SANDRA THE JEALOUS

By Jane Phelps

THE BELATED VISIT TO THE ATTIC CHAPTER LXXXIV.

Not a word did Everett say when I returned to the room. The book lay closed on the dressing table and he was preparing for bed. Only one reference did he make to what had passed.

"She had his real love. Mine is warmed over—I have any—just as Rose said." I whispered to myself. Then I would like to be first with some, one. I will too.

As usual when I had quarreled with Everett, or thought he had treated me unfairly. I wandered about unable to set myself at anything. Suddenly I thought of the little black trunk in the attic which for one reason or another I had not yet attempted again to open. Mrs.

FREDERICK J. E. WRIGHT, Auctioneer, 1403-10-7M51.

Gray would soon go to market. While she was out I would try once more to open it. One day while looking over some things of Everett's I had come across a small bunch of keys. They were on a tiny silver ring, such as a lady would carry. I had taken them to my room, and laid them carefully away, convinced they had belonged to Leola, and perhaps one of them would unlock the trunk which had so excited my curiosity. I had been unable to secure a lick-smith.

"She's dead! I'm his wife now—I have a right to know," I quieted my conscience. "It isn't fair of him to keep things belonging to her now he is married again." So I waited for Mrs. Gray to go out, then went immediately to the attic.

I was right. One of the keys did belong to the black trunk. I trembled with delight and fear combined when at last it was open. The small tray held a few articles of apparel, gloves, fans, and combs for the hair. Slipper buckles, and battons of odd design were laid loose, as if thrown in regardless of their value.

I tossed them over quickly, with no eyes for their beauty. Then I lifted out the tray and set it on the floor beside me. My heart almost stopped beating. There was what I sought lying before me. Bundles of letters, some of them yellow with age (as the novelist always expressed it) others looking as if mailed a day or two ago.

I started to untie the first package, then hesitated. Mrs. Gray would soon return. She might find me looking through them. I cannot yet explain my feeling that I should be disgraced in her eyes, for I was sure I was within my rights as Everett's wife.

I finally took the packages which looked as if written long ago, and replaced the till, and locked the trunk. I would read them in my room. Then get others when I took them back.

I hurried down and hid the letters where no one would ever find them, sure soon to have an opportunity to read them. Then I went down to answer the telephone.

"Where in the world have you been Hetty said she couldn't find you," it was Everett's voice, impatient, suspicious.

"What is it Everett?" I ignored his question.

"I am going to bring an old friend home to dinner. Have Mrs. Gray told please. Hetty said she was out. We will go to the theatre afterward, so dress and—look as well as you can, he added after a moment's hesitation.

I told Mrs. Gray we were to have a guest for dinner, then ordered the flowers for the table. After I had eaten my luncheon, I locked myself in my room, telling 'Hetty I wasn't to rest and was not to be disturbed unless Mr. Graham should want me.

I took from their hiding place the letters that were to prove to me that Leola held, even though dead, the love of the man to whom I was married.

"Nuxated Iron Put Added Power Behind My Punch"

Says Jack Dempsey—Tiger Of The Ring Heavyweight Champion of the World Tells A Secret of the Training Which Helped Get Him Into Such Superb Condition That He Was Able to Whip the Mighty Jess Willard and Prove Himself

Jack Kearns, Manager for Dempsey, Jimmy DeForest, Chief Trainer, and Others Give Opinions—How Nuxated Iron Helps Strengthen the Nerves, Restore Wasted Tissue, Build Blood, Strength and Endurance.

Since his overwhelming victory at Toledo when he wrested the World's Championship title from the Geoth-like Jess Willard, Jack Dempsey, the modern David and Goliath of the Fistic World—Jack Kearns, his manager, and Jimmy DeForest, his chief trainer, have been besieged with inquiries as to the methods employed in rounding him into such superb condition. That Jack Dempsey used Nuxated Iron as a part of the training which produced such marvelous physical development as to make him a veritable human dynamo, should prove conclusively the paramount value he attached to this master strength and blood builder and he explains below why he now recommends it to others.

Just as when a man's life is at stake, physicians seek only the tried and proven treatment, so when the World's Championship hung in the balance, Dempsey's trainers did not stop to experiment with metallic iron preparations—Nux and Iron—or other products of questionable value, but they insisted upon having only genuine Nuxated Iron, which they felt could be absolutely relied upon to help build red blood, power and stamina.

In connection with this feature of his training regarding which Dempsey himself makes a statement below, Jimmy De Forest, the Champion's Chief Trainer, is quoted as saying: "For seven weeks previous to July 4th I was in sole charge of the training and preparing of Jack Dempsey for his fight with Jess Willard. During the training period Dempsey was regularly given by me Nuxated Iron and I believe it contributed to his success."

The importance that the Champion himself places upon the part Nuxated Iron played in winning for him the highest laurels known in the athletic world is clearly shown in the following statement made by Jack Dempsey at his training quarters in Toledo, the scene of the big battle, when he said: "After commencing the use of Nuxated Iron during my training for the big fight with Jess Willard, I soon noticed that I could stand harder strains with less fatigue than before, and I realized that I had found a tonic and blood builder which played an important part in getting me into the condition. Formerly I had relied solely upon strength-building foods and outdoor exercise to keep my blood rich in red corpuscles, but with the World's Championship at stake, I felt that I should leave nothing undone that might help me to win. I was advised of the great value of Nuxated Iron for building up the blood, strengthening the nerves and aiding in keeping the body fit, and I am firmly convinced that its use has increased my stamina and endurance. Nuxated Iron put added power behind my punch and helped me to accomplish what I did at Toledo. From the results in my own case, where the possession of super endurance is necessary, I feel that I am in a position to strongly recommend Nuxated Iron to every man and woman who wants to build greater strength, energy and power."

In connection with the foregoing statement made by Jack Dempsey, Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York, and the Westchester County Hospital, said: "In my opinion whoever made the suggestion that Nuxated Iron should play a part in getting Dempsey into condition is to be commended for his foresight. No man without plenty of rich, red blood filled with health-giving and strength-building iron could withstand the terrific onslaught of a giant like Willard. It should occur to every thinking person that if a man as physically fit as Dempsey should consider it advisable to take Nuxated Iron, how much more important it is for the average man or woman to see that there is no lack of iron in the blood. To help make strong, keen, red-blooded Americans and to do that, there is nothing in my experience which I have found so valuable as organic iron—Nuxated Iron.

Managers Jack Kearns who closely watched from day to day the progress of Dempsey's training in which Nuxated Iron played a part and who predicted Dempsey's victory over Willard.
