

Woman's Realm :- Social and Personal :- Fashions :- Literature

The Hospitable Gesture of Serving GOOD TEA

For formal or informal entertaining, GOOD tea is always correct. Pouring it is a rite the smart hostess reserves for herself as the crowning intimate, hospitable gesture.

GOOD tea always gives more: more cups, more energy, more flavour, more refreshment and so, is the most economical as well as the most enjoyable of beverages.

Everyone can afford GOOD tea. Empire grown for the Empire's homes and brought to you by famous packers who employ tea experts to maintain perfection of quality and blend.

THE CEYLON TEA BUREAU

... nothing so refreshing as a cup of GOOD Tea

New Spring Smartness

Illustrated Dressmaking Lessons Furnished With Each Pattern By Ruth Rogers

What about a new spring frock in one of the most fascinating and modern materials in novelty dotted printed crepe silk? It is navy and white.

Today's model is adorable, so easy to slip into and so easy to wear. The wrapped closure of the bodice is particularly smart - and slimming.

Style No. 721 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18 years, 36, 38 and 40 inches bust. Size 16 requires 3 1/2 yards of 39-inch material with 1/4 yard of 39-inch contrasting.

Price of PATTERN 15 cents in stamps or coin (coin is preferred). Wrap coin carefully.

NO. 721. Size Name Street Address City State

721

BAZY AILMENTS Relieved! Baby's Own Tablets

BAZY'S OWN TABLETS Relieved! Baby's Own Tablets

Why Do Women See Red When They're Told to Work to Hold Their Husband's Love? For Not Only Their Life's Happiness, But Their Financial Well-Being Depends on Their Standing With Their Men

Why does it so infuriate a woman to suggest to her that it is worth her while to make a few efforts to retain her husband's love, and keep him thinking his lucky stars that he got her for a wife?

That it does, no one can deny. Nothing else makes women see so red. I never write an article on this subject - which is really more important to women than anything else in the world - without getting scores of angry and abusive letters from peeved ladies who declare that they don't intend to let their lives be run by a mere husband and jolly him into doing the things he should do anyway.

Or they assert that they are not going to wear themselves out putting on their complexions and doling themselves up for men who are no John Barrymores themselves. Or they insist that whether a husband is faithful or not is a matter of luck and has nothing to do with a wife keeping herself attractive. So what's the use in worrying about it?

And why, they ask, should they starve themselves to death to maintain a girlish figure for husbands who are fat and bay-windowed? Why should they do acrobatic stunts all around the pet prejudices of husbands who walk roughshod over theirs? Why should they try to be bright and witty companions for husbands who spend their evenings hidden behind newspapers and only grunt when they are spoken to? In short, why should they demean themselves by catering to their husbands?

To which the reply is: No reason at all except that both their spiritual and physical well-being depend upon their keeping their husbands in love and the felled. It is the work in which she finds the greatest happiness and the fullest expression of her powers, and which offers her the greatest pecuniary rewards. For there are many wives whose husbands give them fortunes, but few women who ever saw a husband who is a success or a failure depends on just one thing: Whether she can keep her husband in love with her or not. If she fails, she gets a thousand per cent profit in happiness. If she fails, she is bankrupt.

For, when all is said, marriage is not only woman's predestined career. It is her chosen one. She puts into it her youth, her heart, her body, her labor, her ambitions, her chances of ever doing anything else in the world, and whether this undertaking in which she has sunk all of her capital is a success or a failure depends on just one thing: Whether she can keep her husband in love with her or not. If she fails, she gets a thousand per cent profit in happiness. If she fails, she is bankrupt.

But when a woman goes into this matrimonial partnership she invests her all in it. She puts into it her youth, her heart, her body, her labor, her ambitions, her chances of ever doing anything else in the world, and whether this undertaking in which she has sunk all of her capital is a success or a failure depends on just one thing: Whether she can keep her husband in love with her or not. If she fails, she gets a thousand per cent profit in happiness. If she fails, she is bankrupt.

