Dodgers-Cards Meet In Vital Second Tilt This Afternoon

By GAYLE TALBOT

BROOKLYN, Oct. 2 — (AP) — A chastened but still combative bunch of Brooklyn Dodgers rolled back to their home park today for their date with destiny and St. Louis Cardinals at 1:30 P.M. E.S.T. —2 30 P.M. A S.T.—tomorrow.

Walloped 4-2 in the opening tussle of their best-of-three play-off for the National League pennant, the "ferocious gentlemen" of Flatbush face sudden extinction unless they can square the set at Ebbets Field.

The Cardinals, feeling their collective oats after smacking five Dodger hurlers for a dozen hits in yesterday's fray, need only to repeat the dose to win the flag they were conceded by many at the season's beginning.

Although the Dodgers engaged in no whooping and hollering, they were not as gloomy a set of young men as might have seemed justified by the jolting they received from Howie Pollet and the rest of the Cards in the opener.

"What's the use in moaning?" asked Leo Durocher, the old dugout philosopher. "We've felt like this before, but things always turned out to be better the next day. Thinks will look a lot different tomorrow night."

It was recalled the Dodger manager won the toss to decide where the play-off would open, and he chose St. Louis for the first game and Brooklyn for the second and third. He apparently had unbounded confidence that his club could trim the Cards at Ebbets Field, no matter what befell them in the opener.

Leo claimed today he was undecided whether to throw his veteran ace, Kirby Higbe, or rookie left-hander Joe Hatten at the Red Birds tomorrow, but Leo was not believed to be as undecided as he made out.

After what happened to 20-year-old Ralph Branca, it did not seem likely that the Dodger pilot would take another chance on youth. Higbe, who won 17 while losing 10 during the season, appeared to be the logical choice

Although manager Eddie Dyer of the Cards was supposed to be wavering between Murry Dickson, a right-hander, and Harry (The Cat) Brecheen, a portsider, as the man to go out tomorrow and pitch his club into the World Series, the Dodgers, themselves, fully expected to face Brecheen.

They pointed out that Dickson, who was Dyer's original choice to hurl the second game, worked long and hard in the ball pen yesterday while Pollet wavered and lobbled through inning after inning. Also that Dickson is weighted down with a fresh cold.

Brecheen, on the other hand, hasn't worked since last Saturday night, when he pitched a brilliant victory over Chicago Cubs to keep the Cards tied for the lead.

Windsor Team Can't Complain About Chances

MIDDLETON, N.S., Oct. 2 — (CP) — Windsor Maple Leafs are one team that can't complain about not being given a fair chance to qualify in the Nova Scotia senior baseball playoffs.

Already eliminated from two previous playoff series, Windsor was back again today and took a 6-0 licking from Middleton Cardinals in the opening game of the provincial semi-finals.

Middleton now needs one more victory in the best-of-three series to knock Windsor out of the running for good this year and qualify to take on Truro Bearcats in the finals.

Maple Leafs were first eliminated in the Valley League playoffs by Kentville while they were playing without Tommy Linkletter. When he was reinstated along with other players for Truro, Halifax Shipyards and Halifax Arrows, Windsor asked that they be given another crack at the playoffs.

They were called on to meet Halifax Shipyards in the semi-finals and were eliminated in straight games again.

However, Shipyards were disqualified yesterday and the Windsor-Halifax series was thrown out. That's how the Maple Leafs rate the third chance.

In today's tilt Middleton's Lefty Letteri was in control of the situation throughout in turning back the Windsor squad.

Second game of the series will be played tomorrow with the third game, if necessary, in Middleton Friday or Saturday.

Cards Favored To End Playoff

(By The Associated Press)

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 2—Odds announced by betting commissioner James J. Carroll today made St. Louis slight favorites to make it two straight over Brooklyn Dodgers tomorrow in the play-off for the National League pennant.

