Strong Case

at Skinner's Pond, Lot One, in Prince County where a large section of the people depend entirely on fishing for a livelihood and are greatly handicapped owing to the lack of harbour facilities as no natural harbours exist in that vicinity.

Enforcement of Fishery Law.
The enforcement of these laws is essential to the welfare of the fishing industry especially in regard to the observance of the close season for lobsters and the protection of spawn or berried lobsters. With respect to the latter, wardens should be appointed to act during the open season and to inspect the canneries and the fishermen's catches at frequent intervals. This cannot be expected from an overseer who has a large territory. Officers should not be appointed on a basis of political preference but solely on their qualification for the position and should be free from political influences. It is suggested that illegal fishing of lobsters might be more easily and effectively prevented by a more rigid enforcement of the law against the purchaser of such illegally packed goods and by preventing the sale of cans to fishermen for such purposes during the close season.

Re Recommendations, Etc.
We strongly urge the implementation in full of the recommendations of the Royal Commission on fisheries in respect to Fishermen's Organizations, the inspection and marketing of lobsters and the establishment of a separate Department of Fisheries. Respectfully submitted, Fishermen's Union of P. E. Island, Per. CHESTER P. MCCARTHY, Manager.

COUNTY COURT—The August term of the county court was opened on Friday at 10 a. m. in the Court House at Summerside. His Honor Judge Inman presiding. There were eighteen contested cases on the docket. After a number of debt cases had been disposed of the case of J. Robert MacDonald versus James Montgomery was taken. This was an action for $50 damage arising out of a collision on Letfurgy's Hill last December and occupied the attention of the court; the greater part of Friday and was concluded on Saturday before the arising of the court at one p. m. The defendant had overtaken and was in the act of passing a load of hay when his car was run into by that of the plaintiff proceeding in the opposite direction. The defendant was then on his left side of the road and the plaintiff on his right. The defendant alleged that the plaintiff had contributed to the collision by proceeding at an excessive rate of speed. His Honor held that this was not the case but that the accident was due to the defendant's error in judgment in attempting to pass the hay load when he was about to meet the plaintiff's car. Judgment was given for the plaintiff for $27. T. L. Compton was counsel for defendant and T. A. Campbell for plaintiff. The court was adjourned until 11 o'clock this (Tuesday) morning.—S.

OLD SONGS AT ROTARY

While it is generally admitted that the 'Old Songs' find response in the heart of the average man or woman, perhaps few of us stop to ask the reason why this is so," said Prof. W. E. Fletcher in an interesting address on "Why We Love The Old Songs" at the Rotary Club yesterday. The speaker called attention to the fact that a great many of the old songs—patriotic, sentimental and spiritual, have come down to the present day and are greatly loved and treasured, yet it is certain that a very large number of songs written long ago have not survived the passage of time; and for this, some reason must exist.

"Were I to ask any one of you for a definition of an 'old favourite song,' you might reasonably say: 'A tune, or melody, pleasing to the ear, adapted to words that impressed you, and to which something in your nature responded.'"

"Well, to obtain this satisfactory result, something more than mere music and words is necessary—correct form, accent, rhythm and time must be employed if the composition is to make any lasting impression upon the hearer,—be the listener musically educated or otherwise.

"Beautiful music appeals to the emotions just as strongly as the coloring of the sunset, or the fragrant beauty of flowers—and surely there must be very few of us who can remain unmoved by either of these wonders.

"To go further into the importance of 'accent, rhythm and time,' it is certain that a strict observance of these principles, is just as essential in 'old songs,' as is the strong regular beat of the Military March, or the graceful, steady rhythm of the waltz of minuet, and any departure from either rule must destroy the beauty and effect of vocal or instrumental composition,—and it is worthy of note and apparent to all, that in every song loved and sung by the people, in their homes, at work, or elsewhere, the time and rhythm have been faithfully kept by the author.

"We, who live in this splendid new land are too prone to forget the struggles of the pioneers and early settlers, and well may we ask,—What afforded more courage and strength to those men and women, founding homes in a strange land, than the gathering around the log-fire at night,—singing the old Psalms and tunes,—songs of Home,—handed down to them, and carried in their hearts across many miles of ocean? It is a question worth the asking.

"Sometimes we may wonder what effect much of the modern musical trash would have had upon the characters of those hard-working folk, founding this Empire out of forest and prairie?"

"A very little time and thought will suffice to answer such a query. "They loved the 'old songs' because the singing of them gave expression to their deepest emotion, and brought inspiration, and courage to face the difficult tasks of daily life,—the stern realities of which could hardly have been met and overcome, had mind and soul been fed upon trivialities,—Literary or Musical."

Marcus Calder was in the chair yesterday and the guests present were Mr. C. M. Williams, and Rev. Mr. C. M. Williams, and Rev.

Is this your boy?

OF COURSE NOT! Your boy is a little, laughing, romping chap of 2, with never a care in the world except to be at the door when daddy comes home at night. Besides, your boy will go to the university.

You intend him to have a real chance to get on in the world—better than the one you had yourself. Even in the days to come this could never be your boy. But wait.

Suppose you pass on during the next few years. Who will send him to college if you haven't provided the money? Will strangers do it?

Boys grow up quickly and of course their wants increase as they grow. Your earnings will increase too, but when you are brought up suddenly one day with the need of finding say $1,000 a year for four years or more, are you sure you are going to have the money?

Back up your boy. He is worth it. Make a small annual deposit for the next few years on an Imperial Educational Endowment policy and the money will be ready with absolute certainty when it is needed—whether you are here or have passed on. There are many other benefits as well.
