Britain's Mobilization Surprises the Continent

WHO DARES THE LION?

Appreciative Editorial in a New York Paper—Empire on Review.

The New York Tribune yesterday had the following on its editorial page under the caption, "An Empire on Review":

The trouble in South Africa are a second time placing the British Empire on review before the world. The first time was just after the Jameson raid. Great Britain was then at the height of her "splendid isolation." There was some unpleasant, not to say menacing talk upon the Continent. The spectre of hostile intervention began to take form. It was necessary for the insular Athenians to make a demonstration

If life is worth having it is worth taking care of. Recklessness does not pay, either in our work or our pleasure. When people read of a young man who has been killed while performing some reckless feat on a toboggan or at some other hazardous sport, their sympathy is mixed with surprise that any human being should thus carelessly risk life.

There are thousands of men who go about their common every-day avocations. They over-work, they do not take sufficient time from business or labor to eat or sleep or rest, or to care for their health. Outraged nature throws out danger signals, to which they pay no heed. They suffer from bilious or nervous disorders, from sick headache, giddiness, drowsiness, cold chills, flushings of heat, shortness of breath, blotches on the skin, loss of appetite, uncomfortable sensations in the stomach after meals, loss of sleep, lassitude and trembling sensations. These are the advance symptoms of serious and fatal maladies.

All disorders of this nature are cured by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It restores the lost appetite, gives sound and refreshing sleep, makes the digestion perfect, the liver active. It purifies the blood and makes it rich with the life-giving elements of the food. It is the great blood-maker and flesh-builder. It makes the body active and the brain keen. It is the best of nerve tonics. Thousands have testified to its merits. No honest dealer will urge upon you a substitute for the little extra profit it may afford.

The man or woman who neglects constitution is gathering in the system a store of disorders that will culminate in some serious and possibly fatal malady. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are a safe, sure, speedy and permanent cure for constipation. One little "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, and two a mild cathartic.

against, not the Transvaal, but the world. The word was given. And in a twinkling of an eye, from every wave made hollow of all the seven seas there seemed to start a British battle-ship, with decks full cleared for action. Never, perhaps, was a more startling exhibition made of a great nation's readiness by the potential threateners. As that amazing reserve fleet steamed into view, the possible meddlers vanished. As "Oom Paul" put in his racy speech, "The Old Lady just sneezed; and then where were they?" For answer, here is what the Neue Freie Presse, of Vienna, says: "There can be no question of the intervention of any European power. No one will rob the British lion of his prey."

To-day this second review is of a different character. It is not the navy, but the army. Now, the British army has been much despised upon the continent since the memory of Waterloo began to fade. Its hideous mismanagement in the Crimea discredited its system as much as Balaklava honored its individual valor; and since then it has had to deal with none but petty tribes or with remote enemies. Upon the fields of Europe it has been unknown, and Waterloo has been eclipsed by Duppel, Sedowa, and Sedan. With no conscription, outnumbered more than ten to one by rivals, and scattered to the four corners of the earth, it has come to be regarded as a negligible if not an outright minus quantity; but now that estimate is reconsidered.

With a promptness, a smoothness, and an ease that make the Continental captains rub their eyes, a British army is mobilized and sent half way around the globe for action, and it shows a fitness of physical condition, a perfection of equipment and discipline, and, in brief, an all round efficiency that excites the amazement and admiration of even the German Headquarters Staff and call therefrom a formal but most cordial compliment. True, it is a small army compared with what the great military powers could put into the field. But size does not always count. It shows in field action the efficiency which a German expert in the Soudan campaign pronounced "simply incredible." True, also, it has to be summoned from distant parts. But, then, too, all the scattered colonies stand ready with their contingents. It is not an army from Great Britain and Ireland alone, but from that Greater Britain which includes the Dominion of Canada and the United States of Australia.

So the world is made to realize that the British Empire is still a military force on land as well as sea, and on sea as well as land. There has been some vain talk of Europe's opportunity while British hands are busy in South Africa, for making anti-British advances elsewhere in the world. In the first place, it is not to be believed that any power or powers have such a purpose or desire; and in the second place, it is to be observed that despite her business in South Africa Great Britain is just as free as ever to deal with any other foe. The hands with which she has been expected to grapple with Russian or French or German aggression are not tired or busy. Her fleet is not engaged in the Transvaal. Just a few ships under the gallant Chichester—the friend of Dewey at Manila—are sufficient for her purpose there. All the rest remain on duty as before around her coasts, in the narrow seas, in the Mediterranean, and wherever there is an interest to guard or a menace to check. It is not in vain-glorious boasting nor in swaggering jingoism, but in the calm confidence of well prepared and well tested strength, that the British Empire stands on review today, ready at every point, on land and sea, to keep alike her martial drumbeat sounding and her peaceful commerce moving and her vast realm intact all around the crimsoned circle of the globe.

POISONED HIS WIFE

Rev. G. E. Morrison Pays The Penalty.

ON THE GALLOWES

Said he Had Nothing to Confess; but had Taken His Trouble to God.