If her husband loves her, he will be faithful and tender and kind and she can possess her soul in peace and whatever money he makes he will lavish upon her. If he ceases to care for her, he will be cold and neglectful and inconsiderate. Life will be tedious, ashes and dust to her. Her heart will be torn to shreds by the taints of jealousy and she will have the bitterness of seeing him spend upon other women the money that she has helped him earn.

That is why it pays a wife to keep her husband thinking she is the great and only one. It is the only way that she can get what is coming to her in love and money. For the debt that a husband owes his wife cannot be collected by strong-arm methods. It has to be inveigled out of him by finesse and diplomacy.

Personally I have never been able to understand why women consider it more degrading to their self-respect to try to hold a husband than they do to try to hold a job. Why they do not think it as much worth while to please a husband as they do to please an employer.

But whatever the reason, few women make the same effort to get along with their husbands that they do with their bosses. No girl employs with a view to correcting her boss's grammar or manners, or contradicting him, or arguing with him, but when she gets married she doesn't think it necessary to palaver her husband, and that is why so often the home wife loses out to the office wife.

Perhaps women's attitude that it is wasted effort to keep a husband fascinated is based upon the theory that marriage is a lifetime job from which they cannot be fired, no matter how sloppy or dull or stupid, or what niggers they are.

But those halcyon days for wives are gone. Divorce is too easy, too common, too respectable for a man to stick at marriage unless it is made pleasant for him. Hence the wife of today has to work just as hard and as long as the commercial wife. And so far from there being anything derogatory in her doing so, it merely shows her good sense.

Of course it takes endless labor and intelligence and self-sacrifice to keep a husband vamped. But the point is that it pays to do it. DOROTHY DIX.

The HOUSEWIFE and HER ACTIVITIES

A MEASURE Our lives are measured by the deeds we do. The thoughts we think, the objects we pursue. -Anonymous

CHEERFULNESS Wondrous is the strength of cheerfulness, altogether past calculation its powers of endurance. Carlyle.

HONEY HINTS That dates are very nourishing and easily digested needs no emphasis, when it is remembered that they are the chief food of the travellers in caravans who cross the deserts.

Keep a pile of newspapers cut in half sheets in a handy place, as you will find them useful for wiping off the stove when something boils over, wiping out the greasy fryings pan and many other things when you are in a hurry and don't want to use a cloth.

Tuck a strip of heavy substance about nine inches wide across the end of the ironing board and use it to slip the iron on when ironing, thus saving the extra effort of raising the iron to a stand each time.

When next mixing mustard, try adding a few drops of salad oil to it. You will find the flavor greatly improved.

Frequent polishing preserves furniture, but be careful to avoid the common mistake of putting on too much polish. Hard rubbing with a little polish is the secret of a beautiful polished surface.

SCORCHED LINEN Garments that have been scorched are often thrown away as being quite useless for wearing purposes, but, according to an old recipe, it is quite possible to restore the linen to its pristine freshness by applying the following preparation: Boil half a pint of vinegar with half ounce of flaked soap, two ounces of Fuller's Earth, and the juice of two medium sized onions. Spread the mixture on the scorched mark and leave till dry. Wash and repeat the proceeding until the mark has entirely disappeared.

As the years pass, the chest walls tend to become more rigid, and the lungs, therefore, do not expand to the extent that they used to. But, as nearly every process is relieves congested foodways and intestines . . . pleasant and refreshing

GOOD CHEST EXPANSION SAFEGUARDS LUNGS

ENOS' FRUIT SALT

These FOUR REASONS WHY I SHOULD USE Palmolive!

I like myself a lot better since my beauty specialist advised me to use Palmolive. My skin's so much nicer! I guess that's why 20,000 beauty experts advise Palmolive to keep skin smooth and young. Why don't you try it?

They're not stingy with olive oil - those folks who make Palmolive! A lot of it goes into the making of every cake . . . scientifically blended with palm oil. That's why Palmolive is so kind and gentle to your complexion!

And reason No 4 is.. Palmolive now costs so little

A DRESS HINT The older woman should beware of any over-elaboration and much trimming. Nothing adds to the look of age so much as needless decoration. The mistake the Victorian and Edwardian dressmakers made was to overdress. In their day little was known about the subtle ways of simplicity.

