When the Communists first drew up their forces before the front, there were about 25,000 of them massed in one part of Avenue Wagram and 8,000 in another. Shouting "Les Soviets partout!" the crowd seized the broken bits of the barricade and used them as clubs, until police rallied along a line of mobile guard trucks.

Several photographers were injured in the melee, Jean Jacques Levy, Associated Press photographer, returned to his office with blood on his shirt and welts across his back from blows by police.

Claims Gov't Offer Below Market Prices

HALIFAX, Oct. 28 — (CP) — The Atlantic fishing industry has not supplied $3,320,000 worth of canned, salted and pickled fish under Canada's post-UNRRA relief feeding program abroad because the Government's offers have not been up to the market price," fish wholesalers said today.

Commenting on the announcement made last night in Ottawa by Stewart Bates, Deputy Minister of Fisheries, that East Coast fisheries had delivered only $215,000 worth of fish, dealers said Government offers were not a matter of niggardliness. The Government had deliberately underbid the prevailing price to prevent the upsetting of markets and the loss of old, regular customers for the long-established companies.

Mr. Bates, announcing that the close-off date for purchases had been extended, did not mention prices paid for the fish on the East and West Coasts. Wholesalers said they now expected the Government to offer the market price and if that failed to attract the necessary quantity it would requisition a quota of the supply. The supply might be obtained from operators who had entered the business since the war and older companies would be allowed to continue to supply their clients.

The Government had been offering $1 per hundredweight less for dry salt cod than the prevailing price and $2 less per barrel for pickled cod.

DRY WEATHER

threat of a lack of water. J.G. Bouchard, chairman of the New Brunswick Power Commission, told City Council last night that unless there were heavy rains in the near future production of electrical energy would be cut by one third. In the Moncton area electricity consumption is 6,000 kilowatts. The contracted load for Moncton is 3,500 kilowatts, an amount that has been exceeded since 1944.

Mr. Bouchard in a letter to the Moncton Electricity and Gas Company said the firm would do well to urge the public to use electricity as a replacement for natural gas as gas also was in short supply.

City Council suggested it might be possible to find another source of power and Canada Electric Company at Macan, N.S., was mentioned.

The water supply has dropped 41,000,000 gallons to 511,000,000 in the last 10 days and the public was asked to conserve water.

Ration Electric Power

PRESEQUE ISLE, Me., Oct. 28 — (AP)—Rationing of electric power was begun today by the Maine Public Service Company which serves 15,000 customers in Northern Maine. Rationing was ordered because a month-long drought has cut the flow of the Aroostook River sharply.

Officials said customers have been divided into three groups and each group will be without power for one hour in every three hours. The hydro-electric power situation in this vicinity was described as "worse than it ever has been." Across the international boundary at the company's Tinker, N.B. plant, conditions were described as equally bad.

Last year business establishments and households were asked not to use power at certain hours as a conservation measure but "no system of voluntary rationing would save enough power" under present conditions, officials said.

Maine Public Service Company generates most of its electricity with the use of the Aroostook River flow.

Making Final Connections For New Turbine

The new English turbine which arrived in the city for the Maritime Electric Company some weeks ago is ready for its final connections this week-end, Mr. V. A. Ainsworth, general manager of the Company stated last night.

Mr. Ainsworth said it would be necessary to shut off the largest boiler in order to make some changes to it so that, starting at midnight Saturday, the engineers expect that for the following four or five days power will have to be shut off during the early part of the evening until the changes have been completed. The turbine should be ready for operation by the latter part of next week.

Engineering tests may require another week after the turbine is operating, which will mean that it will likely be some time between Nov. 10 and 15 before the turbine is really "rolling."

The Company did comparatively little in the nature of major construction work so far this season, Mr. Ainsworth said. This was largely due to pole-moving operations made necessary by Government road repairs and construction. He said he expected the construction work undertaken last year between Charlottetown and Borden would be completed by the first week in November.

