Soccer Comes To Northland

(Canadian Press) PRINCE ALBERT, Sask., July 31—Montreal Lake Indians, in the far reaches of northern Saskatchewan have joined the sporting public. When an airplane brought them their treaty money from the Dominion government this month, it also brought a brand new football. Then the braves had some real fun. Rules don't mean a thing to these dusky footballers and before the tom-toms signalled the end of the soccer battle the whole tribe had had a go at the new ball. After the battle they staged a treaty dance and feast reminiscent of the old pagan ceremonies during which the braves showed visitors how food should be really tucked away. Montreal Lake is 80 miles north of Prince Albert.

Sheep Identification Is Now Necessary

The new system of sheep identification for registration under the Pedigree Act allows the choice of two methods, namely, by tattooing or by ear-tagging. According to the regulations, all lambs must be identified prior to September 1st of the year of birth by tattoo-marking or by ear-tagging. If the breeder decides upon the system of tattoo-marking he must tattoo in the right ear of the lamb the letters allotted him by the Canadian National Live Stock Records, Ottawa, and in the left ear the flock number followed by a designating-year letter.

If the tagging method is chosen, tags must be ordered through the Canadian National Live Stock Records. These tags are placed in the right ear of the lamb and show the letters allotted to the breeder by the Canadian National Live Stock Records, and the flock number, followed by a letter naming the year. As soon as each lamb is identified by tattooing or by tagging, a record of identification must be entered in the private flock record of the breeder.

Differences between the old and new regulations may be said to lie in the fact that under the old system a breeder purchased his own tags stamped with a name or letter of his own choosing. This method has been discontinued, and in future the Canadian National Live Stock Records tags will not be issued commencing January 1, 1935, only one tag will be used for each lamb born in 1935 and subsequent years. Animals born in 1935, or previously, may still be registered bearing the tags that were placed in their ears.

Under the new system, a breeder must apply to the Canadian National Live Stock Records for letters for his exclusive use to identify "sheep lamed by property," as the regulations state. As adopted by the Canadian Sheep Breeders' Association, the letter "N" will signify that the animal was born in 1935; the letter "P" that the year of birth was 1936, and the letter "Q" "O" and "Q" are not used as year letters. All tags must be ordered through the Canadian Live Stock Records, Ottawa.

Suggest Great Britain Return Land To U.S.A.

(WASHINGTON, July 30—(A.P.)—Suggestions that Great Britain return to the United States land ceded to her in the Alaskan boundary dispute as well as a strip of Canada along the St. Lawrence as credits on her war debt were made in the Senate today by Senator Lewis (D-Ill.). He also proposed that France, in part payment of her obligations to this country, give the United States part of the Island of Martinique in the West Indies.

The suggestions were made by the Illinois Senator in commenting on British press accounts objecting to his original proposal that Britain turn over to this country several of its possessions in the West Indies.

Not only as our most efficient Secretary for three years. You always helped out with programs, and in every way you could. We want you to accept this gift as a token of our regard and as a reminder of the many happy hours we spent together. We hope that the Lord will bless you wherever your lot may be cast in the future.

Signed in behalf of the Cable Head West W. Institute. Laura Simons, President; Mrs. Billy McLaren, Secty.-Treasurer. (Patriot please copy).

WOULD LIKE TWINS TO BECOME "PUGS"

(By The Canadian Press) NEW YORK, July 29—Out from the steamy flats of the lower East Side, 100 resolute mothers strode forth one day recently with children in their arms and the light of determination in their eyes. They were off to a 1935 version of the Judgment of Paris, says the Herald-Tribune.

In this case Mount Ida was situated at 197 East Broadway on the roof of the Educational Alliance, a neighborhood settlement. The golden apple, dedicated to the most transcendent infantile beauty of lower Manhattan, was a cinnamon brown teddy bear with magenta colored paws. And Paris was represented by two competent judges of incipient pulchritude named Zeta, Elsie and Cedric Dabot. The audience consisted of 300 children, over four years of age.

