STARR TROPHY DEFENDERS ARE STILL UNCONQUERED

They Meet And Decorate The Amherst Septette With A Generous Coating of Whitewash

That the Starr Trophy is likely to find a permanent resting place in Charlottetown was conclusively demonstrated last night at the Arena Rink when the Victorias met and decorated the Amherst septette with a generous coating of whitewash, the visitors failing to score. When the final bell rang, the score stood 8 to 0 in favor of the fast Vics seven. The visitors made a couple of changes in their lineup and although they played a much harder game than on the previous evening they could not pierce the Vics' defence. They were in the game every minute and kept continually after the puck, but the Victorias always seemed to be able to put on an extra spurt and if it had not been for the marvellous work of the Amherst goal-fender the score would easily have been trebled. He is without doubt the best seen in the net here, and the cool manner in which he handled the shots from all angles was a treat to witness.

The ice was much better than on the previous evening and the game considerably faster. The same officials as on Thursday night had charge of the game and they handled it in a business-like manner. Their decisions were strict and impartial and gave no room for dispute. The players, notwithstanding that the ice was so sticky and made the carrying of the puck very difficult, kept themselves down to clean hockey and a good exhibition of the game was the result.

The game started at 8.20 with the visitors taking the offensive. They kept the puck in Vics territory for a while but could not get in on the net. They were working hard and fast but did not seem to be able to force an opening. Then the Vics took the offensive and for the next five minutes the Amherst defence were kept on their toes. Ingraham was the first to start the scoring when by a shot from the wing he beat out the opposing goater. Shortly after Rodd sent one in from centre and the score was 2 to 0 for the champs. A slight delay occurred and after resuming play Burns took a hand in the game by notching up a goal for his team. Score, 3 to 0. The visitors time and again broke away for pretty runs, but were woefully weak in the shooting line and usually got tangled up among the speedy Vics. The first half ended without any further score.

The second half was mainly a repetition of the first, the visitors striving for all they were worth to prevent a goose-egg being registered against them, and the Vics peppered away at the Amherst goal-tender. Dougan was the first to get one by, followed shortly after by Trovone. Then Rodd took a hand in an angled canny. Burns was the next to get busy and just to show that he could score took the puck the whole length of the rink and slipped one over. Shortly before the bell rang for the finish of the game Dougan scored again and the game ended with the Vics still on the offensive.

ANOTHER CHALLENGE

The Victorias of Charlottetown, are having a busy time of it in maintaining their right to the Starr Trophy. The latest challenger for the silverware is the "Clasco Bay" hockey team, who will take the trip to the island next week says a Halifax exchange. R. C. G. A. may yet have a try, or perhaps Clippers will qualify for the trip. Tech. has already been across, and the R. C. R. is talking of the journey. Wolfville also is on the war-path. If the assaults of these teams prove unavailing, then the Starr Trophy is the Victorias' for keeps, to have and to hold for some time. It is to be hoped that some one of the other of the visiting teams will return to the Province with the silverware, otherwise a new one will be necessary next year, and it would be hard to find one the equal in value and beauty of the Starr Trophy.

PROVINCIAL LEGISLATURE

had been abandoned by the present government; the books were open to inspection, and free access would be given to all the records concerning them. What the Government wanted was the most absolute publicity in order to satisfy the people regarding their finances. When he looked back over the ten years he was in opposition and endeavouring to obtain information about the public accounts, he could characterize as nothing else than a scandalous outrage the way in which the late government treated the House and public. This year the Government was having an outside audit by a financier having no party bias, and it would furnish a complete statement of debts and liabilities so that anyone would know exactly the financial position of the province. (Applause.)

