IRISHTOWN Y.P.C.—On Wednesday evening, January 10, an enthusiastic group of young people of the Irishtown School district met in the school to organize a Young People's Club.

ROMA MACLEOD occupied the chair and the moving occurred. It was the most serious effort to remember Finland resulted in a disastrous Red defeat, is not really a front.

There are no well-established battle lines and the fighting is of the guerrilla type.

It is a war of hand-to-hand fighting between men on skis who are ambushed by surprise and vanish in a war amidst snow, silent forests and deadly cold. It is a war of contrast.

The weather and the terrain have almost reduced locomotion to skis, but now and then Finland's ski raiders, who again and again have struck at the Russian supply line, the Murmansk railway, have co-ordinated their lightning raids with attacks by modern Finnish planes further south.

The Finns dart into Soviet territory, but meet a friendly welcome from neutral Canadians who are reported to be in the Finns.

Right in the war zone there are contrasts of peaceful nature and peaceful human pursuits.

It might not be far from the fighting zone, but headlights pick up a boy moving slowly along a country road on a bicycle. Reindeer glide across the road.

A woman opens the door of a two-room farmhouse and welcomes us for the noontime halt. With a smile she ushers the party into her bedroom, walled with timber cut from the woods outside and chunked with moss.

The kitchen-living room, the hostess serves coffee while chatting with a dozen members of the ambulance corps who have stopped to get warm. Her husband is one of the ski raiders.

Taking their lesson from the Lapps, the correspondents kick off their reindeer boots, ski or felt shoes and remove their dressing socks and inner wool one to be dried before the fire. Warm feet are the biggest problem in covering the war.

It takes 40 hours to tour the front by automobile. This includes 24 hours of actual driving and four or five hours sleep at farmhouses or field hospitals.

The forests are broken only by lakes which are frozen solidly. Occasionally there is a general store where you can buy tobacco, clothing and dynamite for lumberjacks.

The efficient Finns quickly clear their main roads with snowplows after every storm. At every army outpost, Finnish women at the "Lotta" auxiliary corps handle field kitchens while the men fight.

Main headlines in the correspondents is a modern hotel, one floor of which is used as a military hospital.

BORDEN SCHOOL CONCERT

The annual Christmas concert of Borden School was held in the hall on Thursday evening, Dec. 21st.

The hall which was fittingly decorated for the occasion by Mr. Lorne McAleer was filled to capacity and a neat sum was realized.

Mr. Reg. Rodgers capably acted as chairman and instrumental music was furnished by the Borden Orchestra.

A special feature of the program was a three-act playette, "The Sleeping Princess," in which the fair tale of the Sleeping Princess was acted out in splendid reality, the costumes being very colorful and appropriate.

The comedy feature of the evening was a Minstrel Show by Grades VII and VIII which included many old favourite ducky songs.

At the close of the program an address was read by Lorraine Richards and gifts were presented to the teachers, Mr. Thomas Johnson, Miss Amelia MacDonald, Mrs. Donald McPherson and Miss Tessie MacNeill.

Mr. Johnson, Principal, made a fitting reply in which he thanked the pupils both for their gifts and their splendid co-operation in making the concert a success.

Following is the program: Recitation, Welcome by Lorna McAleer.

Dialogue, City Cousins by Grade V.

Exercise, Mechanical Dolls by Primary pupils.

Pageant, Santa's Helpers, Grades VII and VIII.

Dialogue, The Spelling Class, Grade VI.

Drill, Red Riding Hood, Grades IV and V.

Correspondent Describes Front In Finland

WITH THE FINNISH ARMY ON THE LAKE KIANTA FRONT

Jan. 12 (AP)—This war front, where the Russian most serious effort to remember Finland resulted in a disastrous Red defeat, is not really a front.
