HOME.

O Golden land of light and song Beyond the fleece-and-crimson west, Where angel bands are bright and fair, And those we love are ever blest. O golden land of joyous light, I wait the summons to your joy— The joy that no chill blast will mar, And no wild frenzy can destroy. O glory-land of joy and song Where Jesus is upon the throne, Where he who reigns in love divine Is he who did my debts atone, In this immortal arms of strength!
