—CHRISTMAS MUSIC AT PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH — On Sunday morning at the Presbyterian Church there was special music by the junior choir and also by the regular choir. The church was very prettily decorated for the festive season. The service opened with the anthem "Ring forth ye Bells." The children then sang their anthem "The First Noel" followed by the hymn "Dear Little Stranger" the solo parts being taken by Master Jackie Jeans, Master Billie MacMurdo, Miss Evelyn Walker and Miss Jean Pickering. Special Christmas hymns were also sung by the children. During the offering Miss Carrie McArthur sang very sweetly "Dear Bambino" an Italian Pastoral by Pietro A. Yon. "Sing O Heavens" by Simper was sung by the choir. Mr. James gave his farewell address to the children on Sunday morning and congratulated them on their choir which had progressed very well under the direction of Mrs. Jeans, Miss Baker and Miss Huestis. He also addressed the congregation on the Birth of Christ. In the evening the special music was rendered as follows: anthem, "Calm on the listening Night". Duet by Miss Carrie McArthur and Mr. Lowell Hancock; "O Holy Night", by Adams. "Shepherds", taken from the Christmas Cantata "The Hope of the World" and carols from the same Cantata were sung during the service.—S

—CHINESE FIRST TO MAKE PAPER — MONTREAL, Dec. 26.—(By The Canadian Press)—History of paper, from the time of its invention by the Chinese in 105 A. D., when only a few sheets were made at a time, to the present day, when modern machines turn out hundreds of tons a day, was traced by A. E. Cadman, secretary of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association, during the course of an address here.

—THE Chinese inventor of paper made his product from tiny mulberry or bamboo fibres felted together on a bamboo screen, the first paper mill was built in England. It was in 1490 that the manufacture of paper commenced on the North American continent when a German came to America and erected a mill at Philadelphia. The first Canadian mill was built at St. Andrew's East, Que., in 1803.

—END OF SUFFERING FOR LITTLE SHAW GIRL — MUSKOGON, Mich., Dec. 26.—The Christmas angels sang their song of peace once more Tuesday—not because a child was born, but because a child had died.

—Christmas has come with an end of suffering for five year old Donna Mavis Shaw.

—Her life sapped by a cancer of the face, the child died last night, shortly before dawn, just as the red and green Christmas tree lights were beginning to twinkle in the windows. Death came quietly, ending three and one half years of suffering for the child whose plight touched the heart of the world.

—The cancer started from a scratch on her eye, inflicted during a friendly scuffle with a puppy when Donna was 18 months old. Her right eye was removed shortly afterward, but the knife of the surgeon failed to check the deadly growth.

—Hundreds of sympathizing letters, telegrams and gifts have poured into the Shaw home since it became known that she could not live until Christmas.

Survivors Of Wrangel Expedition Reveal Epic Story Of Privation And Suffering

(Marooned for five years on barren Wrangel Island, deep in the Arctic Ocean, four men and one woman led a life of hardship and privation until they were relieved last summer by the Soviet icebreaker Krassin, two years overdue. One was driven insane. Supplies ran out. All suffered almost unbelievably from lack of fuel and supplies, sparingly replenished from time to time by aeroplane. Nicholas Minyeyev, leader of the Wrangel Island colonization account of their adventures, during their final winter on the island.)

save us four small cabins, with doors and windows. But the air was so thick with fog that we could not see the land. The air was so thick with fog that we could not see the land. The air was so thick with fog that we could not see the land.

By January, under these conditions, we had burned up what little kerosene remained in our stoves. We were now on the island and began to burn benzine instead.

By doing this we suffered greatly. The gas fumes until I built a kind of a stove with a built-in chimney for the gas.

We listened on our radio to the doings of the outside world, but we could not communicate ourselves until the arrival of the radio operator, Ivanov, from the Chelyuskin (the relief ship later wrecked in the Arctic) would not reach the island before spring. After a discussion with my wife, I decided that we must remain there, wintering for the fifth time on Wrangel Island.

Abandoned Boat — Cook Went Mad — The most tragic experience of our stay on the island took place during the winter of 1933-1934. Pavlov, our cook, went off his head. We had no place to isolate him, so he continued to live with other members of our party in one of the huts.

