The HOUSEWIFE and HER ACTIVITIES

A BRIDE'S PRAYER.

Give me light heart, I pray, for tedious hours;
Light step for the long round with mep and broom,
And the dft magic that with books and flowers
Can make a heaven of a single room.
Wisdom, to leave the petulant word unspoken,
And faith, to keep our dearest dreams unbroken,
And may we keep unspelled that precious thing
That men can love, whatever years may bring.

—Floris Clark McLaren, in National Home Monthly.

A telling moment when two women meet.
It takes some stone to lay the foundation of love.
Laugh at trouble and it will keep you busy laughing.
Only a fool measures a good time by the price he pays for it.
Some motor is never stop to think and some never think to stop.
Many a man with brains hasn't the common sense to know how to use them.

If You Have a Child
ASK YOUR DOCTOR THIS

Ask Him Before Giving Your Child an Unknown Remedy
Practically any doctor you ask will warn: "Don't give your child unknown remedies without asking your doctor first."

When it comes to the widely used children's remedy—"milk of magnesia," the standard of the world is established. For over half a century many doctors have said "PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia." Safe for children. No other is "quite like it."

Keep this in mind, and say "PHILLIPS' MILK OF MAGNESIA" when you buy. Now also in tablet form. Get the form you prefer. But see that what you get is labeled "Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia."

Fashions' Latest For Chic Dressers

Mummy will like this free and easy to wear dress, quite as well as small daughter. It's so easy to make and easy to iron after its repeated visits to the laundry.

It may have long or short "push-up" sleeves. The low cut collar and the buttoned vest effect give this little dress a neat tailored look.

Another important thing about this model is the front closing. It contributes to "self-help" dressing, since a child is able to put it on and button it unaided.

Gingham plaids, percale prints, poplin, etc., are other popular cottons for active little girls.

Style No. 1871 is designed for sizes 2, 4 and 6 years. Size 4 requires 1 1/2 yards of 36-inch material with 1/2 yard of 36-inch contrast.

Happenings of the Week

Court mourning ended Wednesday, Oct. 21. It has been in effect for nine months since the death of King George V. Members of the Royal Family will now probably be seen at dances and theatres. The black-edged notepaper used at the palace and also used by Government and Dominion offices also will be discarded.

Queen Mary's Christmas shopping this year will be done from her old home, Marlborough House. As everyone knows, she is an enthusiastic shopper and really revels in the exacting task of choosing delightful and at the same time appropriate gifts for her wide circle of relatives, personal friends, and retainers. Usually this work is spread over many months of the year, but there have been other and more urgent claims on her time in connection with all the changes and readjustments which a new reign brings about. October will see her take up her residence at Marlborough House and time will be found for the choosing and packing of Christmas gifts. Amid all the changes taking place in the Royal residences, the interesting fact is now being appreciated that Marlborough House, from an artistic point of view, will be one of the most perfect homes in the land.

At a charming reception Wednesday night the Lieutenant Governor and Mrs. DeBlois graciously welcomed upwards of 200 ladies and gentlemen invited to meet Mrs. Ewan MacDonald, O.B.E., of Toronto—the beloved Island authoress—Lucy Maud Montgomery, here on a holiday. Government House was a bower of loveliness with rich autumn leaves and exquisite flowers arranged to enhance the beauty of the palatial rooms. Attending the Lieut. Governor were his aides, Col. G. E. Full, Major J. R. Paton, Major W. J. MacDonald. Hospitality was dispensed in the dining room by Mrs. T. A. Campbell and Mrs. W. S. Stewart, who poured coffee. Mrs. Robert L. Cotton and Mrs. Lloyd D. Murray, who cut the ices, and the following ladies: Miss Ruth Hertz, Miss Margaret Mitch, Mrs. Fred I. Andrew, Mrs. Percy D. Williams, Mrs. George Buntain, Mrs. Harold L. Palmer, Miss Janet Hegan, Miss Iphigene Arsenault, Miss Marjorie Stewart, Miss Norah Longworth, Miss Jean Gill, Miss Rose Longworth, Mrs. Robert Holman, Miss Virginia Scarth, Miss Beatrice MacKinnon, Mrs. Ernest F. Sellar, Miss Quennie Jenkins, Mrs. Joseph P. Lantz, Mrs. M. Alban Farmer, Mrs. W. J. MacDonald, Miss Helen Wakeford, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gomez and Miss Rena Wood composed the orchestra which furnished enchanting music as the guests sauntered around chatting with one another. Mrs. MacDonald is thoroughly enjoying herself, spending happy hours renewing old friendships and visiting the scenes of her childhood.

