British Parents Strive To Repay Debt To America

BY MARGARET ECKER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, March 17 — (CP) — English parents, eager to prove their greatitude to Canada and the United States for giving their children wartime haven, have set up a scheme to bring young people from North America to Britain for education and training when the war is over.

For this venture, known as the Kinsmen Trust, more than $70,000 has been collected. Most of it was contributed by parents whose own children, when the future looked bleak in Britain following the fall of France in 1940, were sent overseas.

The people behind the plan, who include Viscount Bennett and Lady Tweedsmuir, have the vision of hundreds of young people crossing the Atlantic to attend British schools or to receive vocational training in their chosen careers. They hope the fund grows to many thousands of English pounds.

Numbers of large boys' and girls' schools have offered scholarships to be made available to the young people. The Royal Academy of Dramatic Art and other schools of specialized study are providing scholarships.

Besides this a number of apprenticeships will be available in various industries, such as publishing and printing firms, solicitors' offices, aircraft production. These will enable the boys and girls who wish to enter these trades to have a background of British training and techniques.

Lord Gorell, chairman of the fund, said, "The purpose of the scheme is to promote understanding between the people of Canada and the United States and those of Great Britain.

"More than that, the parents of what Canada calls her 'guest children' want to try to make a return for the kindness and hospitality shown towards their own children."

Capt. Hamish Hamilton, honorary secretary of the trust, pointed out that British children were given refuge although their parents could not send money from Britain to pay their expenses.

"But this never tempered the warmth of their welcomes," he said.

Children who will visit the British Isles under this scheme will be chosen by selection boards which will be set up in their own countries.

"Preferences will be given to children of people who gave hospitality to our children," he said. "Or they may nominate boys and girls for the scholarships. We want representative young people from all walks of life.

"We hope the plan will grow enormously until it develops into a sort of junior Rhodes trust."

vincial law controlling alcoholic beverages, and whereas it must be assumed that the people of Prince Edward Island do not desire any change in said law, and if therefore the Legislature should enact into law this bill which is now before us, this Legislature would be opposing the true spirit of Democracy for which our sons are fighting overseas at the present time."

Mr. Wright said that the main criticism of the present Act is that some doctors are selling their prescriptions to bootleggers. This was a violation of the law. The bill would not improve that condition, because doctors could still issue scripts. Prohibition, he maintained, is the will of the people, and to flout the Act means violating the principle of democracy The Legislature was elected on the understanding that the Act would not be interfered with. He moved that the bill be withdrawn from the order paper.

Mr. Saville said to the promoter of the bill (Mr. Kickham) that a great wave of Liberalism had swept his district last year, and when that wave receded he might be swept out on the backwash by reason of having sponsored a measure of this kind. Since 1893 Prohibition had been before the people of this province eight times and each time, except once in Charlottetown, the people voted for it.

He commended the late Hon. J. D. Stewart for taking "the manly stand" and risking his political career by going to the people on this issue in 1927. "I believe at that time he could have passed a government control Act in this province, and then gone to the country, and it would have been very hard to get it off the statute books for a great many years; but he didn't do that. He took the honorable course and put it before the people. He was defeated and a few years afterwards said that as far as the Conservative party was concerned. Prohibition was a closed book." To this day no political party had again gone before the people with government control as a platform. Prohibition was the voice of the people, and the people must be listened to. "Those who don't will suffer for it when the next election comes around," he said.

Mr. Heath Strong said he had pleasure in seconding Mr. Wright's motion. These were the most critical days of the war, and this Legislature had no right, when our boys are fighting and dying at the front, to introduce a government control Act in this Province. It is an attempt to scuttle the act—"a very crude attempt, I admit," he said. Before the bill was submitted, a plebiscite should have been taken.

Mr. E.H. Strong, supporting the preceding speakers, evoked the spirits of St. Patrick and the Fathers of Confederation. "We are here to carry out the wishes of the people," he said. "It is quite obvious that the wishes of the people are against this amendment."

Mr. Speaker: "I take it that the hon. member from Bedeque is introducing this as an amendment. It is pretty hard to reconcile it as an amendment. It is contradictory. It would seem to be in order to put the original motion."

Mr. Wright quoted Buchesne's parliamentary rules on this point. At the Speaker's suggestion, he amended his motion so as to read: "That this bill be not read a second time but that it be read six months hence."

A standing vote on this motion was taken with the following result.

Nays: "Hon. Jones, McGuigan, Hughes, Barbour, Prowse, Messrs. Dennis, Linkletter, Kickham, Cullen, Bernard and Francis.—11.

Ayes: Hon. Messrs. Wright, Campbell, Gallant, Messrs. Clark, Cox, MacKinnon, Saville, Ramsay, MacMillan, McPhee, MacKenzie, Heath Strong, E.H. Strong, Matheson, Bell, McGowan, Hunter.—17.

The full text of Mr. Kickham's bill appeared in yesterday's Guardian. In effect it proposed the appointment by the Government of one or more persons to issue prescriptions to the limit of two per month per individual over twenty-one years, leaving untouched the present status of doctors with regard to the issuing of prescriptions for medicinal purposes. It also proposed to prohibit vendors from honouring any prescription ten days after the date of issue.

Turns Down Offer For Ceramic Secret

WOODSTOCK, Ont., March 17 —(CP)— Demand for chinaware manufactured here by a Budapest refugee, John Petrick, is so great Petrick's little factory is unable to cope with the flood of orders.