Special Poem In Honor Of Royal Wedding

LONDON, Oct. 28 — (AP)—Poet Laureate John Masefield's special poem "On the Coming Marriage of her Royal Highness Princess Elizabeth":

That is the Crown, but something set above The jangle and the jargon and the hate Of strikers after power in the state. A symbol like a banner, for men's love.

When hope is dim and luck is out of joint, When enemies, within, without, Where a crown shines, the courage cannot fail. There a land's spirit finds a rallying-point.

To those young lands, the countries of our King, The friends in need, the comrades in despair, Our allies steadfast when no others were. . . . But how can Britain praise them? How begin? . . .

To those dear lands still calling Britain "home", The Crown is still the link with Britain's past, The consecrated thing that must outlast Folly and hate and other human foam.

To those, as to ourselves, this marriage time Summons all hearts from their accustomed ways To pray that hidden strengths, supreme, sublime May from their glory bless this couple's days.

To pray that she, our future Queen, may hear Through many happy years, the bells rejoice, Telling of people glad, a Sovereign dear, A land restored, a purpose again clear With wind-delighting clamor of glad voice.

Conservatives Ahead With Candidates

(By The Canadian Press) A slate of nominating conventions to confirm Liberal standard bearers and choose C.C.F. candidates is scheduled for the next few days throughout Prince Edward Island following Monday night's announcement that the Jones administration will go to the country Dec. 11. The Progressive Conservatives are a jump ahead with 30 candidates already nominated for the 15 Councillor and 15 Assemblyman seats in the Legislature.

Liberals to date have nominated candidates in First and Second Prince's Counties, leaving eleven more Liberal nominating conventions to be held.

The C.C.F. party have held three conventions—in First, Third and Fourth Prince—and have announced that they intend to nominate candidates in the "majority" of all the districts.

Although rumors of an impending election have been rife for the past year, Government officials have been non-committal until the last Saturday the Charlottetown Guardian reported that the next election was set for Dec. 11 and at that time Premier Jones, in Toronto, said the Government had decided nothing "official."

The present Government, elected Sept. 15, 1943, has 20 Liberals, 10 Progressive Conservatives and no vacancies.

Some 2,000 voters will have from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. A.S.T. to cast their ballots. In the absence of early manifestos, political sources said last night they did not think Prohibition would be one of the issues.

The Province has a dry law which forbids the purchase of liquor from a Government vendor without a doctor's script which is good for six months.

Sources said all parties were "in the same boat" on Prohibition with some party men for, some against and most neutral because of large sections of temperance votes in each riding.

Political sources added Mr. Jones might also claim credit for his handling of the packers' strike. His Government seized the strike-bonus Canada Packers Limited plant in Charlottetown and put it back in operation with non-union labor. This was a popular move with farmers who had anxiously watched a pile-up of animals ready for slaughter.

On the issue he may be attacked by the pro-Labor C.C.F. Already Progressive Conservative speakers have attacked his financial agreement with the Federal Government which he did not receive enough subsidies.

Five months before the last election in 1943 Walter Jones, who wears his hat over his eye and often chews a straw wasn't even in the cabinet. For five years he was a backbencher. Suddenly he was brought into the cabinet and catapulted into the Premiership when Premier Thane A. Campbell resigned to become the Island's chief justice.

The Progressive Conservative leader Hon. W. J. P. MacMillan, is a busy physician who has never let politics interfere with his practice. This C.C.F. first time the chief of the Charlottetown Hospital medical staff will have been up for election, the fourth as head of the party. He was Premier of the Island from 1933 until his defeat in 1935.

The by-elections since 1943 are hardly helpful in the search for straws in the wind. The House at that time had 20 Liberals and 10 Progressive Conservatives. In the five by-elections since, the Liberals gained a Conservative seat and the Conservatives gained a Liberal seat while the other three remained unchanged.

The C.C.F. is not represented in the Legislature and there has been no statement yet from George Wotton, Bedeque, president of the Provincial organization as to how many seats the party will contest. The C.C.F. first contested P.E.I. seats in the 1943 election—to make the first appearance of a party other than Liberal or Conservative in the history of the Island since Confederation.

