Large-scale Commando Attacks And Heavy Air Raids Likely To Be Major Action In West

(By Robert Bunnelle, Associated Press Staff Writer) (AP)—LONDON, June 19—Prime Minister Churchill was portrayed by competent informants tonight as seeking United States reinforcements to stabilize the Mediterranean front, even though this means that the opening of a full-scale "second front" on the European continent must wait until next spring. Axis successes in the Libyan desert, these persons said, had frustrated the Middle East to a position of the highest priority in United Nations strategy. Hence Mr. Churchill, now conferring with President Roosevelt in the United States, is held to be convinced that

War Situation Last Night

(By KIRKE L. SIMPSON, Associated Press War Analyst) Contrasted with adverse war developments in the Mediterranean and Western Atlantic theatres as the first anniversary of Hitler's attack on Russia rolls around, the Pacific front shows heartening improvement, except in China. Whatever the purpose of Japanese naval forays in the North Pacific, Japanese losses constitute a definite dent in enemy striking power. A 10-to-1 ratio as compared to American casualties is not an exaggerated estimate. It is probably much greater in fact, with nearly three score enemy combat and cargo craft sunk or put out of action in the Coral Sea, Midway and Aleutians operations. Japan can show only a precarious footing in the western Aleutians on the profit side of the grim ledger. The strategic value of that Japanese foothold is too negligible in comparison to its cost to figure importantly in the renewed Roosevelt-Hitler conferences. It was something of more consequence in the picture that brought the Prime Minister to the United States. There has been much speculation that he and Mr. Roosevelt would discuss second-front operations in Europe to aid Russia, or new moves to bolster the shaken defences of Egypt. There is another possibility. This week-end, embracing the night of June 21-22, is not only the German-Russian war anniversary. It is pledged himself to knock Russia out of the war.

Voluntary System Is Preferred

Revenue Minister Gibson (Ottawa, June 19—(CP)—Revenue Minister Colin Gibson, a distinguished veteran of the First World War, told the House of Commons today that he would support conscription for service overseas immediately if the voluntary system of enlistments failed. But the system had not failed and he preferred to conscription. "I am not an anti-conscriptionist but I have served under both systems and I do not agree with the view that conscription is necessarily the best method of producing an effective fighting force," Col. Gibson said. Two other members spoke in today's conscription debate, both supporters of Prime Minister Mackenzie King's bill designed to empower the government to impose conscription for service overseas by Order-in-Council. They were W. Ross Macdonald (Lib. Hanover), also a First Great War veteran, who said he was satisfied that the moment conscription for overseas became necessary the government would impose it, and John R. MacNeil (Con. Toronto-Davenport), who said he would support it because it was a step in the right direction. Mr. Macdonald said he would advise his constituents that if they were called for service after the war passes they would be in for the duration and might be asked to serve in any theatre of war. Mr. MacNeil said that after listening to the speech in which Mr. King announced the new bill, he "could not put my finger on the policy of the government and I doubt if anybody could."

Germany Claim Northern Defences Are Penetrated; Nazi Pressure Is Being Increased.

(By Henry C. Cassidy, Associated Press Staff Writer) MOSCOW, June 20—(Saturday)—(AP)—Reinforced German infantry, covered by a smoke screen and supported by hundreds of planes and tanks, smashed four times at one point in the Sevastopol defences yesterday but were hurled back each time with heavy losses, Soviet dispatches reported early today. At another point four German infantry regiments attacked fiercely for 15 hours in a desperate attempt to break into the Black Sea naval bastion—and came close to their objective—but finally were repulsed. A German claim that their troops had penetrated Sevastopol's northern defences was not confirmed here, but the Germans nevertheless appeared to be increasing their pressure. A Sevastopol dispatch to Red Fleet, the navy organ, said the Nazis had thrown fresh reserves into the battle. The artillery and air bombardments increased in intensity, it was said, burying alive some Red army gun crews. One of the German assaults, the ground forces were supported by masses of planes, flying in groups of 60. A companion attack 400 miles north of the Red Sea, at the south of Kharkov was continuing on a much reduced scale. The Kalinin front northwest of Moscow, the Soviet communiqué declared that "the enemy was driven out of several positions" and that prisoners and booty were seized. Several thousand bombs were dropped on the deep defences of Sevastopol two days ago, dispatches said, and mass attacks of tanks supported infantry tried vainly to crack the southern positions. The assaults were renewed yesterday but the accurate fire of Red artillery was said to have dispersed the foe. Last night a great artillery battle was thundering on the northern approaches to the Crimean citadel while the Russians persisted with counter-attacks in some sectors.

Britons Seek Answer To Sudden Reversal In Libya

(By Noland Norgaard, Associated Press Staff Writer) LONDON, June 19—(AP)—Britons tonight unhappily sought the reasons for their forces' sudden reversal in Libya, and competent military critics supplied the least palatable answer: Field Marshal Erwin Rommel had bigger and better guns and tanks and used them with greater skill. A week ago Britons were assured the battle was going satisfactorily and only a few subdued voices warned reminders of other reversals in the wild desert fighting of the last two years. The public was not prepared for the abrupt discovery that the British strong points had become traps from which troops were forced to retreat and the public was not consoled when correspondents reported that Rommel lacked sufficient

Chinese Report Success Against Jap Bases

CHUNGKING, China, June 19—(AP)—The Chinese reported local successes tonight in operations against Japanese bases in Kiangsi and Hupeh Provinces, partly offsetting the gains in a threatening backdoor drive upon coastal Fukien Province and an additional seaborne invasion of neighboring Chekiang. Nanchang, Japanese Kiangsi base was said to be under mounting pressure by Chinese forces which have had the city under attack for more than a week, and the high command announced recapture of Kinki, 80 miles to the south. Recapture of Kinki checked one thrust of the Japanese overland drive against Fukien, but the Chinese said the enemy had made a tactical advance south of Kwangtung.

"The order applies to men not fit for military training but fit for special duties in the R.C.M.P. provided postponement of military training has not been granted."
