Closure On Unemployment Measure

OTTAWA, Ont., March 31—(By the Canadian Press)— The crowds who thronged the galleries of the House of Commons at two o'clock this morning to witness the rare ceremony of the application of closure, were rewarded by a whirlwind finish with all the noisy abandon, cheers and song that often typify parliamentary crisis. Desultory debate to a House that held a bare quorum, occupied the afternoon and evening, with the majority of the speakers talking in the French language. But the crowd in the galleries sat on while those who were forced by necessity of their chosen tasks to listen, wondered. Evening dresses and dinner jackets became prominent as the late arrivals gathered.

All Conservatives with D. M. Kennedy, Milton M. Campbell and A. M. Carmichael of the Independent groups supported the motion.

All Liberals with A. W. Neill, Henri Bourassa, H. E. Spencer, Robert Gardiner, A. A. Heaps, Humphrey Mitchell, E. J. Garland, Alfred Speakman, W. T. Lucas and M. Luchkovich of the Independent groups voted against the motion.

The House then went into consideration in committee on the resolution.

When Ernest Lapointe, former Minister of Justice and last spokesman for the Opposition, concluded his address at 1.45, John T. Hackett, ((Cons., Stanstead), sprang to his feet from a seat beside the Minister of Labor. His own seat is in the "back benches". At almost the same moment, Ian MacKenzie, (Lib., Vancouver Centre), was on his feet seeking the speaker's eye. Mr. Hackett got the floor.

The member for Stanstead spoke to a running fire of comment but his stentorian voice usually rose above the din. He was called to a point of order by F. G. Sanderson, (Lib. Perth South) for not speaking from his own seat, but Mr. Speaker took no action.

Mr. Speaker put the question with considerable difficulty. As he was reading the questions the members scurred to gain their own seats for the division and in the midst of this uproar, the Prime Minister, who had been absent during the greater part of the evening, returned to his place. This was the signal for a prolonged outburst of cheering and desk pounding by his followers. When Mr. Speaker had put the question and the division was demanded, the House broke into song with the division bells playing the accompaniment.

KEEPING SAFE ROYAL TREASURES

LONDON, March 29—(By the Canadian Press)—Forty feet below Picadilly, the Queen on a recent Saturday locked with a golden key a steel box in which, if she desires, she can store her private treasures.

There are nine tests which any highly enterprising person would have to pass if he or she tried to even see the box, and if a short-cut were attempted, this would entail the opening of the 20-ton door, which is equipped with keyless combinations and is proof against drills, explosives, oxy-acetlyene and electric-heat. In addition there would be concealed bells, giving direct communication with the police, to circumvent.

Before leaving the vault—which is part of the premises of the London Safe Deposit in Lower Regent Street W, the Queen consented to be filmed. On the same day the King and Queen spent an hour and a half examining the collection of exhibits at the Royal Geographical Society's headquarters in Kensington Gore. Only a handful of people recognized the Royal car as it drew up. The King raised his silk hat in acknowledgement of their greeting. The Queen wore a long coat of black velvet, with a high silver fox fur collar.

On another afternoon, their Majesties unheralded, spent an hour and a half on an informal visit to the "Age of Walnut" loan exhibition of furniture in the house of Sir Philip Sassoon, Parklane, in aid of the Royal Northern Exhibition.

Flivvers come and flivvers go,

But Mary still wants half the road
And wants that down the middle.

Tryon

A miscellaneous shower was tendered Miss Olive Wood in honor of her approaching marriage, at the public hall on Wednesday evening, March 23rd. About fifty friends young and old assembled to extend to the bride-to-be a host of good wishes. Little Miss Adelaide Lord as bride and Master Ray Mabey as groom entered to the strains of the Wedding March. The gifts were carried in by two of the girls in a daintily decorated basket and were unwrapped by Miss Dorothy Woodside and Miss Margaret Rogerson, and the accompanying humorous verses read by Miss Dorothy MacDonald of Mount Tryon. The beautful and useful gifts ncluded china, glassware, linen, etc., which testifies to the popuarity of Miss Wood in the community. Miss Wood in a few well chosen words thanked the assembled friends for their lovely gifts and kind wishes. The remainder of the evening was spent in games. Ice cream and cake were served by the ladies, after which all dispersed to their respective homes, having enjoyed a very pleasant evening.

One of the best stories told is that of the man who asked a friend if he knew how far it is from Dan to Beersheba. The questioned man stared and remarked, "Do you mean to tell me that Dan and Beersheba are places?" "Certainly," was the reply. "Well, well," said the astonished other, "and I thought they were man and wife like Sodom and Gomorrah."
