FLYING SIX MILES HIGH

How it feels to fly approximately six miles high is explained by Major R. W. Schroeder, who believes that, with due preparation, he can climb to an altitude of more than 30,000 feet. The story of his flight for height he tells in Popular Mechanics as follows:

"I have been connected with aviation since 1910, and during this time I have worked as a mechanic for some of America's leading pilots and gained a very valuable training. I was always keen to learn all I could, and I daresay that all my past experiences were beneficial to me in my efforts to establish a new world's altitude record. The last world's altitude record held by America was made in August 1911, when the late Lincoln Beachy made a climb of 11,642 feet at the big aviation meet in Chicago. Since that time G. Legagneux, in France, made a climb to 20,258 feet on December 28, 1913.

"In order to take an airplane to a higher altitude than any other pilot in the world I found that more than one or two attempts would be necessary. I made three the first taking me an altitude of 24,000 feet, the second to 27,000 feet, and the last to 28,900 feet, all of which would have been world's records, and now I feel certain that with a few changes and improvements I can get to 30,000 feet.

Sensations "The following experiences and sensations which I noticed during my flight were due to the lack of oxygen. I took off at 1:45 p. m., September 18, 1918, and made a steady westerly climb, passing through clouds at 3,000, 12,000 and 16,000 feet. At 20,000 feet, while still climbing in large circles, my goggles became frosted, making it very difficult to watch the instruments. The temperature at this altitude was 18 degrees centigrade below zero. When I reached 25,000 feet I noticed the sun growing very dim. I could hardly hear my motor run, and I felt very hungry.

"The trend of my thought was that it must be getting late, that evening must be coming on, and that this was the reason the sun was getting so dim. But I was still climbing, so thought I might as well stick to it a little longer, for I knew I could reach my ceiling pretty soon. Then I would go down, and even though it were dark I could land all right, for I had made night landings many times before; and so I went on talking to myself, and this I thought was a good sign to begin taking oxygen, and I did. I was then over 25,000 feet up and the temperature was 25 degrees centigrade below zero.

"As soon as I started to inhale the oxygen the sun grew brighter again and my motor began to exhaust so loudly that it seemed something must be wrong with it. I was no longer hungry, and the day seemed to be a most beautiful one. I felt like smiling with sheer joy as I gazed about through the small portion of my goggles which had no frost, due to a drop of oil which had splashed on them from the motor.

"I kept at it until my oxygen gave out, and at that point I noticed my aneroid indicated very nearly 29,000 feet. The thermometer showed 32 degrees centigrade below zero. The lack of oxygen was affecting me and I was beginning to get cross. I could not understand why I was only 29,000 feet after climbing for so long a time. I remember that the horizon seemed to be very much out of place, but I felt that I was flying correctly, and that I was right and the horizon wrong.

"About this time the motor quit. I was out of gasoline, the propeller stopped and everything was quiet; so down I went in a spiral. When I had descended to about 20,000, I began to feel much better, and realized that the lack of oxygen had affected me. I passed down through the clouds at 16,000 feet, and, as I remember, it was snowing from these clouds upon the next layer some 4,000 feet below.

"During the entire trip I did not see the ground from the time I went up through the clouds above Dayton until I came through the clouds again, at 4,000 feet above Canton. I landed near the house of a Mr. Jos. Schario, and one of his little daughters came running up to me, but she was speechless. I asked her, 'Where am I?' and she replied, 'Canton, Ohio.' Well, it almost took the wind out of me to think I had drifted over 200 miles from where I started. I reached my greatest height 105 minutes after I started. It required 20 minutes to come down. I was in the air 325 minutes, flying in a westerly direction practically all the time, and came down 200 miles east of where I went up."

BENEATH THE FLOWERS

That was a beautiful and moving conception of Sir John Fraser's spoken at the Pilgrims' luncheon that the burial of the war in France should be made gardens of flowers. In his eloquent words: "I would like to see—and I do see sometimes in my vision—the flowers of America growing over where lie so many of your gallant sons. I know there will be mighty

AT THIS SEASON LOSS OF APPETITE

Is very common. In many cases it is due to impure blood, which cannot give the digestive organs the stimulus necessary for the proper performance of their functions. Thousands know by experience that Hood's Sarsaparilla restores appetite and would advise you to give it a trial this season. It originated in the successful prescription of a famous physician. Get it today. Take Hood's Pills if you happen to need a laxative—they don't gripe.

PERSONAL ACTIONS AND REACTIONS.

