maid called me at 10 o'clock. It was no use. At 11 o'clock the studio telephoned, but the ring was just mixed in my dreams. At five o'clock I woke ready for work, refreshed. It was too late. All day the people had been waiting on the set. I tell Gaumont I am very sorry but what use am I to them without sleep?"

"They are business men, they understand perfectly. We have agreed to wash out the film and make another after the run of the play."

"Every natural woman sleeps in the heat, I am a natural woman, and how can I play at night and film by day, and do justice to my work, if first I do not sleep?"

Radium In North Urged By Doctors

SAULT STE MARIE, Ont., Sept. 14.—The belief that the department of health's cancer policy should be revised by Hon. Dr. J. M. Robb to provide some means of establishing radium centres in strategic points in the north country is urged by Dr. A. Sinclair and other physicians of the city.

"I think that we should have one at Sault Ste. Marie, one at the lakehead, to serve the northwestern part of the province, and one in the T. and N.O. district to serve that area," said Dr. Sinclair.

"Many people who suffer from cancer," he proceeded, "come from the backwoods. They are not able to travel alone because of lack of experience in travelling. Some have no the clothes they think they require. It is sometimes difficult for them to stay away from home for any length of time, and some have not the money to pay for transportation to large centres."

"I think that in two months an experienced surgeon, with reasonable surgical judgment, can become adept in the use of radium, especially if he has had previous experience in the use of the X-ray. I think that the suggested five-year preparatory course in the use of radium is altogether unnecessary as a preliminary training."

Urges Economy In Municipal Expenditures

HALIFAX, Sept. 14.—(By The Canadian Press)—Municipal expenditure in Canada is increasing at a rate faster than the growth of population and the only effective remedy is rational budgetary control, according to Horace L. Britain, director of the Citizen's Research Institute of Canada, who addressed the Canadian Chamber of Commerce at its annual convention in Halifax today.

The amount of deficits and tax arrears is still on the upgrade but once the tax has been levied it is of little avail to protest against it, such has been the case in numerous municipalities in the United States, where recent "tax strikes" against the harsh rule of "King Demos" have been much more violent than the historically famous Boston Tea Party directed against King George, said Mr. Britain.

"A tax is a fait accompli. To refuse to pay it is to invite additional penalties," he said. Taxes are levied to meet expenditures and when a debt once has been incurred it must be paid. Whether or not people are called upon to pay taxes directly, they pay taxes so long as they purchase goods, employ services or occupy premises. In order to end the present excessive expenditure it is necessary to check increased demands for governmental services at their root.

While business concerns and families have been forced to reduce their budgets, there has been laxity in the control of public disbursements, said Mr. Britain.

Municipal taxation in Canada went up from $226,221,285 in 1913 to $668,752,371 in 1930, he continued. Estimated expenditure increased during the same period from about $293,000,000 to $466,000,000 almost half the total current expenditure of the country—Dominion, Provincial and Municipal. Mr. Britain estimated that current outlays of the municipalities in 1932 would probably be more than $1,000,000,000.

If effective budgetary control is to be achieved two fundamental questions must be answered: On what services and how does the municipality spend money? In what amount and how does it raise the money? Government, according to Mr. Britain, exists primarily "to protect persons and property." The tasks of modern local governments are the administration of justice, policing, fire protection, building and other inspection, maintenance of means of communication, such as roads, streets etc. Moreover, it is the function of the municipal government to provide for schools, public health, and what has lately come into the foreground, relief. In recent years municipalities have also entered the business field through ownership and administration of public utilities, such as waterworks, power plants, street railways, etc.

The field of administration is a wide one and close scrutiny of disbursements is a sine qua non, if the expenditure shall not get out of hand, said Mr. Britain. There are now 125,000 persons out of a total population of 10,000,000 employed in policy forming bodies in local governments. This number should, in the opinion of Mr. Britain, be cut down. He moreover recommends standardizing of accounting systems in all municipalities and centralization of accounting in each unit. He also suggests that the number of municipalities should be reduced as has been done effectively in some western provinces. Capital expenditures should be budgeted for five or ten years to avoid planlessness and insufficient consideration of the capacity to pay. Frequent audits by independent bodies should be held, concluded Mr. Britain.

Clue To Mystery Of Lime Likely

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Sept. 14.—The possibility that the radio active processes of radium and uranium may hold a clue to the mystery of time was suggested to a gathering of eminent astronomers here by Abbe George Lemaitre, of Belgium, whose theoretical contributions to the idea of an expanding universe have attracted wide scientific interest.

Abbe Lemaitre presented his views before a forum at the Harvard Observatory. Thirty of the world's foremost students of nebulae were invited by Dr. Harlow Shapley, director of the observatory to remain after the close Friday of the triennial congress of the International Astronomical Union for the forum.