THE CARE OF CLOTHES Like many other things clothes are much the better for an occasional rest and garments that are worn alternately with others return to their freshness and shape far longer than those which are worn more or less continuously.

Wear a sockette jumper suit for days on end, and it will sag and bulge. But roll it lengthways, put it in a drawer for a few days, and it will tend to recover its shape. When, however, the more open knitted woollens drop, they are shapeless for ever.

Dust is the great enemy of cloth and felt. Do not rely alone upon your clothes brush, but yield are small come upon the clothes at frequent intervals, and keep a piece of fine sandpaper at hand to rub off small stains from felt hats as they appear.

Be sure cupboards and wardrobes are absolutely free from damp. In too moist an atmosphere both cotton and linen become mildewed immediately. Place worn clothes on a hanger after removal, but leave them hanging in the room and do not put them away in the wardrobe. Dresses that have been worn all day and perhaps under a coat, are crossed and affected by the warmth of the body. If they are given an hour or two in the air they freshen up, and more or less iron out their own creases. Otherwise these creases develop into permanent lines.

HOW TO GET PARTICLES OUT OF THE EYES Last week I called to see a workman who had a bit of steel lodged in his eye, writes a doctor. On examination I found that the particle was embedded in the cornea, which is a most sensitive part of the eye. Having made the eye insensitively by a little cocaine solution, the particle was removed by means of a magnet.

When a foreign body such as a fly or a piece of grit is in the eye, bathe with weak boracic lotion and wash it out. Failing this, gentle application of a wet camel-hair brush will usually pick up the offending particles.

If the object is embedded in the eye or if the eye is wounded it should be covered with sterile gauze and medical advice sought at once from time to time. Bathe the eye with vinegar followed by olive oil, do not use water.

For cold burns wash out the eye at once with a very weak solution of washing soda in water.

DRIFTS IN WALES BROUGHT TERRIBLE SWANSEA, Wales, April 24. (C. P.) Mountain climbing in Wales took on a new thrill with the unusually heavy snowstorms now in. Four men, were nearly lost near the top of Cader Idris.

The party was trapped in a thick mist two miles from the summit. When the mist cleared a little they got on a wrong peak and into a deep snowdrift. Forming a hand-chain, they managed to scramble out and then wandered waist-deep in snow until they reached a path, which took them to a farmhouse.

HEARING THE BARKING OF sheep dogs in the distance they eventually took them to a farmhouse.

COUNTRESS HAIG TO RESIDE IN COURT

EDINBURGH, Scotland, April 24. -Countess Haig, widow of the Field-Marshal, announced today she will leave Scotland to reside in Hampton Court Palace by the courtesy of the Royal Family.

The Countess explained the diminishing state of the Haig finances prompted the move. The upkeep of the huge Bemersyde estate which Field-Marshal Earl Haig took over in a bad state of repair was proving too expensive.

Late Field-Marshal's own rooms at Bemersyde will be opened as a museum of the famous soldier's war relics, uniforms and the gifts he received from admirers all over the world.

Speaking of her future home at Hampton Court Palace the Countess remained the King "has been very kind."

The present Earl Haig, 16-year-old son of the Field-Marshal, will shortly enter the Royal Military College at Sandhurst with a view to joining his father's old regiment, the 17th Lancers.

LONDON, April 24.—The Queen's purchase of an unusual piece of leather work shown at the exhibition of the Royal Amateur Art Society at Portman House has given hope to an ex-army officer who is out of work.

The exhibit is a leather paper-weight—a model of a gryphon. Its maker is Capt. H. E. Jackson, M.C., of Battersea Bridge Rd., who had a fine war record but has been reduced to dependence on public assistance. "It is the first piece of good news I have heard for weeks," he said. "It has given me hope."

THE MIDWAY WHISTLE had been blown by a visitor to a music seller. "I am afraid I don't know of a song," "Why, it goes like this," and the customer hummed the tune. "Why, you mean 'The Last Chord,'" said the assistant. "Ah, that's it!"

