The Man Who Wasn't Himself

Only one way out seemed open as long as he proposed remaining in Wingham Crescent. That was to avoid the fact he knew the feelings and keeping the coast clear for the genuine Chetwood.

"No, no, no," she said, "I'm not going to let you do that. You're not going to let me do that either."

"I'm afraid you are in for a disappointment," she said, "I'm afraid you are in for a disappointment."

"I'm afraid you are in for a disappointment," she said, "I'm afraid you are in for a disappointment."

Dorothy, Dix Says— ENVIRONMENT VITAL IN LOVE

How Prospective Mate Acts Under Conditions Expected In Wedlock Must Be Considered. Recently there appeared a cynically amusing cartoon in the papers showing a returning soldier presenting his Eskimo bride to his astonished parents.

There was Mary who married the good-looking boatman at the summer resort. There was Lucy who eloped with the dashing cowboy at the dude ranch.

There was Tom, who was an honor man at college, who fell for a girl from the wrong side of the tracks.

There were the learned bookmen who were so beguiled by the picture that the simple country girl picked flowers made that they took her for a fool.

Then, when they got their mates out of their native environments, the charm evaporated like mist in the sun.

Most of the domestic misery that stalks the world down in tears, is the result of men marrying people who have had different upbringings and have different tastes and habits from their own.

And I especially urge all service men, who are lonely and homesick and disgraced to cut out the cartoon I referred to at the beginning of this article and to put it, along with their pin-up girls, where it will be constantly before their eyes.

There is no price on the lavish June mail had by the poorest corner.

Generally children from a well-to-do home are insincere and repulsive about themselves.

There are pleasant things that you can honestly say to people about themselves.

Field Grown rhubarb has a deep reddish color and green leaves while the hot-house variety has light pink stalks with light green leaves.

Sheep, among the farm animals most infected with parasites are freed of worms which cause loss of weight and wool by mixing phenol with the pasture so that they like to lick.

Army poncho for tropical areas is made of water-proofed nylon and can be used as a fox-hole cover.

Heavy paper bags lined with asphalt, used to ship materials to the front, are often used by soldiers when they need to protect clothing from dampness and for overcoats in wet fox-holes.

Little Boy Blue come blow your horn. The sheep are in the meadow, the cows are in the corn.

To clean tiled grates and hearths use a paste of fullers' earth and washing soda.

Be sure to brush folds and seams of overcoats and other articles before storing away.

an arpie-bargle with Chuck? "If you like."

"It's up to you, Chet. I can manage him on my own terms."

"Why do you have to keep in with him?" Richard inquired.

"Because he came in with us early in the game. You've no fancy for him, eh?"

"I don't know."

"That woney memory against! He's a rat and we both know it. No wonder you were never keen on meeting him. All right! I'll attend to the game's business."

"No—I'd like to come with you." (To be continued)

TILLIE THE TOILER—SHORT ACQUAINTANCE!

HAVE YOU GOT ANY EVIDENCE FOR MY DEFENSE, MA'AM?

ALL THE WAGS SAY THEY'VE NEVER SEEN YOU SMOKE

BUT NONE OF 'EM HAS KNOWN YOU FOR MORE THAN TEN DAYS!

Ellen's Diary

It came to me early this morning that James could never get along without me. I have an idea when finally St. Peter asks him for his credentials I must be there to whisper as a judge, James, of course: "They're in your hand."

This was cream-morning again and when I came to the porch door I was by way of surprising me, I know, was away down the line all moist to the road, with the can of cream, while last evening's cream, which should also have been in the can, still rested in the separator.

This meeting hurried down with the bridge and he waited while I went into the source mine in the case. I could never score because I knew he was being kind.

I believe this Diary of mine is going to be a stimulus to agriculture in Alberta. For as we chatted, the questions are those which have reached the Wartime Prices and Trade Board from housewives in this region.

I read in this column that tea-off coupons in No. 3 book are still good for the purchase of tea or coffee. My grocer says only the first six coupons are good and are still good for the purchase of tea or coffee.

The teams were kept going in the fields this morning while James and I went to the store to buy some repairing the marker for the potato field.

There was a visitor at the supper home. Someone from the community who for the last years has been a city-dweller.

When the plunkers at Alderlea began the afternoon and a family conference it was decided that I remain at home to attend to the place and continue the work of seed-making in my spare minutes.

There were a number of questions asked when James returned and one saddy one was "Would he be out an hour?"

So once again in the interests of farming there is to be a late watch at Alderlea. I'm fairly confident there will be no ill-effects from his wanderings but there was that poison on the rose-bushes. It may have been sweet to horses as well as insects. I shall remain for awhile.

For tomorrow a day of rest—Dads! Until Monday—Diary Good-night.

When the plunkers were about to return to the fields I saw with an outward show of assurance, I didn't really possess in my heart for the flesh can get weak in the corn—I'll see to the milking. I am not brave enough to fasten their chains for one of them glass subjects.

James says he's small wonder for the belonged at Alderlea in the past days of the milking and also attended to the work on the farm, following and attendant to this chore. I was the one who sank exhausted in the old arm-chair at dark.

And then something happened to mar even this lovely and busy day. James says he knows I will never write it here. But I shall for if these dire consequences it will I would.

A Morning Smile

"I can trust my maid at any time. I can go away for three days and know exactly what she will be doing all the time."

"Mrs. Brown: 'That's remarkable! What do you think she will be doing?' Mrs. Jones: 'Nothing.'"

Shabby Blinds

Shabby window blinds can be renewed by painting. According to consumer experts, the shade should be put on a table which is well covered with a clean, white cloth.