Abbe Lemaitre told the group that radium and uranium might be merely fragments of a greater force that caused the formation of the universe. The universe, he believed, was the product of the explosive disintegration of a world atom which in the beginning occupied a comparatively small amount of space.

As it broke up, he said, the nebulae were formed and from these arose the various galaxies. As this occurred, the speed of matter increased and the galaxies began their long journey into space. From this, he argued, space must be elliptical in nature.

No Speedometers In London Taxis

LONDON, Eng. Sept. 13.—Dangerous economy was severely criticized by Mr. Wyatt Paine, the East Ham magistrate, when it was stated during the hearing of a motoring case that speedometers are not fixed to royal mail vans.

"We are in just the same position," said Mr. C. Wayne, a London taxicab driver. "No taxicab is allowed a speedometer either. The idea of Scotland Yard is that everything should be brought down to essentials."

Mr. Wayne revealed that taxicabs are not allowed "advance or retard" on their steering wheel, or an air choke. All taxicabs must have fixed control on magneto and air.

"Until recently cab drivers were not permitted windcreens," he said. "We complained, and were allowed half a screen," said Mr. Wayne, "and just recently we have won a real one. I would not be allowed to use any but a regulation horn on my cab, and, strictly speaking, I ought to apply to the 'Yard' for permission to use a mascot."

Farmers Taking A Cheerier View

OTTAWA, Sept. 13.—In the course of frequent interviews with farmers seeking help, Rae Halliday, superintendent of the Ontario Government Employment Bureau here, stated today he had found the farmers taking a different and more optimistic view of the future than for the past two years.

Things were also looking much better from the employing standpoint, Mr. Halliday said. There has been an increased call for men for the harvesting operations, more so than last year.

In addition to there was considerable casual work presenting itself, for half-days and for one and two days a week. Some good positions were also available, the bureau having requests now for two experienced men, one as superintendent of a shoe factory at $60 a week and the other as foreman in the same factory at $45 a week.

A friend dropped in to see a picture by the great animal painter. The animal painter took some raw meat and rubbed it over a painted rabbit in the foreground.

"Why do you do that?" asked his friend.

"Why, you see," explained the artist, "a rich woman is coming to look at this picture today. When she sees her pet poodle rush up to the canvas and smell the rabbit, she'll get excited and buy it right away."

MURRAY-ACKLAND WEDDING

A wedding of unusual attraction took place at Hampshire on September 10th, when Grace Elizabeth, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Ackland was united in marriage to Pomroy Edward Murray.

The harmonious music of the wedding march, played by Miss Annie Watson (cousin of the bride) cast a delightful spell around the charming bride as she descended the flower decked stairway leaning on her father's arm.

The bride's gown, a silk bag sash of icewhite in silhouette design was ornamented with a tiny collar of silk lace at the front, which widened at the back to form a petal collar reaching almost to the waistline. Perfecting the costume were the circles of orange blossoms, which held in graceful line a sheer veil of embroidered tulle, and the exquisite bouquet of pink and white asters, and maiden hair fern, the pearl necklace, long length white gloves, and white pumps were pleasing accessories.

Attending the bride was her sister, Hilda Ruth, who was attractive in a gown of mist tinted chiffon with blue green and yellow motifs, and a cloisefitting yellow taffeta jacket with bouffant sleeves. She carried a lovely bouquet of blue larkspur.

The groom was attended by Mr. Emerson Murray of Fredericton. At precisely 12 o'clock noon, the impressive ceremony was performed by Rev. J. G. Wakeling. Surrounded by a golden halo of flowers which served to enhance the picture the bride, groom, bridesmaid, groomsman, stood while the felicitations were extended.

Immediately after the ceremony a magnificent wedding banquet was served to over fifty guests.

A short time after the bride appeared in her travelling costume—a beige brown tailored suit with accessories in deeper shades of the same color.

The bride is a graduate of Prince of Wales College, and Acadia University, and for some years has successfully engaged in the teaching profession on Prince Edward Island.

The groom is a trustworthy employee of the C. N. R. at Bradabane near his picturesque home where he and his bride will reside.

Mr. and Mrs. Murray left on a lengthy honeymoon trip. They will voyage to Europe, and while there they plan to visit places of interest in England, Scotland, France, Switzerland and Italy.

Their many friends wish them "bon voyage" for their trip to Europe, and more especially for their journey through life.

World's Largest X-Ray Tube Ready

PASEADENA, Cal., Sept. 15.—After weeks of careful tests on rodents the world's largest X-ray tube has been gradually stepped up until 1,000,000 volts rays are being used to treat a group of cancer patients. It was disclosed today.

Experiments with the 30 foot tube at the California Institute of Technology have been conducted with considerable secrecy.

Dr. Charles C. Lauritzen, designer of this and the 600,000-volt tube which has been in use for some time, and Dr. Seely G. Mudd, in direct charge of treatments, have explained they do not want to arouse false hopes.

It is too early, Dr. Lauritzen said to comment on the effect of the treatment.