While in the city this week Mrs. MacDonald was the guest of her cousin, Mr. W. Chester S. McClure, and Mrs. McClure, at their home, Bonnehinley.

Mrs. W. S. Stewart entertained very pleasantly for her friends at bridge Tuesday afternoon and at an afternoon tea Thursday at her residence Hillsborough House.

Miss Chris MacDonald and the Misses Ruth and Ann Rogerson were joint hostesses at a shower Wednesday evening for Miss Florence Brown whose marriage takes place next week. Many lovely gifts were given the popular bride-to-be and a jolly evening was happily spent.

Miss Marjorie Stewart was among the younger bride hostesses entertaining at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Stewart, Rosedale, Greenfield Avenue, on two occasions this week.

Mrs. J. A. Webster left Tuesday on a month's visit to her sister in Grand Rapids, Michigan.

Prime Minister King attended service at Westminster Abbey Sunday morning and afterwards motored to Stanstead Park to spend the night as guest of the Earl of Bessborough, former Governor-General of Canada, and the Countess of Bessborough.

Coronation red bids fair to be one of the most popular of the autumn colours. Its pinky shade is warm, yet not too red—a compromise between the new scarlet and the old clove carnation. It can be worn

Asylum Attendant (in hot pursuit)—Excuse me, sir, I've come to warn you that if a man calls here demanding money he's a lunatic.

Mr. McTavish—Mon, you're right.

SET UP FOR LIFE

Mrs. O'Hara—What! You're going to set out and marry that hard-up lodger of yours? What on earth are you going to live on?

Mrs. Mulligan—Beggara, we'll be all right. The poor fellow owes me enough to keep us in comfort for years.

parents and after their wedding trip south they will live in Yonkers. Mrs. Edie is a graduate of St. Margaret's School, Waterbury, Conn. Mr. Edie was graduated from Princeton and from the Columbia Law School and is with the law firm of Wallen, Beekwith and Edie in Yonkers. A lovely photograph of Mrs. Edie appears in the New York Times. Happiest congratulations will be extended from Charlottetown friends.

The Duchess of Gloucester is becoming known as the hospital duchess. She is in great demand for functions of this kind, owing, possibly to the large Scottish element in the hospital world. Military organizations have a claim on her patronage in view of her husband's career. She is also in demand as a patron of winter balls. One of the organizations that obtained the Duchess of Kent as its new patron is that for Alexandra Rose Day. The art and university worlds are eager to obtain her presence at their functions. The Duke of Kent has succeeded the King as president of the Royal College of Music, and the Duchess will doubtless accompany her husband at times to functions held there. The Duchess of York may be described as the Duchess of the industries and of societies concerned with child welfare. She has an ever-growing list of organizations of which she is president and patron.

Mrs. (Dr.) A. J. Murchison, Clyde River, who has been spending the past few weeks in Detroit, Mich., and Windsor, Ont., arrived home last evening.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Gordon Hughes and Miss Mary Gordon Hughes left yesterday by car to spend the weekend in Wolfville.

The tea hostesses at the Golf Links this afternoon will be Mrs. W. H. Pethick, Mrs. H. E. Miller, Mrs. N. H. DeBlois, Mrs. W. J. P. MacDonald, Mrs. R. Murray.

Miss Betty Sinclair, of Summerside gave a five table bridge and crystal shower on Wednesday evening in honour of Miss Sybil Tanton whose approaching nuptials were recently announced. The bride-to-be was the recipient of some exquisite pieces of crystal.

