—On Monday evening Aug 12, a dancing party in the Institute Hall was enjoyed by a large number of young people. The hall was decorated for the occasion and music was rendered by the Western Five orchestra. It was chiefly through the efforts of Mr John Rochford, president of the Ball Club that the event was so great a success The proceeds paid the debt of the Ball Club and the remainder went to the elevator of the Western Hospital.

Wednesday afternoon, the annual picnic of St. Peter's Anglican Church was very much enjoyed by the children. Games were arranged and a nicely appointed supper served.

Rigid Cordon Clamped Around Haifa Area

JERUSALEM, Aug. 19— (AP)— British soldiers with rifles at the ready tonight maintained a "war-alert" watch over the Holy Land, where tension was heightened by an unverified report that three Jewish underground groups were preparing a country-wide offensive.

British army sources denied that such a plan had been discovered and that the military was "waiting for anything special".

Up to a late hour today the only unusual incident was another bomb warning forcing evacuation of the Jerusalem post-office for 40 minutes.

British troops, meanwhile, clamped a rigid cordon around the port area of Haifa following a tumultuous week-end in which a group of illegal Jewish immigrants attempted unsuccessfully to scuttle a transport assigned to deport them to Cyprus.

A Jewish spokesman here said details of a civil disobedience program protesting against British authority was still in the planning stage.

Repeated bomb warnings in Jerusalem resulted in the British erecting additional pill boxes Two now are in the process of construction inside the Jerusalem post office after six bomb warnings in two days.

On the Island of Cyprus, a new batch of 784 illegal Jewish immigrants were placed in a refuge camp after they had been brought ashore by British soldiers deporting them from Haifa.

Small Powers Have Greater Say This Time

By ROSS MUNRO
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

PARIS, Aug. 19 — (CP) — Although the middle and small powers at this Paris peace conference have protested strenuously at various times against the authority of the Big Four in peace-making, these middle and small powers have far more to say in this European settlement with Italy and the four German satellites than they did at Versailles in 1919.

After the First Great War, Allied belligerents including Canada gathered in Paris in January 1919, and for five months negotiations continued. But it was the Big Three of those days represented by Lloyd George for Britain, Georges Clemenceau for France, and Woodrow Wilson for the United States, who really made the peace.

The middle and small powers did not even have a vote. They were consulted occasionally but their influence throughout prolonged proceedings was extremely limited.

In the current conference, these countries are able to vote on all issues before the conference and debate in plenary session is wide open and uncontrolled. The Big Four, however, retain an effective veto in their reserved right to draft the final treaties.

As Canada's prime minister and leader of the Canadian delegation to Versailles in 1919, Sir Robert Borden worked hard to establish for Canada equality of status with other sovereign states both at conference and in respect of organizations created there, such as the League of Nations.

The other dominions fought for the same right and finally just before the conference opened, the imperial war cabinet adopted the formula that the dominions should have equality of status with Belgium and the other small powers and in addition should be included in the British Empire panel.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King faces none of the problems of establishing Canada's autonomy with which Sir Robert Border had to cope. Canada's position as a sovereign power is taken for granted as it has been for years and she is on equal status with every power here, great and small, as regards participation in this conference.

Death Of Former M.R.E.C. Secretary

TORONTO, Aug. 19 — (CP) — Rev. W.A. Ross, 74, retired United Church clergyman and former secretary of the Maritime Religious Educational Council, died in hospital here yesterday.

He was one of the founders of the Tuxis Boys and Trail Rangers movements in Canada. A native of Lorne, N.S., Mr. Ross retired as minister of the United Church at Springside, N.S., in 1944 after more than 40 years in the ministry.

A graduate of Dalhousie University and Pine Hill Divinity Hall at Halifax, he completed his masters' degree at the University of Edinburgh. After holding pastorates at Humphrey's Mills, N.B., Londonderry, N.S. and Scotburn, N.S., Mr. Ross became secretary of the interdenominational M.R.E.C. and for 14 years travelled throughout the Maritimes visiting Protestant Sunday Schools.

He represented Canada at several international Sunday School conventions in Europe and the United States. Mr. Ross returned to the ministry after the United Church was formed, successively filling pulpits at Milltown, N.B., Edmundston, N.B. Hampton, N.B., Cunard, N.S., and Springside.
