SUMMER SCENTS THAT WILL LINGER LONGER
Contrary to general supposition, rose petals are not an essential ingredient for pot-pourri. All most any scented flower may be used such as stocks, rosemary, jasmine, verbena, carnations or syringa.

Apple Spraying
(The Experimental Farms Note)
The most common and destructive disease of apples in New Brunswick is apple scab. Every commercial grower knows that this is a time-consuming and costly production and sale of first class fruit.

Apple Scab
The practical method for the control of apple scab has proven to be spraying with a green fungicide. The fungicides found to be the most effective for these purposes are lime sulphur and Bordeaux mixture, states S. P. Clarkson, Dominion Laboratory of Plant Pathology, Fredericton, N. B. The critical period for infection extends from the time spore discharge from the old fallen leaves to the time when the buds have been discharged (June 10th). In most years the battle against apple scab is won or lost within this short period.

During the early growing season frequent applications of fungicides are necessary in order to cover the new growth and the expanded uncovered portion of the older foliage. As the season progresses and growth becomes slower, less frequent applications of fungicides are required.

First spray--Green-top stage of development; Bordeaux mixture 3-10-40 formula.
Second spray--Third sprays--Pink and pink stages of development; Bordeaux mixture 3-10-40 formula.
Fourth spray--Calyx stage of development; Lime sulphur, 1 gallon plus 4 pounds iron sulphate to 40 gallons of water. This spray is applied as the last of the petals are falling and it is timed by tree development.

Fifth spray (First cover spray); Bordeaux 3-10-40 formula. This spray is applied 12 to 14 days after the fourth or sixth spray.
Sixth spray (Second cover spray); Bordeaux 1-2-6-40 formula. This spray is applied during the last week in June or the first week in July. It is effective in the control of late summer infections.

HARD LUMPS CAME Angry Debate In ON HER LEGS French Chamber

PARIS, June 16--(CP Havas)--Premier Daladier, considering adjourning Parliament tomorrow to avert new and angry debate on Spanish non-intervention, was confronted tonight with a Socialist threat to desert the government unless he loosened the country's purse strings.

Communists brought the Spanish question to a head, lashing with tongues and fists a Rightist deputy who taunted them with a bitter chamber of deputies session.

Afterward delegates of all the Popular Front groups met to consider the matter. They could find unity on various major issues. There the Socialists refused to support the Communist demand for abandonment of the non-intervention policy.

"DOWN ON P. E. I."
We all have fanes and dislikes that irritate the heart and eye. While some folks roam, some stay at home, within the family tie, There's folks that like a country road, others New York's country side.

Some choose the coos and chickens, others a cabaret. But I'd like to dream by an old mill, each I know, and watch the clouds roll by. There's a place that I know, where I'd like to go, and its down on P. E. I.

While some folks worry all the time, others have not a care, To some life's quite a problem, to others an affair. And while some take things as they come, others will scheme and plan, And some will duck the issue, others its man to man. But I like a brook, and a shady nook, the apple of my eye, And someday I will go, to that place I know, and its down on P. E. I.

On the east stubble. The return value per ton of manure applied was $4.27. Series 2--16 tons was applied as a top dressing on the clover sod. This gave a return value of $2.88 per ton of manure applied. The return value in all cases are based on increased crop yields over the check plots from that secured on the treated areas. By dividing this result with the amount of manure used the unit value received through increased crop yields is obtained.

While it is realized that increased yields mean a slightly increased cost of harvesting, this would not be sufficient to effect the unit value of manure to any extent. The results of these tests indicate that all other things being equal, lighter and more frequent applications of manure will give the greater return value per ton.