ROADS AGAIN

MR. MCWILLIAMS said he was highly amused by the encomiums passed by the various speakers on the government side on the condition of the roads and the working of the Road Act. He did not think if the hon. members who had spoken had visited the O'Leary parish they would have had so much to say in praise of the new administration. He had been there not infrequently of late and found the people loud in their complaints about the state of affairs. They had informed him that they had brought the matter to the notice of their representatives, but evidently these had not been attended to. He did not think this was the way representatives should treat their constituents. He must admit that the present condition was not due to recent developments, but to neglect in previous years. Still, they had heard so much about the beneficial working of the new act that he thought something would have been done to improve the condition here. In his own district he confessed the roads were fairly good, as they were in every district where the representatives and officials did their duty. But his complaint was that in some districts the roadmen did not get a fair chance. There were too many officials interfering, and the roadmen could not get properly settled down to work. He was sure if the hon. members travelled the roads as he had done, they would not have come there with the eulogistic opinions they had so eloquently expressed—at least not if they told the truth. (Laughter.) He hoped that now the act had been put in operation the Government would not interpose any unnecessary amendments, but give the roadmen time to get accustomed to the new additions and carry out the work satisfactorily. He assured the Government he would do the best he could to assist in having the best possible roads throughout the Island. (Applause.) MR. L. J. JENKINS said that even those who had opposed the Road Act in the first instance now admitted it was the best that had been passed, and the best proof of that was the general satisfaction prevailing.

GOVERNATORIAL VISITS

Proceeding, the speaker said he hoped that the visits of the Governor-General would be more frequent than in the past, say every two or three years. Nothing stimulated greater interest in the Dominion and the Empire and did more to encourage loyalty among our people than a visit in state by the King's representative. (Applause.) He hoped the Government would endeavour to bring this about for he was sure it would be highly appreciated by the people throughout the province. Proceeding he asked the government to give attention to providing wharf accommodation along the West River. This had been neglected by the late government, and the wharves already there had been allowed to become dilapidated and useless. They wanted better wharf accommodation and improved transit service, and he would not be satisfied until they got a service suitable to the district, viz., a steamer running to Charlottetown as often as required. He advocated the development of the horse-drawn market by farmers. It was a sad reflection on their butchers in Charlottetown importing cattle from Ontario, when they realized that it was not an unusual thing in times past for steamers to leave here with 150 head of cattle for other markets. Poultry also was a branch of agriculture that more might be made of for there was nothing more remunerative if properly handled. A flock of 50 to 100 hens could easily produce an annual net profit of $4 or $5 per hen, and nothing paid better than that. He advocated the levelling of the sides of roads, and the substitution of wire fences for the present ones, as it would facilitate travelling on the roads and at the same time benefit the farmers.

REPRESENTATION

With respect to the question of representation at Ottawa the Premier had put the matter so ably that no further reference to it was necessary. If the representation of the province is ever restored to its original number the restoration will come from the present government.

INDUSTRIES

He would like to see some provision made for the establishment of industries in the province. Some years ago there were several woolen mills which manufactured Island grown wool into as good cloth as could be made anywhere. The province is still producing the raw material for such factories but the raw material is shipped to Truro and shipped back manufactured into cloth. The middleman's profits on the transaction both ways together with freight both ways are lost to the farmers of the province. The same is true of hides, which are shipped out of the province, manufactured into boots, shoes, harness, etc., elsewhere and returned, the people of the province not only paying freight both ways and the middleman's profits but providing work for others which ought to be done at home. Such industries as fruit and vegetable canning could very well be maintained in the province and employment given here to many who now go abroad to seek it.

ROCKY POINT FERRY

Referring to the company recently organized to promote tourist travel and the purchase by it of a block of land at Rocky Point, one of the Island's beauty spots, he spoke of the inadequacy of the present ferry accommodation. Better and more convenient landing facilities should be provided, and in this connection he would recommend the purchase of the Connolly dock as much more convenient than the present ferry wharf. He had the assurance of the government that, if the present wharf property could be satisfactorily disposed of, this arrangement he suggested would be carried through.

REDUCTION OF DEBT

It was gratifying to all that while the public services were efficiently maintained the government had succeeded in reducing the debt of the province. The present administration had the unique distinction of being the first in forty years to announce a reduction in the provincial debt.

NAVAL BILL

He commended the Borden naval policy of assisting in the defence of the Empire and deprecated the factious opposition put up by the Liberals. The Federal opposition preferred they want an election but their preference was a bluff. If they went to the country they would receive a beating that would last them for the next twenty years.

S. T. GALLANT was the next speaker. In justice to himself and his colleague he would take exception to the remarks made by the Hon. member from West Cape, with reference to the condition of the roads in the District of Prince. These roads, he said, would separate favourably with those in the district represented by his hon. friend from West Cape. In the district which he had the honor to represent not only had the roads well kept up but new steel bridges had been built during the year and he considered the district had been generously treated by the Government.

THE ROADS

In the Second District, particularly in Lot 11, the roads were disgraceful, in some places bushes growing across the roads and he hoped
