"WHERE OLD FRIENDS MEET"

T. World Puzzle

By Uncle Joe

The dawn of 1948 saw this old world in a state of doubt and uncertainty, and it will require a heap of tolerance by both statesmen and people if we are going to pull out of the mess without having to fight a III World War.

The great question is how to preserve Peace.

There's Germany, Korea, Japan, Austria, Greece, China, Palestine and India. Jig-saw puzzles everywhere of international importance, for the earth is so linked up together that war in any part of the universe is going to affect all other countries.

Another important part of the puzzle we might tag, "economic troubles." How are we going to distribute the world's production in an equitable manner, or in a way that will satisfy all nations?

The Marshall Plan may help but I do not believe it will prove a cure all. As long as there are hungry people in a world of plenty there won't be much peace or brotherly love between nations and individuals.

I have always found that you can reason better with a fellow after he has had a hot bowl of soup under his belt. There never will be lasting peace as long as portions of the human race are forced to live in want. The best and the most living conditions no longer can hope to exist side by side.

The so called have-not nations are beginning to see the light. They call loudly for more liberty and a greater share in what is being produced in the world today. Can we blame them for wanting equality in all things?

This is the great lesson the statesmen of the world must learn, and unless they are willing to learn this lesson, their can be little hope for future peace and prosperity. We must try to establish every man in his right no matter if he be white, yellow, black, or any other color. The same rule must apply to all existing creeds and religions. In other words, the mercies of the human race must be recognized. When we are capable of reaching this point of view I am sure the world picture will look much brighter.

But these changes cannot be achieved by man alone. God must be brought into the picture.