Odds on the Cards to win tomorrow's game at Brooklyn, with either Murry Dickson or Harry Brecheen pitching, were 4-5, meaning that a $5 bet on the Red Birds would win $4. The odds on Brooklyn, with Joe Hatten pitching, were 1-1.

Carroll's odds on the series as a whole, after St. Louis won the play-off opener 4-2, made the Cards heavy favorites at 1-4. The odds on Brooklyn winning the series were 3-1.

Dodgers Will Get Bonus

(By The Canadian Press)

BROOKLYN, Oct. 2 — Branch Rickey, president of Brooklyn Dodgers, tonight announced that the club's share of the receipts for the play-off game or games against St. Louis Cardinals at Ebbets Field would be handed out as a bonus to about 50 full time members of the organization other than executives and players.

Rickey, in a statement, said that the bonus was awarded to the employees "for the faithful performance of extraordinary duties during the past year."

Club road secretary Harold Parrott said that melon would be split among Dodgers scouts, officials of the organization's minor league farms, clerical help and others.

Briefs From Britain

By JACK SULLIVAN

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

LONDON, Oct 1 — (CP) — England's cricketers received good news from the board of trade shortly after the season ended. More equipment will be available — next year.

Big-time cricket returned to the country this year after a seven-year layoff in conditions described as "austere," but the various county clubs managed to get by. There were shortages of bats, balls and pads but allowances were made by both players and spectators.

The Board of Trade announcement capped off predictions that the game will mark the return of many clubs forced to abandon operations due to shortage of equipment.

Arrangements have been made for imports from India of cricket balls and equipment, up to a value of £80,000 ($320,000) between September and next June. The supplies will include nearly 200,000 balls.

"Austerity" cricket was due to shortage of skilled labor and materials in Britain.

There may be something to croquet after all. Mrs. Caroline Greyke of London who died recently at the age of 101, claimed she always kept fit by playing croquet. She took part in tournaments until she was 96.

Hogan And Nelson Are Favorites

(By The Associated Press)

FORT WORTH, Tex., Oct. 2—Playing the course they learned by every weary yard as caddies, wee Ben Hogan and tall Byron Nelson start tomorrow as favorites in the second annual $10,000 Fort Worth open golf tournament.

Hogan, winner of 12 tournaments this year while amassing $37,877 as the game's top money-winner, comes here fresh from victory in the Dallas open last week-end.

Nelson, who hasn't played in a tournament since the National P. G. A. six weeks ago, having quit the regular tournament trail, has been practicing on the par 37-34 —71 6,350-yard Glen Garden course and shading regulation figures easily.

A field of 60 professionals and 22 amateurs will start the 72-hole grind tomorrow. They will play 18 holes daily through Sunday.

Lloyd Mangrum, another former Texan; Herman Barron, Herman Keiser, Vic Ghezzi and Dick Metz are included in the field.

Due to the fact that Saint John C.Y.O. found it impossible to come here for the third and final game of the New Brunswick-P.E.I. junior title, it now appears that Charlie Ryan's juniors are champions of all they survey in the two provinces.

In a letter received last evening from Saint John by Bill Reid, Director of Physical Fitness for the Province, local juniors were told that they would immediately wire acceptance of Saint John's proposal to play at St. Joseph's next Sunday or Saint John would immediately make arrangements to meet Liverpool for the Maritime title.

♦ ♦ ♦ ♦

After consulting Coach Ryan and Manager Buck White of the Juniors and discussing stalling tactics of St. John as mentioned in this column yesterday, it was decided to call Len Pottie, manager of Liverpool Juniors. Having heard the story of how the locals had tried to co-operate with Saint John, even going so far as to play two games in St. Joseph's and being quite willing to stay over until Monday for the third, and also having talked to the manager of the Saint John team, Mr. Pottie suggested that the New Brunswick team be ruled out and that a series be played between Liverpool, the Nova Scotia champs, and the Island titleholders for the Maritime crown.

♦ ♦ ♦ ♦

That is how it stands today. Liverpool will travel to the Island for the opening game here Saturday afternoon. Second game will be played at Liverpool on either Monday or Tuesday afternoon and providing a third and deciding game is necessary it will also be played in the Nova Scotia centre.