ABSENT-MINDED

MARRIED SIXTY TIMES EARL MIST DIES BROKE

BELLO HORIZONTE, Earl April 24. -Mario Muller, Brazil "champion bigamist," accused of having married some 60 times, is under an assumed name in a city hospital four days after he escaped from prison, where he was serving a sentence for bigamy. He was received in the jail but caused his death. Muller was accused of having contracted bigamous marriages in nearly all of Brazil's 21 states.

HOTEL FOR CHURCHILL IN DREAM STATE

The Pas, Man., April 24. -Churchill, Manitoba's northernmost port, will in all probability get their wish without hotel accommodation. Harry Olesky, who received a permit to build a hotel at Churchill, has been unable to raise funds for the project, and the project has been abandoned.

FOOTLAND CEMENT PRODUCTION Shipments of Portland cement by Canadian producers in January totalled 68,736 barrels compared with 64,780 a year ago. Production in December was 100,388 barrels.

THE COOK'S CORNER

COCONUT MACAROONS One cup sugar, 1/4 cup cold water. Cook these until 14 hairs when dropped from a spoon. Beat 1 egg white on a plate until stiff. Add syrup very gradually, beating egg constantly. Beat until about the consistency of corn syrup. Add 1 teaspoon vanilla and mix. Enough shredded coconut to be mixture hold its shape when dropped on pan from teaspoon. Drop on baking sheet and bake at 300 to 320 degrees until slightly browned. Leave on pan until cool.

STEAMED FIG BREAD PUDGING Cream 1/4 cup butter or fat, mix with 1/4 pound figs, mix through the food chopper. Add 1 cup sugar. Four over 2 cups of whole bread crumbs—they need not be sifted, but should not be too large and enough warm milk to be completely absorbed by the crumbs. One cup may be enough. Add the beaten yolks of 2 eggs, beaten thick, with 1/2 teaspoon salt. Mix the chopped figs, butter, etc. with the milk and egg-yolks, and when thoroughly blended beat in the stiff-beaten whites. Steam, close-covered, in a greased mould for from 2 to 3 hours according to diameter of mould. Serve with a sauce of melted butter and currant jelly.

A Morning Smile

"Have you a copy of 'The Star Hope?'" inquired a visitor to a music seller. "I am afraid I don't know of a song," "Why, it goes like this," and the customer hummed the tune. "Why, you mean 'The Last Chord,'" said the assistant. "Ah, that's it!"

ABSENT-MINDED

The midway whistle had been blown by a visitor to a music seller. "I am afraid I don't know of a song," "Why, it goes like this," and the customer hummed the tune. "Why, you mean 'The Last Chord,'" said the assistant. "Ah, that's it!"

MARRIED SIXTY TIMES EARL MIST DIES BROKE

BELLO HORIZONTE, Earl April 24. -Mario Muller, Brazil "champion bigamist," accused of having married some 60 times, is under an assumed name in a city hospital four days after he escaped from prison, where he was serving a sentence for bigamy. He was received in the jail but caused his death. Muller was accused of having contracted bigamous marriages in nearly all of Brazil's 21 states.

HOTEL FOR CHURCHILL IN DREAM STATE

The Pas, Man., April 24. -Churchill, Manitoba's northernmost port, will in all probability get their wish without hotel accommodation. Harry Olesky, who received a permit to build a hotel at Churchill, has been unable to raise funds for the project, and the project has been abandoned.

FOOTLAND CEMENT PRODUCTION

Shipments of Portland cement by Canadian producers in January totalled 68,736 barrels compared with 64,780 a year ago. Production in December was 100,388 barrels.

Almost Instant Relief From Neuralgia

For Quick Relief Buy ASPIRIN When You Buy

Now comes amazingly quick relief from headaches, rheumatism, neuralgia, the 'jagged' eye, toothache, which took them to a farmhouse. Hearing the barking of sheep dogs in the distance they eventually took them to a farmhouse.

WHY ASPIRIN WORKS SO FAST Drop an Aspirin Tablet in a glass of water. Watch it dissolve. You'll see it's so fast that it's almost gone before you can see it.

Does Not Harm the Heart