Former art teacher at the University of Budapest, Petrick came here in 1938 with a party of Hungarians fleeing the threat of war in Europe. A farming venture failed and, seeking a livelihood, Petrick turned to manufacture of chinaware, an art he had taught in Budapest.

Petrick experimented with clay and formulae more than a year. "Now I think I have developed the first floral chinaware of high vitrified grade on this continent," he said.

At first he imported clay from England but soon found suitable clay in Quebec where he now buys it in ton lots.

Petrick's wife, also an artist, helps him turn out candlesticks, brooches earrings, statues, floral centrepieces and all sorts of little things. United States firms would like to know his trade secret of baking delicate flower petals and heavier objects to which they are attached at the same time and with the same terrific heat.

Eight of Petrick's many eager pupils have become employees at this plant. Thirteen-year-old Elizabeth Dow makes $1 to $1.50 in two hours after school following a year of practice at ceramicmaking.

Three Canadian firm with coast-to-coast connections buy his total output while he has refused offers for his formulae and for positions both from Canadian and American firms.

Petrick refused an offer of $16,000 a year from a United States ceramic firm. "Canada has been good to me," he said, "I want to stay here."

Delightful Concert By Bary Ensemble

The final concert of the season under Com. Concert Assn. auspices given last night in Prince of Wales College hall, was undoubtedly one of the very finest that has been heard in this city. Unfortunately, owing to weather conditions and other attractions, the audience was not as large as it should have been. That was the misfortune of those who were unable to attend. For those who were, the evening was one of unalloyed pleasure.

The artists were the justly celebrated Bary Ensemble, consisting of the Misses Gertrude Bary, piano Lorna Wren, flute, Mara Sebriansky, violin, and Virginia Peterson, 'cello. They appeared in solo parts as well as in ensemble, in a varied programme ranging from movements of a Suite by the great English Restoration composer, Henry Purcell, to a stirring dance composition from a Soviet melodrama.

Purcell's piece alone would constitute a major item on any programme. It was played with rare grace and skill by the ensemble. The Adagio and Minuette were especially delightful, reminding one of Mozart in courtly style and elegance.

This was followed by the piano Sonata in E Flat. Op. 27, No. 1, (Beethoven) by Miss Bary. It is the first of two compositions comprising the Opus, of which the much more famous "Moonlight Sonata" is No. 2. The piece is historically interesting for its departure from the old sonata form. It consists not of four separate movements but of a series of longer or shorter sections merging into each other without a break. This, however, is quite incidental to the fact that it is glorious movement. It was given a truly magnificent interpretation by Miss Bary. She played, as an encore, Etude in C Minor, by Chopin.

Two lovely flute solos followed by Miss Wren: the familiar "Dance of the Spirits" from Gluck's "Orpheus and Euridice", (which seemed particularly suited for this instrument) and Valse in B Flat, Op. 118. Miss Wren gave as an encore an 18th century piece called "Tambourine."

A Trio in D Minor, by Mendelssohn, for piano, violin and violoncello, was next given by the Misses Sebriansky, Bary and Peterson.

This was followed, after a brief intermission, by two violin solos "Symphonie Espagnole" (Edouard Lalo) and "Gipsy Dance," by Miss Sebriansky; two 'cello solos, Handel's "Largo" and Hungarian Rhapsody (David Popper) by Miss Peterson; and the concluding ensemble numbers, "Romanze" by Wagner, a Russian Sailor's Dance from "Red Poppy" by Reinhold Gliere, the Waltz of the Flowers from the Nutcracker Suite and "Danny Boy" in honour of St. Patrick's Day.

Miss Bary accompanied each of the other soloists on the piano.

All the numbers were enthusiastically applauded.

The Community Concert Association is to be warmly commended on their success in bringing these outstanding artists to Charlottetown.

Plan New Cathedral Of Unusual Design

BY SYDNEY GRUSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

COVENTRY, March 17 —(CP)— Rt. Rev. Neville Gorton, Bishop of Coventry, has envisioned a new communal Christian centre of religion and learning to rise like a phoenix from the pinkish rubble of this blitzed city's old cathedral.

Two striking innovations have been planned for the new cathedral, designed by Sir Giles Gilbert Scott, a Roman Catholic.

There will be a central altar, instead of the conventional placing at the eastern end of the building, and an inter-denominational centre of service in full partnership with the Free Churches. A special chapel of unity, belonging to the Anglicans and Free Churches together, will connect the centre to the cathedral.

The edifice has been planned to run north and south, in the shape of a rectangle, and the bulk of the old cathedral whose scarred walls still stand will form a cloister joining the 15th-century tower to the new cathedral.

"This is my conception," Bishop Gorton told visitors. "There"-and he pointed toward the tower-"lies the body of our Lord, and here"-he opened his arms wide to north and south in the line of the new building-" here are the outflung arms of Christ."

The idea of the central altar, he said, goes back to the earliest days of the Christian church.

"The altar does not belong only to the clergy, it belongs also to the people. Therefore, set it in the middle of the church and gather round it."

The inter-denominational centre has been planned to help bring closer together the people of the various secets.

"Eighty per cent of Coventry are without membership of church or chapel," the bishop said." . . .we cannot tackle this 80 per cent in isolation."

Dr. Gorton does not contemplate any opposition from the people towards the plan to pool so much with the Free Churches. He told of one man who had worshipped in St. Michael's chapel in the old cathedral for 30 years, and the Sunday after the blitz went into the uncleared rubble and read the service over to himself.

"Men with such an intense affection for the cathedral may tend to resent so close a union," he said. "But the scheme will go through."