Liverpool has gained a good reputation as a bunch of clever junior ball tossers; Charlottetown's squad have showed their worth in the abbreviated series against the Saint John team and it appears as if the Maritime final series now coming up should provide local fans with a fitting climax to what has been a great baseball season.

This department takes cognizance of the severance of active relations from the "Fourth Estate" of Neil "Tiny" Matheson, former sports editor and later editor of the Patriot. It was in the former capacity that this column knew him best and the associations formed were amiable and lasting.

♦ ♦ ♦ ♦

"Tny" did much in the interest and promotion of sport thereabouts and could always be counted upon to lend a willing hand in any athletic venture which was in the interest of the youth of the city.

♦ ♦ ♦ ♦

It is hoped that "Tiny" will still have some time to devote to the interest and furtherance of sport, and that "30" is not yet written to his copy. In leaving the "pen for the plow" this column wishes Mr. and Mrs. Matheson and family the best of luck.

♦ ♦ ♦ ♦

Here's something to remember! While Boston Red Sox have such a general edge in pitching that it is almost useless to make comparisons with the Cards or Dodgers, either of the latter clubs may stop the Bosox cold in a short series with lefthanders.

♦ ♦ ♦ ♦

The Boston club, winners of more than 100 games, have been able to win only 15 times from southpaws, as compared with 44 defeats!

♦ ♦ ♦ ♦

St. Louis and Brooklyn have southpaws capable of standing the Sox on their respective ears, and if the series is spread out, those lefthanders may have considerable to say about the championship.

♦ ♦ ♦ ♦

Hockey fans have been wondering why Toronto Leafs sent "Billy the Kid" Taylor to Detroit Red Wings in exchange for Harry Watson, and the answer (it will do, at any rate) is that Conny Smythe felt that Watson would give the Leafs badly-needed defensive strength.

♦ ♦ ♦ ♦

Smythe may have had some other reasons, but his surface explanation is that he desired to use "Teeter" Kennedy at centre ice, and was unable to do so with so many centres hanging about. Also, he stressed the defensive angle and declares that Watson, in the event he does not measure up on the defence, is tops as a back-checking forward, all of which will strengthen the Toronto club.

♦ ♦ ♦ ♦

Incidently, Brown, the Hamilton boy, is setting such a dazzling pace in pre-season workouts, he is being joyously hailed by all Detroit experts as being on the verge of his greatest season.

♦ ♦ ♦ ♦

At the camp of Montreal Canadiens, one of the most impressive rookies is Leo Gravelle, the lad who performed for Montreal Royals last season.

♦ ♦ ♦ ♦

Gravelle has tacked on a little weight and appears to be faster than ever.

♦ ♦ ♦ ♦

Gravelle failed to show his top form in that memorable series against Tigers, but the fact remains he has ability in large gobs, and if he is showing extra drive he must be sailing along about three speeds faster than a gazelle.

Robinson's Blow Squares Playoff Series

MONTREAL, Oct. 2 — (CP)— Jackie Robinson, Montreal Royals Negro second baseman who was booed in Louisville, Ky., and acclaimed in Montreal, singled home the 10th-inning game-winning run tonight as Royals nudged the Colonels 6-5 and tied the best-of-seven Little World Series at two games each.

It was Robinson too who scored the tying run in the ninth inning uprising with the bases filled.

Joe Ostrowski walked Les Burge and Robinson raced in behind him when catcher Fred Walters unaccountably threw to second base and the ball went wild. Each team used three pitchers in a game played in frigid weather.

Chet Kehn was credited with the Royals' victory and Ostrowski charged with the Colonels' defeat.

The Colonels took an early lead scoring two runs in the first inning off Glen Moulder on three singles and an error. They added another in the third on Fred Koney's double and Jack Albright's single. Otis Clark held the Royals hitless until Marvin Rackley singled in the third but the Royals went without a score until the fifth when Tom Tatum, who had singled and moved to third on Lew Riggs' single, came home on Dixie Howell's infield out.