Mrs. Izme Newbery, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Beverly Robinson Newbery of Yonkers, N.Y., who spent the Christmas holidays at Government House here last year the guest of the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. DeBlois, was married on Saturday, Oct. 17th to Mr. Richard Edie, 3d, son of Mrs. Richard Edie, jr., also of Yonkers, and the late Mr. Edie, the ceremony in St. Paul's Church being performed by the rector Rev. Wilbur L. Caswell. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, who was formerly of Charlottetown and very kindly remembered here, wore a princess gown of old ivory satin. Her tulle veil fell from a rose point lace cap. She carried gardenias and lilies of the valley. Miss Isabelle M. Newbery, who was her sister's only attendant was attired in hyacinth blue velvet and carried tall-mast roses. Robert Van Tassel Edie was best man for his brother. The ceremony was followed by a reception at the home of the bride's

BOOKS / ART / MUSIC

(By F. R. E.)

One of the newest books about the fascinating subject of the Russian Ballet is "The Tragedy of Nijinsky" by Nijinsky's boyhood friend, Anatole Bourman, in collaboration with D. Lyman. It is appealingly and extravagantly written, and it makes very interesting reading. Mr. Bourman, undoubtedly, is Nijinsky's friend, admirer and defender, and he has given to the world a very intimate picture of perhaps the greatest dancer that ever lived.

We see Nijinsky living the normal life of a schoolboy and pupil of the Imperial Russian Ballet school, we see him as a graduate soon recognized as a genius and idolized by a lavish and emotional Russian society, we see him at the peak of his amazing and brief career, and at the tragedy of its close when madness banished him forever; and always he is somewhat alone and unconsciously apart, isolated by his very perfection.

Mr. Bourman has many references and anecdotes, in his book, of interesting Ballet personalities—Karsavina, Kshessinskaya, Fokine and Diaghilev, whom, inevitably, he disliked; and he has graphic accounts of the extravagances and foibles of the Russian aristocracy, incidents which he himself admits may sound unbelievable to Anglo-Saxon ears.

But the best of the book is the Russian part dealing with the early life of these two dancers, the one truly a genius, the other, more than ordinarily talented, yet exulting in his friend's every triumph.

A Sense of Humor is Frequently the Most Potent in Any Woman's Bag of Tricks When She is Seeking a Husband—Cultivate This Trait

Dear Miss Dix—I long to be loved and admired by the type of man of whom I have dreamed. If I can't get my ideal, shall I let that ruin my chances of happiness with some one slightly inferior? Or shall I pursue my course toward old maidenhood? I do not crave a career. I do not prefer single blessedness to married life. But, at the same time, I feel that I would never be satisfied with a husband less well educated than myself or who came from a family with a less refined background. So what am I to do? Boys are afraid of intelligence in girls and I have that handicap. Also, boys make beauty the first consideration and, sad to say, while I am not ugly I am no Miss America. Another disadvantage is that boys do not like to go with a girl who hasn't a waiting list for week-end dates unless they are unattractive themselves, and I wouldn't want to go with a boy no one else wanted to date. So what is there for a girl who refuses to lower her standards, yet who wishes to be popular? So far my sense of humor has saved me, but even that is getting low.

MARBLE CAKE

Here are some recipes for cakes which are easy to make, but yet not so generally met with as some others.

This is not a difficult cake to make. For the white part take two and a half teacups of flour, one and a half teacups of white sugar, half a teacup of melted butter, half a teacup of milk, two whites of eggs, half a teaspoon of bicarbonate of soda, one teaspoon cream of tartar.

For the dark part, two and a half cups of flour, one cup of brown sugar, half a cup of milk, half a cup of butter, two tablespoons of treacle, a pinch of cream of tartar, two ounces of candied peel.