The Liberals have had a slight edge in public favor over the years. Of the 19 elections, they have won 12. Out of the total of 23 administrations the Liberals have held power until 1936. The Islanders swapped governments at every general election. That procedure was broken in 1939 when Liberal Premier Campbell's administration was kept in office. There has been a Liberal administration ever since.

The Island has a unique election act. Under it a voter with $250 worth of property in an electoral district can cast two votes in that district—one for councillor and one for assemblyman. He need not

Churchill Charges Labor Government With Inefficiency

(By The Canadian Press) LONDON, Oct. 28 — Winston Churchill in the House of Commons today lashed the Labor Government with charges of inefficiency and said it seeks to reduce the powers of the House of Lords because it fears defeat at the polls.

The former Prime Minister pictured the Attlee administration as a barrier to the energy of free enterprise which built the prosperity of the United States and which Churchill said would restore Britain.

His speech, covering a wide range of topics, was in support of the Opposition amendment to the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne, condemning the Government's actions and in effect demanding a vote of censure.

Progress Made On Gov't Potato Shed

The building of vestibules around the loading doors, and the laying of a new floor at the Government potato shed, located on the Railway Wharf, is progressing rapidly.

The main portion of the vestibules are pretty well completed already, with most of the work at the present time being centered around the laying of the new floor, which is to be completed by Friday, when potato shipments are expected to arrive.

The partitioning of 80 feet at the south end of the shed, which is to be used for Newfoundland tablestock shipments, has also been pretty well completed.

This improvement program, which is being carried out by the Dominion Department of Public Works, is designed to allow greater storage space, and to give added protection against frost, to produce stored there.

live in the district. Thus, if an elector had property to the proper value spread through the 15 pint-sized ridings, he would have 30 votes. In fact a considerable number of persons do vote in more than one riding.

Though the Legislature is unicameral, it is made up of two types of representatives, 15 Councillors and 15 Assemblymen. To vote for each class requires different sets of qualifications.

For Assemblymen, a voter is required to be a British subject, to have lived in the Province 12 months and in the specific riding for two months preceding election. Also, a person owning $100 worth of real estate may cast a ballot for Assemblyman.

Three separate classes of residents can vote for Councillors: the $225 property owners, clergymen and P. E. I. war veterans, the latter two restricted to voting in one riding.

All three groups automatically are entitled to vote for Assemblymen. Regardless of qualifications, however, no person can cast more than one vote for a single candidate.

ered "on watch" lights that mark the way through the ice lane to the Northern Canadian wharf port in Hudson Bay.

Again this year the ship was in command of Captain Charles-Anatole Caron of L'Islet, Que., who took over in 1943. His officers and men were a mixture of English and French-speaking seamen and among them was third officer Bill Dwyer of St. John's, Nfld., whose father and two brothers lost their lives in 1943 in the torpedoing of the Cabot Strait ferry Caribou.

The ice-breaker was busy at Belle Isle supplying a lighthouse, radio station and beacon when she received a distress call from Cape Dorset and pushed there in five days to pick up some 70 passengers from the Arctic supply ship Nascope which went aground.

Those of doomed Nascope's passengers not flown to civilization were crowded aboard the Government ship for a 700-mile voyage southwest through Hudson Bay to Churchill where 16 grain ships loaded during the brief season.

It was for the benefit of the wheat vessels that McLean performed her usual Arctic mission. In Hudson Bay, McLean struck its roughest weather last month and, reporting the position and drift of ice and icebergs as high as the cliffs of Quebec, went to the rescue of the Newfoundland coastal ship Blackmore, in trouble near Big Island.

The ice-breaker towed Blackmore to shelter in Wakeham Bay where new engine parts were flown to it. Now, the ice-breaker goes on duty after short leave, here in the St. Lawrence River where ice will start appearing in a few weeks.