Al Flair's home run high into the right field screen gave the Colonels a run in the fifth and they counted their last in the eighth on Jim Gleeson's double that drove in Fred Genovese.

Moulder, off to a bad start and showing little improvement, was replaced by Frank Laga in the sixth after three walks. Dixie Howell's home run in the sixth kept the Royals in the hunt and they got back another in the eighth on Tom Tatum's double and Les Burge's single.

The blowoff came in the ninth when Clark weakened, walking three men. Ostrowski took over then and when he walked Rackley, Robinson came in on the weird play that let in the tying run. Ostrowski was replaced by Mel Deutsch in the 10th after walking Howell. Earl Naylor bunted and both were safe. Al Campanis sacrificed and Howell was thrown out at the plate by Deutsch on a bunt by Chet Kehn who had replaced Laga, removed in the ninth for a pinch-hitter.

The Colonels went into a huddle and it was decided to pass Rackley and take a chance on Robinson. Robinson broke up the game. The fifth game of the series, the first three of which were played in Louisville, is scheduled here tomorrow night with little prospect of much improvement in the weather.

Canadiens In 2-all Draw

ST. HYACINTHE, Que., Oct. 2—(CP)—St. Hyacinthe hockey fans tonight had a glimpse of last year's Stanley-Cup winning Montreal Canadiens as the St. Hyacinthe Saints of the provincial hockey league held the Habs to a 2-2 tie in an exhibition tilt.

The Saints, with a sprinkling of Canuck players loaned them for the night, jumped into the lead in the first stanza when Gerry Plamondon picked up Tod Campeau's pass to fool goaler Gerry McNeil. The Habs evened the score in the second frame when Maurice (The Rocket) Richard rifled home a goal.

Campeau put the Saints one up in the third period, but hustling Joe Benoit put the Canucks on even terms in the dying minutes of the game when he converted Butch Bouchard's relay into a tally.

Red Sox Manager Would Like Single Playoff Encounter

(By The Associated Press)

BOSTON, Oct. 2—Manager Joe Cronin of the American League champion Boston Red Sox today called for the limiting of any major league pennant race play-offs in the future to one game.

Cronin, suffering headaches trying to keep his Red Sox keyed up for the world series, said a lesson could be learned from the injury to Ted Williams in an exhibition game with American League All Stars Tuesday.

Williams, who suffered a bruised right elbow after being hit by a pitched ball, was reported recovering sufficiently to be ready for the classic. But, Cronin asserted, Williams probably would never have been hurt if the Dodgers-Cardinals play-off had been held to one game.

"We wouldn't have had to play any exhibition games to keep in trim," the square-jawed Boston manager argued. "And, if there had been no exhibition games, Ted would not have been hurt needlessly."

Cronin declared it was time the club owners did something about devising some uniform play-off system and suggested one game would be enough to decide ties.

Mickey Haefner, Washington southpaw whose pitch struck Williams, said the chilly weather caused the trouble.

"I tried to throw a curve to Ted," he said, "but my hands were so cold I just couldn't break it."

Among hundreds of fans and some of the players, including Williams, there was a feeling the regular baseball season should end earlier.

Williams' arm was reported responding well to treatment. Dr. Ralph McCarthy, Red Sox doctor, said the swelling had subsided and the arm should be as good as ever "unless unforeseen complications develop."

He said X-rays showed that Ted suffered a "severe contusion." Williams told reporters he was confident the stiffness would work out in a day or two.

Impressed By Showing

REGINA, Oct. 2 — (CP) —Chicago Black Hawks and Kansas City Pla-Mors today broke training camp for Moose Jaw, Sask., where they will play the first of a series of eight exhibition matches which will help coach Johnny Gottselig pick his National Hockey League team for the coming season.