When it was all over, the torch of beauty was adjusted to have flamed most brightly over the heads of the Mandell twins, 11 months and one week old, fair-haired and dark-eyed, amiable and robust. The decision was a popular one. Each time they had appeared upon the judgment stand, their unstable legs (supported by the arms of their adoring mother and redoubtable father, the onlookers emitted ecstatic cries of approval.

The twins' father, Edward Mandell (unemployed, exploded like a Roman candle when his offspring claimed the prize. "Da winners," he shouted, and sent forth a piercing crescendo of whistles from between his two forefingers, skillfully interlaced in his lips.

"I begrudge myself," he roared, when some one asked a little tactlessly how he had reared two such beautiful children. "I begrudge myself to make 'em dat way. I give 'em nuttin' but Grade A milk and a special kinda baby food. I begrudge myself to give 'em nuttin' but de best."

"What would you like them to be when they grow up?" "I would like to see 'em become 'pugs,'" he shouted with a hesitation. "I was a pro at one time." The third prize winner appeared to be the loveliest child in the contest. Both her father and mother are hunchbacks less than five feet tall, but she is of normal height and perfect physique.

She bowed slightly in acknowledgement of the applause each time her mother gave her a punch in the stomach.

Vancouver Girls Circling World

(Canadian Press) VANCOUVER, July 31—The new British freighter S. S. Harmatris is beating her way down the Pacific to Sidney, N. S. W., with a full cargo of lumber and two young Vancouver women in the crew.

Clara M. Wilson, a school teacher, and her sister, Katharine, a stenographer, signed on as members of the crew for the first stretch of their "go as you can" trip around the world.

The two propose to circle the world within the next year. Assured of reaching Sidney they hope to catch a boat to India or the west coast of Australia. They plan to travel to South Africa then and proceed up the east coast of Africa.

The girls said before they sailed they would like to visit Ethiopia and see just what the trouble was all about. Travelling through Europe and England they will return home by New York and Montreal.

Fruit Prospects

Fruit crops in Prince Edward Island are developing well with temperatures and moisture conditions satisfactory. Orchards are still suffering from damage traceable to the severe winter of 1933-34. Prospects in Nova Scotia continue satisfactory. There is a heavy set of apples in areas where early frosts damaged buds last year, while in other areas the set is not as heavy as anticipated. Cherry production prospects are mixed. Conditions are still satisfactory in New Brunswick with a substantial increase in apple production indicated over last year.

Quebec reports better prospects than in the previous year. In Western Ontario apples are sizing up well. There has been a considerable drop in Spys and Greenings. Cherry production shows an increase of from 20 to 25 p.c. over last year. Most varieties of peaches promise a very heavy crop, and grape vines are making excellent growth. Raspberries are now coming on the market and yield about 35 p.c. greater than last year. Apple scab is quite prevalent on foliage and fruit in many orchards in Eastern Ontario. Early varieties promise a good crop, perhaps 20 to 25 p.c. heavier. It is doubtful if there will be as great a yield of the late varieties as there was last year. Starks and Ben Davis show a heavy decrease. The light crop of late apples is due to many weak trees that suffered injury from the severe winters of 1933 and 1934.

The fruit season is now well advanced in British Columbia. Small fruits have yielded well. The production of peaches and apricots will be lower. Pear yield is expected to be somewhat higher. The apple crop gives promise of a yield practically as large as that of last year.

HIGH LIGHTS IN EGG LAYING CONTEST

Production in the egg laying contests conducted by the Dominion Department of Agriculture on the Experimental Farms throughout Canada continue to go ahead at a rapid rate. Reports for the 36th week reveal a number of interesting points as to leading pens and birds.

The New Brunswick Contest at Fredericton has the leading pen of Barred Plymouth Rocks in the Canadian B.C. They have to their credit 2119.3 points for 1849 eggs. Another pen in the British Columbia Contest holds third place for W. Whiting of Fort Kell, B.C. They are White Leghorns and have a score of 2055.8 points for 1919 eggs. Fifth place also goes to British Columbia Contest with a score of 2013.1 points for 1798 eggs, the birds being owned by F. C. Evans of Abbotsford, B.C. The fourth place goes to the Nova Scotia Southern Contest at Kenville.

