TO KEEP STOVE PIPES CLEAN

When green wood is substituted for coal during the winter in the household heater, there is one small drawback. A deposit of a tar-like substance will form on the heater flues and stove-pipes. This can easily be removed if it is done by the right method. This is the right way: Dissolve air-slaked lime in water until the water will take up no more. Then apply it with a whitewash brush to the inside of the heater flues and smoke-pipe. Remove the smoke-pipe and apply it to the base of the chimney. Put back the pipe and start a fire. The tar-like substance will drop off the flues, or can easily be scraped off.