Gottselig is impressed by the showing of Clint (Snuffy) Smith, 34-year-old Vancouver forward, whose speed in warmup exercises has belied his age. Smith is assured of a spot with the Hawks but outside of the Bentley-Bentley-Mosienko line, no combinations have yet been picked.

Goulding's Marks Still Stand For Heel-and-Toe Men

By W. M. GLADISH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Sept. 30 —(CP) — When George Henry Goulding of Toronto stepped from the track for the last time, the walking sport lost not only its world headliner, but practically all of its glamor as well. During his 12-year reign, from 1907 to 1919, walking races were featured everywhere and the Canadian heel-and-toe specialist was in great demand as an star attraction.

Any conversation about the athletic pastime invariably resolved itself into a discussion of the colorful pedestrian who, in his time, walked off with Olympic, World, Canadian and American championships and once held all records up to 10 miles. After almost 40 years Goulding still holds the world's best time of six minutes, 58.8 seconds for the mile and 56.27.2 for seven miles, both of which he established at Toronto.

Goulding represented Canada as a competitor at two Olympiads, London in 1908 and Stockholm in 1912, and as an official at the 1932 Games in Los Angeles. His current ambition, incidentally, is to be at least a spectator at the 1948 Olympic Games scheduled for London. His one serious setback was his failure to win the 1908 walking title for the Dominion but he was in a class by himself when he captured the 10,000-metre championship in 46:28.2 at Stockholm.

Although he had not been training as a runner, Goulding was virtually thrust as a last-minute entry into the famous Marathon of the 1908 Olympiad at London in which Tom Longboat, the favorite, failed to go the distance. Canada's star pedestrian had the satisfaction of finishing in 19th place.

Goulding set what was rated a world mark of 6:25.2 for the mile walk at the 28th Amateur Union championships at Winnipeg in 1909. The feat was never recognized because, after three measurements by surveyors, the track was found to be short by one foot.

Two Great Victories

At the zenith of the walking era, Sports Director Elwood A. Hughes brought over Ernest J. Webb of Herne Hill Harriers, London for match races for the world's walking championship at the 1910 Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto. While 20,000 spectators looked on breathlessly, Webb, holder of the British and European titles, was outclassed in one and three mile races. On another occasion, Goulding took on Sam Liegold of New York, American titleholder, in a matched race at Buffalo and walked the New Yorker into the ground.

Born at Hull, England, 61 years ago, Goulding first essayed to be a gymnast but soon turned to long-distance running before coming to Canada in 1904. After several years as a runner he took up walking. He also competed in the once-famous Across-the-Bay swims in Toronto which brought out many swimming celebrities. At the height of his walking career, Goulding assumed athletic duties at Toronto Central Y.M.C.A. and the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada barred him from amateur competition.

After a lengthy lay-off, during which he moved to Vancouver, he tried a come-back. The end of his career came when invited to cross the continent in 1924 to compete in New York, he collapsed during a strenuous race. Goulding was wise enough to realize he was through. He spends his spare time in summer in the more gentle past-time of lawn bowling but, even in this recreation, his sport instinct enables him to capture the periodic trophy.

Goulding has a great collection of athletic awards—ranging from a medal, which turned out to be brass and not gold, to his Olympic statue and scroll. One memento of athletic glory which he invariably wears is the diamond-studded stickpin, the golden foot of Mercury, which was presented to him when he was the guest of honor at a function of the renowned New York Athletic Club. As for the brass medal—that was for winning a race in Canada a long time ago.

Chances Bright To Capture Cup

TORONTO, Oct. 2 — (CP) — Chances of the Mann Cup going to St. Catharines Athletics for the fifth time in its 36-year history brightened tonight as the A's swamped New Westminster Salmonbellies 18-9 for their second straight win in the best-of-five game series for Canada's lacrosse championship.

A crowd of 7,698 fans saw the Saints hold the western champions scoreless for 32 minutes and 30 seconds as they came from behind to turn the game into a runaway. The powerful Salmonbellies failed to count throughout the second and third periods while the Athletics scored seven times.
