This correction is due to Miss Watson who did the major part of the training.

No. 12 train will leave Tignish at 7:20 a. m. and run on schedule time as heretofore. W. T. Hugran, District Passenger Agent, Charlottetown.

SPLENDID RECITAL.—The recital given by Professor Fletcher, assisted by a large male choir, which was given before a large audience in the Methodist Church last night at the conclusion of the service, was an exceptional musical treat. During the church service, which was conducted by Rev. Mr. Ryan of Sackville, Mr. Earl Spicer rendered magnificent solo "Lead Kindly Light" (Pith-Evans) (W. E. Fletcher, Mrs. W. E. Fletcher) Organ "Madrigal" (E. H. Lemare); Anthem "Hosanna in the Highest" (Stainer); Organ, "Hallelujah Chorus" (Handel); National Anthem. Mr. Elmer Ritchie who was to sing Prof. Fletcher's solo "Lead Kindly Light" was unable to appear owing to a severe cold. Mr. Arthur Bruce taking his place and singing with splendid effect the grand hymn from St. Paul, "Be thou Faithful Unto Death." Mrs. Fletcher's rendition of Prof. Fletcher's composition "Beneath the Cross" was received with genuine pleasure by the large audience. The anthems by the male choir were new to a Charlottetown audience and were very effective. This is the first of a series of monthly recitals which will be given in the Methodist Church. A collection is taken and the concerts are put on in the interests of good music. That they will be appreciated was evidenced by the success of last night's recital.

15 Per Cent. Reduction For All Textile Employees

MONTREAL, Oct. 20.—The reduction in wages of 15 per cent. effective next Monday applicable to employees of the Dominion Textile Company, Limited which at first was announced as applying only to plants in Montreal and district, is now stated to extend to all plants in the Dominion. Around 6500 employees will be affected. The company makes the statement that it is probably the last of the great cotton manufacturing concerns either in Canada the United States or Great Britain to make a downward revision in wages and points out that during the period of high wages the plants were everywhere working on full time, a condition which has not yet prevailed in many other establishments.

Another Rousing Meeting

pany went to the Government and asked them to endorse or guarantee $500,000 of their bonds at 5 per cent. This was taken up by the government and our worthy friend here (Mr. D. A. McKinnon) was a member of the House that considered it. Indeed he more than considered it. He had it all cut and dried—ready to sign the contract and guarantee those bonds. "I was in the Post Office one day and my friend, Mr. McKinnon, told me that he was going to give P. E. I. the greatest boom she ever had. We are going to guarantee the pork company and they are going to develop this thing and everybody will be rich," he said. Mr. Brown didn't think this would be good business and he went round to some of the biggest men in town to see what they thought of it. An indignation meeting was called that night and the deal was stopped right there. That was some years ago and it was another of the bright ideas Mr. McKinnon had in his head. (Laughter.)

Mr. D. A. McKinnon: I was at Ottawa then. Mr. Brown: Well, you told me about it in the post office anyway. I said you were a member. I didn't say you were in the local government.

Mr. D. A. McKinnon: I was in the Dominion Government. Mr. Brown: Well, that was worse. (Laughter.)

Labor Planks and Farmers' Pockets.

Mr. Donald McKinnon the next speaker, requested Mr. Brown, who was leaving the hall, after excusing himself from remaining throughout the evening as he had to drive home to remain just a few minutes as he had something he wished him to hear. This was in regard to some of the planks in his Labor platform which he had been careful to avoid discussing during his speech. One of the Labor planks is state insurance against unemployment, chargeable to industry, including of course, agriculture. This means that for the support of idle laboring men in the cities the farmers will be called upon to help foot the bill. Another clause enforces old age and debility pensions and the farmer will be required to support every laboring man over 65 years of age unable to support himself. Another plank in both the Labor and Agrarian platforms insists on taxation of land values and provides that all uncultivated and undeveloped land shall be taxed to its full value, so that a farmer in this country having 50 acres of land with 30 acres clear and the rest out to the commons will pay a tax out to the commons. In the west there are no common lands and so there will be no additional taxes, but in the east the poor farmer starting on 100 acres with only 10 acres of it cleared has to pay a big tax on the 90 acres that is not cleared. There is no encouragement here for poor farmers in the eastern provinces and no encouragement is intended. The two platforms have been framed specially for the big growers of the west.