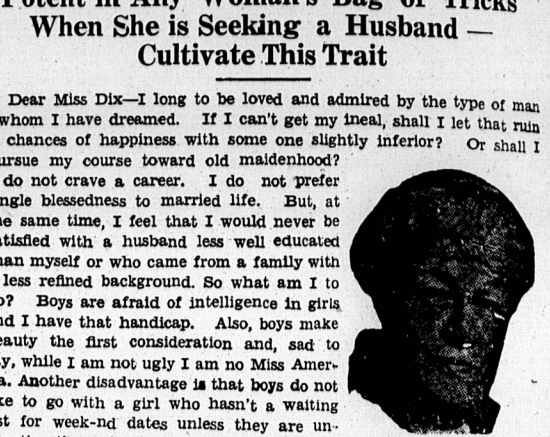

Mix the white and dark parts in separate bowls, putting all the dry ingredients in first, then the eggs and milk, lastly the melted butter and soda dissolved in a little warm water. Mix the treacle with the milk. Leave both mixtures to stand for half an hour. Have a tin lined with buttered paper, and fill alternately with two spoonfuls of the light and dark mixture. Bake in a moderate oven for two hours.

JOHNNY CAKE

Two breakfast cups of flour, one teacup of sugar, two teaspoons of baking powder, one egg, a piece of butter the size of a walnut, one teacup of any fruit liked, one cup of milk.

Put the flour, sugar, and baking powder in a bowl. Mix these well, rub in the butter and add the fruit, then beat the egg well, and add it with the milk. Pour into a prepared tin and bake for one hour.

Coronation Shoes

This British mils is showing off a pair of men's shoes designed for wear during coronation year. They are being exhibited at the Shoe and Leather fair at Islington, England.

Every girl's picture of the paragon she expects to marry is a composite of all of the romantic heroes she has ever seen on the screen or read about in novels. Her mind is so filled with this picture of a youth who is as handsome as a Greek god, who makes love like Clark Gable and money like Henry Ford that she only too often cannot see the honest, everyday young man who rates zero as a godling, but who would make her a good husband and a swell provider.

But I think your sense of humor isn't hitting on all sixteen cylinders when you ask if you shall wait for marriage until you find a man who is the living epitome of all of your girlish dreams. Why, there "ain't no such animal." There never was. There never will be. If you wait for a Fairy Prince to come riding along your way you are certainly headed toward the Spinster's Retreat.

Moreover, a sense of humor doesn't fade as beauty does. It's good for a long pull of matrimony. If you will notice the old married couples who are juggling along comfortable together toward their golden wedding day, you will find that in almost every instance the wife is a Polly woman who is cheerful and easy to live with and who has laughed off her husband's little faults and peculiarities instead of making tragedies out of them.

Dear Miss Dix—I have been married for eleven years to a man whom I idolize despite the fact that he is an incorrigible philanderer and keeps me in a perpetual torment until I feel that I shall eventually lose my sanity if I have to endure much more. He is either trying to jilt some woman of whom he has inevitably grown weary, or is in the process of a new love. I have offered him his freedom, but he insists that he does not want it, that he loves me more than any one else in the world and he just can't help doing the things he does. He has remained a lover all these years and I, too share in his fascination for women. He gives me everything that money can buy; never argues, never complains, has no grouchy moods. He is just a dear, darling, irresistibly charming chat. Can you explain to me how a man can sincerely love one woman, as I really believe he loves me, yet enjoys intrigues with others?

JESSIE A.

No, I can't. Nobody can. Even the Bible sets down as among the unfathomable mysteries a serpent on a rock and the way of a man with

"I have gained 10 lbs of Pep and Health!"

SOME months ago, Miss Irene J. was wishing that she could find some way of increasing her weight to normal and improving her health. Her happy letter tells how she did this:

"I started to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a few months ago. I am now taking my fifth package and during this time I have gained 10 pounds of pep and health."

Another young woman, Miss Jean B. was worried about her failing health and loss of weight. But after taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills she writes:

"About eight months ago I was feeling half sick. Tired all the time. No pep. Was continually losing weight. I had my blood tested and was told I was anaemic. So I started to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. It was the turning point for me! I have continued the treatment and I am now feeling life is worth living again."

There are hundreds of other letters like these which testify to the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Take them yourself to build up your health, give you more vitality and help you gain solid flesh if you are under normal weight. Price 50c.

Take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills regularly for a while; and if you don't feel better, stronger and healthier, your money will be returned to you.
