The D. G. S's Davies and Kingfisher are in port.

W. Ray Wilson, representing A. J. Stewart, Limited, Toronto, was in town yesterday.

On the floor of the Hulseas winter Ion. Daniel Gordon interogated whether he sewer in Kent Street would be re-laid. The Hon. Commissioner of Public Works stated that work would begin as soon as the ground was in proper condition. The summer has passed with autumn and still the work has not begun. It is long wet fall drags its weary existence through the necessity of his work it is experienced. There is yet time to complete this desirable end, and we hope it will be effected.

The Scotch herring fishing steamer, Trinity Three, which has been engaged in catching the Ganso C. B. fishermen the art of properly curing their fish is in port. She is built of iron and is 22 tons registered.

Extensive repairs are being made to the Anglican Church. Special interest attaches to the work because of its being the completion of the life long labors of Trinity Church of the late devoted and veteran lay reader, James Easton, Esq.

Charles Harris for the past eighteen months lay reader of Trinity Church, leaves this week to complete his studies at King's College, Windsor. His departure from the work is much regretted and his speedy return earnestly hoped for. During his absence Rev. Walter Cotton will supply services.

Eastern Funeral Rites. Some curious details have just reached Paris concerning the funeral ceremonies of Norodom, the late king of Cambodia. Immediately after death the body was placed on a bed of state, while cannon boomed to warn the populace to shave their heads. Next day the body was embalmed, according to ancient custom. The face was covered with a gold mask studded with diamonds and other precious stones. On the head was placed the ancient crown, and even the slippers on the feet glistened with rare jewels. Then the body was placed in a kneeling posture and incased in an upright sheath of gold and was sealed up in a massive casket of solid gold. Thus it will remain in the throne room, with honours praying night and day until the completion of the sanctuary in which the body will be cremated. Only after this ceremony will the new king be crowned.—London Globe.

It Certainly Was Odd. The Duke of Roxburgh has in his castle at Kelso a number of fine family portraits.

Some of the rooms at Kelso are thrown open to the public on certain days. The Duke sometimes tells of a remark that he once heard a stranger make while looking through these rooms.

The stranger had halted beneath two paintings that hung side by side. They were portraits of the third Duke and his son, but the father had been painted in his childhood, the son in his old age.

It was this that perplexed the stranger. He studied the portrait a long time. Then he said: "Is it possible that this gentleman was an old man when his father was born?"

A Novel Night Clock. A novel night clock of Professor Hirth of Munich contains an electric lamp which lights up when a button is pressed and which throws an enlarged shadow of the dial upon the ceiling. Though the shadow has the size of a church clock the greatly magnified hands and figures are sharp and distinct.

Their numbers are estimated at from 4,000 to 5,000.

Kitchener Range

Ventilated Oven....

The health of a family depends greatly upon the hygienic nature of the cooking.

The oven in the Kitchener Range is ventilated, and every dish baked in it is entirely free from the effects of pent-up cooking gases.

A perfectly ventilating oven is one of the most important features of a range, and yet it is given very little attention by most makers and none whatever in most of the cheaply-gotten-up ranges now offered to the public.

Sold by all enterprising dealers. Write for booklet!