The Roumanian Loan

Mr McKinnon made an able defence of the Government's action in seeking out loans and other necessities to Roumanians in the form of a loan at a time when that country was struggling under the hardships of war. The Roumanians were not begging assistance. They were asking for a loan and the Dominion Government granted that loan at interest—not in money but in natural implements and other necessities. Of course, the Government purchased these implements from some of the biggest machinery companies in Canada. Why should they not? And what is there for criticism in the fact that a member of parliament happened to be a member of the company to which a large order of ploughs was given? Would Mr Sinclair or Mr McKinnon dare to state that these ploughs were not furnished at reasonable prices? No, they would not do that, and the methods they were taking to insinuate as much might be called pretty small politics. (Applause.)

Mr McKinnon went on to review the Railway problem and the difficulties which led to the bankruptcy of the lines, necessitating government control in order to save the stock. When the Government took over the C. P. R. and C. N. R. Mr Creer, who was then in the government and who now leader of the Farmer's party in the west, said it was the only possible thing that could be done. The records for the month of August last show that under the control of the Board of Management the railways are now beginning to earn a surplus and they will be in a position soon to reduce their rates. The government has recently made arrangements to have a head office at Moncton instead of Montreal in accordance with the promise made by Premier Meighen during his Maritime campaign.

Tariff and the Fordney Bill

The statement had been made by a previous speaker (Mr. D. A. McKinnon) that there was a reciprocal clause in the Fordney bill and it was implied that if the duty was taken off potatoes going into the United States from Canada the Americans would reciprocate and take their duty off potatoes also. This was the arrangement before this bill was passed but now another clause has taken its place and according to the Fordney bill if Canada puts a duty on produce coming from the United States greater than the American duty on Canadian produce they can by their Executive Council and independent of Congress, automatically increase their duties. They have today the tariff against us higher than our tariff. Are we going to allow the Yankees to walk all over us with their Fordney Bill? (Applause)

Protection tariff is making them part of our revenue. You can't avoid paying the American duty on your potatoes but you can put your tariff on beef and lamb. In cold storage mutton alone, $7,000,000 worth came across the Canadian line last year. Tons of it was stored in Montreal last summer. How much would have come in had there been protection? Do the Liberals intend to reduce this tariff on foodstuffs or do they not? It was only last night that Mr Sinclair had been driven to admitting his policy was not free trade. At the Belle River meeting asked regarding his policy with respect to pork products, he didn't know whether the duty would be taken off or not. He didn't know! Does he know tonight? (Laughter)

"I was not a very nice insinuation of Mr. D. A. McKinnon's" continued the speaker after waiting vainly for an answer to his last question, "with regard to the word 'national' in the Conservative party name. The Conservatives had this name from the time they adopted their policy under Sir John A. McDonald. Before the Liberals ever got into power to be turned out by the Nationalists or anybody else the Conservative policy was a national policy, affecting and benefiting every man, woman and child in Canada."

Mr J. E. Sinclair, speaking briefly at the conclusion of the meeting, maintained that the Labor platform referred to taxation of unemployed land values and not to land values. Regarding Roumanian Loan he maintained that these starving people had asked for food and Canada gave them a stone. They wanted food and they were given machinery.

A Voice "Did not they ask for implements?"

Mr Sinclair No. They asked for food and they did not get it and they had to pay for it—just the same as if they did get it.

Mr Donald McKinnon Was there not a man going round Canada soliciting for implements for these people?

Mr Sinclair No Sir. Not that I know. After some further remarks by Mr. Sinclair a vote of thanks was tendered the chairman and the meeting adjourned.