The following wise words from Bishop Leete of the Methodist Episcopal Church are worthy of most careful consideration: Jesus Christ is the supreme need of the human heart. Therefore He is the first need of the human heart. None of us has a right to live for himself. Each life reacts upon neighborhoods, industries, churches, upon all social institutions and on the nation and world. All human groups and activities are what they are, made by individuals. To save the earth from its disorders and distresses we must work on and through both masses and personal units. In the last analysis, however, for influence and for leadership it is one man, one woman, one child that counts. Religion in its highest form is a personal reaction to the highest personality, Jesus Christ. Christ may be presented to many. He must be received and rejected by each. The world can never be redeemed and saved to righteous democracy without a tremendous effort to secure individual allegiance to the person and principles of the Founder of Christianity and the Creator of human brotherhood.

We are about at the end of our need of salvation by a show of hands. Many communities have been evangelized in to a spiritual deadness which even "the biggest show on earth" of a popular revival character has much trouble in counting into a semblance of success and which leaves behind little residuum except scum. Are we not in need of "going over the top"? In a vast, extended, quiet, but determined effort to capture men for Christ? Is not personal evangelism better than patent evangelism? Is not this the very hour to organize for a forward saving effort, not of a few specialists, but of all Christians? Let me do my part, you yours, and let us all compare notes on methods and results.

Alleged Confidential Letter.

Freiheit makes illuminating revelations regarding preparations for a Polish-German war. It prints an alleged confidential letter, dated May 26, purporting to be signed by Major Gen. Dietrich, commander of the 9th Infantry brigade, addressed to leading people of the district, and which says the "highest leadership" wishes to gain a clear picture of how the resumption of the war would be viewed. For the purpose the circular requests an answer to the following questionnaire: "Is the population of the district overwhelmingly for resumption or not; if in favor, is the population prepared only for defense or resumption only in its narrow native territory, or is it prepared for more extended fighting, even outside Germany, as in Poland or Russia; would a call to the colors have a prospect of success; could the authorities count on a great influx of volunteers.

stretchers of fleur-de-lis marking the sleeping place of 1,500,000 brave Frenchmen, I would like to see the blooms of Belgium nodding over the graves, where brave Belgians sleep, and I know that out there I would like to see a mighty avenue of Maple trees, all gloriously with their crimson and with their gold, telling the place where the Canadians rest, and there will be mighty masses of the wonderful Australian wattle showing where the Australians are sleeping; yes, and I know that, out there will be roses everywhere, the white rose, the red rose, the roses of Old England, of Lancaster and of York, telling where 500,000 brave Englishmen lie. "Perhaps out in the Garden of the Brave, I would come across stretches of heather. I would know there were Scotsmen buried there. There would be playing—I would hear the sound of the pipes, for the pipes always play where dead Scottish soldiers lie; that is—the vision that comes to me."

GREAT BRITAIN NEVER SO ACTIVE AS TODAY

NEW YORK, June 3.—Great Britain was never so active as today. There is no "paralysis" there. During the war here industries were so better than ever. This is the opinion expressed to the Evening Sun by Sir Joseph Davies, M. P., who represents the great railway centre of Crewe in the British House of Commons.

With J. H. Thomas, M. P., Sir Joseph is visiting the United States. "Of the four million workers discharged from the army or from war occupations, three million have already been absorbed by peace-time industries," said Sir Joseph Davies. "This includes half of the odd 600,000 women who lost war jobs with the cessation of hostilities.

"Our mines, our food production, our other industries have been so developed during the war that we are working as never before." Sir Joseph leaves today for the Adirondacks, and will return home by way of Canada. His trip, he explained, is purely for pleasure. Mr. Thomas has been in ill health and has come to this country for a rest.

ASTROLOGIST PREDICTS ANOTHER WAR IN 1924

There will be another world war in June, 1926, according to a writer in the British Journal of Astrology. This prophet, who signs himself Sepharial, asks for a serious hearing in as much as he claims to have published a year in advance in each case the exact date of the war of 1914 and of the cessation of hostilities. "The first phase of the next war," he writes, "will begin with Turkey, whose perfidy will lead to its final overthrow. At this time Prussian intrigue will dominate the position in the Near East, affecting Greece, Turkey and Russia. But according to my calculations, the great crisis will not be reached until June, 1926. In this great war which may be regarded as Prussia's counter to the war of 1914-18, the malevolent forces take the form in Vienna and Berlin, ascend to Petrograd, penetrate through the whole of Russia and descend via the Black Sea and Turkey in Asia on to Syria and Palestine."

Another allied victory is predicted by "Sepharial."
