NEW FRENCH GOV'T SELECTED AND READY FOR ACTION

Predicted that Initial Appearance of Cabinet Before Chamber of Deputies is Likely to Prove Its Farewell.

(Canadian Press) PARIS, June 9.—The new French political cabinet named today by M. Francois-Marsal to take place of that headed by M. Poincare which recently resigned is as follows: Premier and Minister of Finance—M. Francois-Marsal; Foreign Affairs—Edmond Lefevre; Justice—Senator Aron Latre; Interior—Justin De Selvas; War and Pensions—Andre Maginot; Labor and Hygiene—Paul Jourdain; Navy—Desire Ferry; Public Works—Yvesle Trocquer; Education—M. political situation as the President sees it. Simultaneously the Minister of Justice will perform a similar duty in the Senate. The initial appearance of the Cabinet before the Chamber is likewise likely to prove its farewell. The general impression is that France, which has been without a responsible government since June 1, will have one Tuesday but only for a few hours. The Francois-Marsal Cabinet has already been referred to by its friends as an "evanescent cabinet," while the Opposition has dubbed it "the stillborn government," so certain is everybody who concerns himself with the politics that the message from the President, the delivery of which to the Parliament is the sole purpose of its formation, will find the Government in a minority upon the first vote. M. Millerand's message will call attention to the provision in the constitution fixing the duration of the Presidential mandate as for seven years. Contrary to the spirit and letter of the constitution, according to the President, the leaders of the political majority

The Earl shot and wounded a wild bull, which turned and charged straight at His Excellency and the Princess. The infuriated animal was bearing down on the viceregal party, and was only thirty yards away when the Earl fired and killed him. The Earl and Princess were in immediate peril for a short time, but the cool and unerring aim of the Earl delivered them from danger.
