Insufficient Courses

Another possible field of activity for the Carnegie Foundation here would be a contribution towards assisting in the extension of the curricula both at Prince of Wales College and St. Dunstan's University. This also could only be attempted on the advice and with the co-operation of the local faculties. "Your local weakness, as I see it, is in the narrowness of your educational offering," Dr. Keppel said. "Your subjects, as far as they go, are quite good enough, but the number of subjects for students who are not going further than your local institutions is not sufficient. Here, possibly, is where a Carnegie grant could be of assistance, in establishing new courses—not necessarily of a utilitarian nature, but suited to the requirements of those who do not intend to pursue classical or professional studies in the higher universities."

Hon. Dr. MacMillan, who was present at the interview granted by Dr. Keppel yesterday, suggested that our most pressing need educationally were in the fields of science, economics, biology and library equipment. With this statement Dr. Keppel fully agreed.

INTERNATIONAL BOUNDARY SURVEY

OTTAWA, Canada, Aug. 5.—Al most every known method of survey has been made use of in the work of surveying the International Boundary between Canada and the United States. In its length of 5,500 miles, the boundary passes through country greatly varying in nature—through arms of the sea, through the Great Lakes, through rivers, lakes, and forests, and over plains, snowfields, glaciers, and mountains.

Impressed By Scenic Attractions And Educational Possibilities Of Garden Province, Dr. F. P. Keppel, President Of The Carnegie Corporation, New York, Leaves Today On Return To Mainland.

Impressed by the opportunities for assisting materially in the educational development of the Province, Dr. Frederick P. Keppel, president of the Carnegie Corporation, New York, leaves today for the mainland after a brief visit which enabled him to come in personal contact with the educational, political and religious leaders of the community. Dr. Keppel, who was accompanied by Dr. G. F. Trueman, secretary of the Maritime Advisory Commission of the Carnegie Corporation, came here at the invitation of Dr. the Hon. W. J. P. MacMillan, Minister of Education, with whose active co-operation his inquiry here has been conducted. Dr. Keppel made it clear that any recommendations he may make to the Carnegie Foundation must be approved by the directors of the Corporation. He believed, however, the Board would be sympathetic in view of the fact that Prince Edward Island has had few opportunities of participating in Carnegie Foundation grants, and that there were legitimate avenues through which assistance could be given for the development of our educational facilities.

He was impressed, firstly, by the possibilities of establishing a circulating regional library, which would cater to the recreational and the educational needs of readers not only in Charlottetown, but throughout the Province. Such libraries, on a county distribution basis, have been established successfully in Great Britain through the Carnegie Foundation, and a similar plan has been adopted in British Columbia. In this Province there are few illiterates and a greater proportion would benefit by regional library facilities than perhaps in any other part of Canada. The nature of the assistance that might be given to establish such facilities Dr. Keppel was at present loath to discuss, but in the consideration of any scheme the advice of professional Canadian librarians and of local educational authorities would be an essential factor. "For example," he said, "conditions in British Columbia are altogether different from the conditions prevailing here, and the same system of book distribution might not be applicable. It would have to be framed to suit your requirements. My visit on this occasion is largely to receive suggestions as to what these requirements may be."

Scholarships

Asked as to the possibility of assistance being given toward the foundation of scholarships, he said he doubted whether this proposition would appeal to the Carnegie board. The purpose of the Foundation is to give initial assistance to educational movements, not to tie up funds for an indefinite period in any particular scheme. The great need of such scholarships here being impressed upon him, however, Dr. Keppel promised to bear this suggestion in mind. $10,000,000 of Carnegie Foundation funds, he explained, have been set aside for educational assistance to British countries. Library grants, in one shape or another, make up a large proportion of the distribution. This has been Dr. Keppel's first visit to the Province, and he is charmed with the advantages which it offers as a playground and tourist resort. Though kept busy during his stay in gathering data and suggestions, he found time to enjoy some golf and fishing, and hopes, in the near future, to make another visit, and to bring Mrs. Keppel with him. In the meantime, he is keeping in close touch with Hon. Dr. MacMillan, whose co-operation he regards as essential in any negotiations which the Carnegie Corporation may enter into with the educational authorities here.

Redfern Creates Autumn Styles

PARIS, Aug. 5.—Redfern opens the Paris winter fashion salons by abolishing the waistline in a slim but not fitted princess silhouette. Big sleeves are continued with square-top puffs to the elbows, then tight to the wrists. Simple afternoon frocks with low U-shaped décolleté, cut out under an echoing neckline, are successful Redfern features. A long velvet coat with a crepe frock is a favorite afternoon ensemble. Fur-trimmed cloth suits with metallic fabric blouses also are shown. Waist-length, puff-sleeved fur jacket or cap and muff sets are featured. A contrasting bodice in frock fronts with plain backs is interesting. Pale grey is stressed for evening. The sensation of Vera Borea's collection is borealstex, a new elastic fabric which may revolutionize fashions by rendering individual fitting superfluous. The process may be applied to all textiles, giving a crinkly crepe surface. Borea lowers the waistline to subnormal in numerous models. Her straight wool blouses are sure to be successful. Panel effects for afternoon and evening are smart in the exclusive new crinkled heavy crepe with a half-shiny finish. Corrugated fabrics and ribbon trimmings are notable. The characteristic Borea style points to fur-tail cravats and trimming, minus pelts. Huge nickled safety pins or saddle-girth fastenings are replacing clips. Buttons are banned, except in wool for sports clothes. Leather trimmings and single-breasted closings are popular. The favorite colors are potter's clay, asbestos and scarab green. Skirt lengths are unchanged, far. Sheath lines and diagonal cuts are waning. High but moderate skirt fullness with front emphasis is confirmed. Smart economy trimming of thick braided or roped yarn cords on wool costumes is offered as an alternative to fur by Borea and Redfern. One-color ensembles are gaining favor in the formal mode. Contrasts continue for sports costumes. Velvet is emphasized for all hours, but crinkly crepes and knotty woollens hold their ground. Satin is regaining its importance. Linen and cotton lace evening gowns are numerous.

BUILDS UNIQUE PIPE ORGAN

WINNIPEG, Aug. 5.—(By The Canadian Press)—After more than a year of patient labor, Brother Sylvester of St. Boniface, a member of the Oblate Order, has completed a pipe organ which, musicians agree, is a masterpiece of tonal richness and sweetness. Working alone in a small workshop on plans designed by himself, the cleric fashioned every part of the full sets of speaking tubes to the keyboards of white pine covered with French ivory. The new organ will be sent to the private chapel of the Oblate Scholasticate at Lebrét, Sask. Brother Sylvester came to Canada in 1891 from the French province of Savoy where he grew up on a farm and worked in a blacksmith shop. He later became a machinist and in his spare time took pleasure in making piano and chromatic accordions. This and a week's visit to Ste. Hyacinthe, Que., where he watched organ-builders of Cassavant "erres" at work was the experience he drew on when building his own organ.