The trouble was that it was impossible to leave him alone there. He had a mania for burning up everything. He burned first his own clothes and underwear and then threatened to set the hut on fire.

Zvartzev, the young Komosol (a junior branch of the Communist party), came to our rescue. He begged permission to live alone with the maniac. Only his strong nature enabled him to withstand this terrible ordeal.

Island's Population Now 72 — Several times the maniac attempted to strangle Zvartzev during the night, and once he poured boiling oil over him. It is terrible to even remember that this situation lasted all through the winter.

During the first four years on the island we had quite sufficient food and no one suffered from scurvy. Two natives fell ill of this complaint, but they recovered very soon. We managed to do our work quite normally. But during the last year we had collected less food than formerly because we had begun to feel somewhat tired.

We were on somewhat short rations during the last winter. We saw a ship for the first time in five years when the Krassin steamed up to the island. The ship relieved us and brought a new wintering party who are at Wrangel today. The population of the island now consists of seventy-three persons.

Besides our party, the Krassin took from the island 2,000 skins of polar foxes, 600 skins of polar bear and two and a half tons of mammoths' tusks found on the island.

Presentation

On Friday, Dec. 31st, a pleasant social evening was spent at the home of Mrs. John A. Millman, Kensington, when the choir of St. Stephen's Church gathered there for the two-fold purpose of practicing their Christmas music and to tender a surprise to their organist, Miss Bertha M. Millman in appreciation of her kind help in that capacity during the past month.

At the conclusion of the practice, Mrs. Wm. J. Harrington read the following address while Miss Rilda Campbell made the presentation of a pair of lovely brown kid fur-lined gloves.

Dear Miss Millman, — We, the members of St. Stephen's choir have met here this evening to extend to you the greetings of the season, and also to impart to you, in a small measure, the appreciation we feel in having secured the services of an efficient and faithful organist and choir leader. Words are inadequate to express our sentiments. You have always been constant and untiring in your zeal to promote the standard of the choir to a higher efficiency, and we sincerely appreciate your training, which is a great privilege to us and a benefit to the congregation. When we recall all the times that we have absented ourselves from the services in St. Stephen's, owing to our personal indisposition, it only accentuates to us all the more your constancy and loyalty. We also thank you for your generous hospitality and entertainment.

In closing, we ask for you accept this token, not for its intrinsic value but for expressions of our goodwill and esteem.

Signed on behalf of the choir.

Arsenal Leads In English League

LONDON, Dec. 25.—The Arsenal displaced Sunderland at the head of the first division, English League, soccer standings as a result of today's holiday schedule which starts the league off on a week of strenuous competition.

Arsenal downed Preston North End 5-3 on the Gunners' own grounds. The victory put Arsenal ahead of Sunderland by one point as the previous leaders travelled to Everton to take a 6-2 lacing.

The leading teams were so closely bunched in the first division that the standing underwent several changes. Manchester City were tied with Sunderland as a result of a 2-1 victory over Leeds United. A single point behind came West Bromwich Albion, who blanked Stoke City 3-0.

Brentford succeeded in breaking their tie with Bolton Wanderers at the top of the second division. While Brentford could do no better than tie Plymouth Argyle in a scoreless contest, the Wanderers lost by a 2-1 score to Burnley. The setback left Bolton tied in second place with Manchester United, who defeated Notts County 2-1, and with West Ham United, who downed Bury 4-2. The three were bunched only a single point behind Brentford.

Charlton Athletic widened their lead in the Southern Section of the third division to five points, swamping Swindon Town under a 6-0 score. Reading, trailing in second place, tied Millwall 2-2. Coventry City overtook Crystal Palace to rank third by defeating Gillingham 4-0 while Crystal Palace went to Torquay United and lost 7-1.

In the Northern Section all the leaders suffered losses. Tranmere Rovers, who were blanked by Barrow, kept a single point in front of Halifax Town, who were beaten by Chesterfield 2-0. Chester moved up to a tie with Doncaster Rovers for third place, five points behind Tranmere, by defeating Stockport County 5-1 while Doncaster lost to Hartlepool United 2-1.

"I believe," said the impatient man, as he put aside the telephone, "that I'll go fishing." "Didn't know you cared for fishing." "I don't ordinarily, but it's the only chance I have of finding myself at the end of a line that isn't busy."