These birds are White Leghorns owned by C. and M. Ellis of Port Williams, N.S., and have a score of 2016.3 points for 1949 eggs. For numbers of eggs produced this is the leading pen throughout Canada at the end of the 36th week. The sixth position for pens goes to the Manitoba Contest at Brandon, the points being 1984.7 for 1727 eggs. These birds are Barred Plymouth Rocks and are owned by Mrs. W. Allen of Erskdale, Manitoba. Seventh position is held by a pen of White Leghorns in the Vancouver Island Contest at Saanichton. They are owned by J. Smyth, Nanaimo, B.C., and have scored 1849.7 points for 1795 eggs. Eighth place is held by a pen of White Leghorns in the Canadian Contest at Ottawa, owned by G. S. Taylor of Bloomfield, Ontario, with 1943.2 points for 1817 eggs.

ONCE AGAIN DUNLOP MAKES TIRE HISTORY

Pneumatic Tire Progress Written in Dunlop Research and Development. Now Comes DUNLOP'S "Latest and Greatest Tire"

Since 1888, when John Boyd Dunlop invented the pneumatic tire, the story of tire development has been the story of further Dunlop research and improvement in tire construction. Tire mileage has steadily gone up from thousands to tens of thousands; possibilities of tire failures have been enormously decreased, dependability has been raised amazingly; cost per tire mile has been reduced to a fraction of what it once was—largely because of never-ceasing scientific research carried on in the world-wide, inter-related chain of Dunlop laboratories.

Now, from this unremitting search after better materials, better processes, better machinery, the technique of production generally, comes a range of Dunlop tires led by the latest and greatest, the Dunlop Fort '90'. Into Dunlop Cable Cord tires is built a stamina that would amaze tire builders of but a few years ago. A rugged, wear-defying strength that rolls over the miles without a hint of trouble. A road grip that endures over an astonishing life. A dependability to match the dependability of the modern car. A strength equal to the most punishing get-aways, the highest sustained speeds and the most sudden stops.

This Dunlop range of tires meets every need. Each one, in each price class, is the finest value Dunlop skill and experience has ever offered you. Whatever your tire needs, your Dunlop dealer is equipped to meet them to your best advantage.

DUNLOP Standard "90" Built for the motorist who wants a dependable tire at a moderate price. The "FACE MAKER" is the best-balanced and most serviceable second-line Dunlop tire ever built.

DUNLOP "Pneumatic" Built for the motorist who wants a moderate price. Record long mileage—Record low price.

DUNLOP "Record" A third line tire that gives: Record high mileage—Record low price.

Dunlop is the only rubber company that has ever successfully built tires to withstand the grueling punishment given them by Sir Malcolm Campbell's Bluebird.

wed marriages got tangled up. So great was the rush of people to get married that scarcely an hour was allowed for each ceremony. One bride was a little late but arriving at the church made her way to the altar in the customary manner. She took the hand of the groom and then confusion reigned. It was the wrong man. The bride was so far behind schedule she slipped into the next wedding on the list.

Strength Of Hercules

Hercules was one of the heroes of the ancient Greeks, who chose him as the patron of strength. When Hercules was young he roused the jealousy of the King of Argolis into whose power the gods placed him for 12 years of service. During these 12 years old King sent Hercules 12 tasks, all of which he carried out. This was one of his tasks.

A lion, which came out from the forest from time to time and killed the inhabitants of the neighboring villages, was terrifying the people of a district of Argolis. Hercules was a remarkably powerful man, and no one dared attack it, and no sword or arrow could pierce its skin. Hercules seized the lion in his powerful arms and forced it on its back. Then he knelt upon it and strangled it with his hands. The hero removed its invulnerable skin and wore it ever after round his own shoulders.