PANHANDLE, Tex., Oct. 31.—Rev. George E. Morrison was hanged at noon Friday in Vernon for the murder of his wife by poison. He met death calmly, and to the last protested his innocence. Before the black cap was adjusted the murderer was asked if he had any statement he cared to make. "I declare again, and solemnly," he replied, "that I am innocent. Circumstances over which I had no control placed me in this position. I have taken my trouble in private to my God. I admit that I have acted indiscreetly. I have done nothing that I feel I ought to confess. I am in the hands of my Maker. He knows that I am innocent, and that is sufficient."

Then the noose was adjusted, the murderer's hands and arms were tied, and the drop fell. Morrison's neck was broken and death was seemingly painless.

It was hoped up to the last moment that Governor Sayers would intercede and grant Morrison respite, but the governor positively refused to have anything to do with the case.

The execution took place at Vernon because a change of venue was taken to that place by the prisoner when he was tried for his crime.

Morrison was the pastor of the Central Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church of this city. The crime for which he paid the death penalty was the poisoning of his wife in October, 1897, in order to marry a woman possessed of large means, of which $100,000 was in cash. Morrison married about seventeen years ago. He and his wife lived in California, then in Oklahoma, and finally in Panhandle. He was born in Illinois and went to school in Carbondale, where he became acquainted with Miss Anna Whittlesey, who subsequently moved with her parents to Topeka, Kan.

Morrison met Miss Whittlesey in August, 1897, ascertained her financial condition and made an offer of marriage. He told her his wife had been dead eleven years; that he had quit preaching; had been successfully engaged in the cattle business for eight years, and owned a ranch near Higgins, Texas.

On his return to Texas, Morrison corresponded with Miss Whittlesey urging his proposition of marriage, saying he had for some years intended to go to her when he could not see the time. This statement was made one month before the death of his wife.

Morrison procured strychnine ostensibly to kill "warmint," which were killing his chickens, and a box of quinine with empty capsules. Mrs.

Morrison went to an entertainment one Friday evening, leaving Morrison at home to prepare his Sunday sermon. The minister took the strychnine back to the druggist the next morning, saying he was afraid to use it for fear he would poison his neighbor's chickens. The package had been opened. He preached Sunday night, and alluded in a pathetic manner to parting with loved ones at death.

Morrison called upon his neighbors for assistance about ten o'clock that night. His wife was in paroxysms, but he delayed sending for a doctor, who arrived after the woman's death.

The day after his wife's burial, Morrison wrote to Miss Whittlesey, asserting his love for her, and telling her he would soon visit Topeka.

On his return from Topeka, the minister was arrested, held a few days and released on bond. He fled, and about three months afterward was re-arrested in San Francisco and taken back to Texas, where he was tried, Miss Whittlesey being the main witness against him.

Bicycles in the Transvaal.

The Transvaal war will at least have the credit of being the first campaign in which bicycles have been employed by regular troops, says the London Telegraph, and from the frequency with which they are mentioned in the telegrams, it is very evident that the riders are doing good service. This fact, coupled with the order of Sir Redvers Buller that departmental officers at bases might have the option of using their cycles instead of horses, and receive an allowance in lieu of rations, leads one to hope that the military authorities are at length beginning to perceive the practical value of the bicycle in warfare. For years they have blighted and snubbed it, strangely enough in face of the declared opinions in its favor of Lord Wolseley and other distinguished officers. And it has been left to the volunteers to do what little has been done to show the military efficiency of the bicycle. Year after year in the manoeuvres cyclists have proved themselves of great service to the regiment to which they have in many cases been placed under the command of officers of the regulars who had only the most elementary ideas of the capacity and limitations of bicycles. Yet it is only within comparatively recent time that the authorities have recognized the cycle as a practicable vehicle for military purposes.

Dr. A. W. CHASE Triumphs over the Worst Forms of KIDNEY... DISEASE

The wonderful success of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills adds to the fame of the great doctor whose name is familiar in almost every home as the author of the world famous Recipe Book.

Scores and thousands of grateful men and women have been rescued from the misery and dangers of kidney disease by this greatest of all kidney cures.

Mr. D. C. Simmons, Mabe, Ont., writes: "My kidneys and back were so bad I was unable to work or sleep. My urine had sediment like brick dust, I was compelled to get up four or five times during the night. I saw Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills advertised and concluded to give them a trial. I have only used one box and am completely cured. I was a great sufferer for 28 years, but my kidneys do not bother me now. I enjoy good rest and sleep and consider Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills a boon to suffering humanity."

FIRST MOTOR CARRIAGE.

Mr. Dandurand of Queen's Park Will Have One Here This Week.

MONTREAL, Oct. 30.—The first automobile that has ever raised its mechanism on the streets of Montreal will be seen here this week.

The owner will be Mr. U. H. Dandurand, the managing director of the Queen's Park track, who has organized a company for the sale and manufacture of these vehicles throughout Canada. The company has a capital of $100,000, and letters patent are being asked for by Senator Dandurand. It will be known as the Dominion Auto-Car Company. It will work under the patents of the New England Motor Carriage Company, and the vehicles that will be built will be driven by steam and gasoline.

The wagon with its supply of water and gasoline will weigh six hundred pounds, and will be able to run eighty miles without replenishing, at a rate of from one to forty miles an hour. The vehicles are said to be good hill climbers, and will cost six hundred dollars a piece.
