If Everything Born Lived

During the mouse plague in South Australia and Victoria in 1916-17 a farmer one night put down poisoned wheat, and in the morning 23,000 of the little pests lay dead round his house, says Tit-Bits. There was still greater slaughter in a certain wheat yard, where no fewer than 70,000 mice were killed in a single afternoon.

Suppose that our rat population on January 1 was 40,000,000—a very moderate estimate—that the sexes were equally divided, and that fifty per cent had no chance of multiplying. This leaves 10,000,000 pairs, and if only five litters of eight rats in each by the end of December (this is well within the bounds of possibility) we shall then have 41,000,000 pairs, or, in all, 82,000,000 rats.

Suppose, again, that a pair of elephants live for the normal term of their existence—a century—that they bring forth and rear only six young, their descendants in 750 years might number nearly 19,000,000.

NEW DICTIONARY OFFER TO READERS OF THIS PAPER

Marvelous Guide to Correct Use of Today's English at Cost of Handling

A new dictionary, exclusively for our readers, is to be distributed by this paper. The book is The New Universities Dictionary. This dictionary, new in vocabulary, new in type, new in aids to the study of English, bound in flexible seal grain, is the handsomest, most convenient and most handsome, most convenient and most thorough work of its kind ever published.

Unique in many respects. The New Universities Dictionary surpasses all works of ready reference in the substantial qualities of its contents. The book was compiled by expert American lexicographers, including Prof. Percy W. Long, Ph.D., Department of English Harvard University; Prof. Forrest S. Lunt, M. A., Instructor in English, Columbia University; Prof. Clark S. Northrup, Ph.D., Department of English, Cornell University; Prof. Morris W. Croll, Ph.D., Department of English, Princeton University; Prof. John C. Rolfe, Ph.D., Department of Latin, University of Pennsylvania. The editor-in-chief is George J. Hagar.

Accurate and authoritative, The New Universities Dictionary, nevertheless, is made simple, direct and plain. It shows for every-day home-use of English. It is a book designed for daily and constant use with great convenience in office and home. Business men will find it a fine help if every stenographer is provided with one, and stenographers who wish to keep abreast of the new words being added by their employers to a business correspondence will find it a valuable guide.

Every protection is furnished so that readers will get the books if they cut the coupons as directed in the advertising. There will be no other outlet for the volumes. They can only be secured with coupons. Only three coupons will be required in this campaign, and they will be readily found in the paper daily. 559-28M41.

hearts of our children an ardent love for the things of heaven, the things which we in our wisdom call unreal, but which are in very truth imperishable—treasures stored up where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through nor steal.

"There is that maketh himself rich yet hath nothing": Hence the pregnant maxim of Thoreau: "A man is rich in proportion to the number of things he can do without." Do without, not do necessarily, but because his mind, in his higher contemplation, naturally transcends them. What does one great teacher say about education?

"The two great mental graces should be taught, Reverence and Compassion; not that these are literally to be taught because they are innate in every well-born human creature, but they have to be developed exactly by the strength of the body must be by deliberate and constant exercise. But to teach reverence rightly is to attach it to the right persons and things; first, by setting over your youth masters whom they cannot but love and respect; next, by gathering for them, out of past history, whatever has been most worthy in human deeds and human passion and lastly, by letting them justly feel, as far as may be the smallness of their own powers and knowledge, as compared with the attainments of others.

We are to have, then, masters whom our youth cannot but love and respect;—from one end of the country to the other, men and women of great moral force and lovable personality, who know more than do those who they undertake to teach;—not merely of book learning but of the great truths of life: men and women who devote their time to study and thought and reflection.

"We are to have reverence;—reverence for God and for our superiors. We are to learn that unless we are all truthful and trustworthy we shall cry in vain for unshuffled government. So our youth must be taught the importance of faith. They must be given a true conception of ambition; must know that only that which will receive the blessing of God is right, all other ambition, no matter how highly honoured of men, being riotary. They must know that true greatness consists in being and not in having.

"We need able schoolmasters. Are we seeking for them? "Reverence and compassion we are to teach primarily, and with these, as the bond and guardian of them, truth of spirit and word of thought and sight. Truth, sought for like a treasure and kept like a crown."

Are we ready to part with some of the things that are of men for the things that are of God? This is the meaning of true success.

I am, Sir, etc., VISITOR.

Soldier Students Acknowledgement

Dear Sir—Among the members of the O. M. F. C. recently repatriated on the S. S. Regina were some fifty officers and other ranks who were attending various British Universities during the period of demobilization. These men arranged a meeting at which the following resolution was unanimously adopted: (a) That this body wish to place on record and acknowledge of their great debt of gratitude to Col. H. M. F. C. to those associated with him who have made it possible for them to secure the opportunity of studying in the great centres of learning in the British Isles; (b) That a letter be written to the leading newspapers in Canada in order to bring to the attention of the people of Canada a work of inestimable value performed by the Education Services, O. M. F. C. We do not intend to outline the work undertaken by the Khaki University Officials for the Canadian soldiers. We have been specially benefited, and wish only to refer to one branch of their endeavors—to the locating of Canadian soldiers in the Universities of the British Isles. Between Jan. 30th and April 15th about three hundred and forty of the personnel of the Canadian army were selected by Khaki University officials to be given leave with pay of rank and allowances until the end of June. The stipulations were: (a) That each applicant must have attended a Canadian University for at least two years; (b) That he must be willing to meet any additional expenses from private resources; (c) That he must maintain a certain standard of efficiency, and carry out a minimum of work. About a hundred and ten attending the University of Edinburgh, over fifty selected Glasgow Medical and Technical Schools, many were in London studying law and Arts, and lesser numbers other leading Universities, such as Oxford, Cambridge, Leeds, and Wales. Few of us are familiar, in any great degree with the difficulties overcome by Col. Tory before these privileges were obtained. He claims that he received the utmost assistance from the British University authorities, we students gladly add our testimony to the courtesy of treatment accorded us. We are much less unanimous in our attitude to a number—fortunately small—of the Unit. Commanders of the Canadian forces who actually hindered men in their endeavors to avail themselves of these opportunities. We do not intend to indict these men, that any officer, however placed should refuse to give any other officers of Man under his control a privilege which means refitting for civil re-establishment, and that in a time when dispersal areas were crowded with men eager to return home, is a reflection, not only on the character, but also on the intelligence of the Officer so placed. To draft an Educational scheme on an Army organization is a very difficult problem, demanding the support of all concerned. Col. Tory's final success to his great ability, his patience, his faith in human nature, and the friendly assistance of that large percentage of Commanding Officers who placed the welfare of their men above persons on a convenience. The results of this step are not only immediately evident, but will be felt for many years to come. It has served to make a pronouncement necessary on the part of the British Universities of their attitude towards Colonial Universities, and all have expressed themselves eager to arrange for exchanges of Graduating students in all parts of the Empire. Canadian troops were the first Colonials to enter the Universities of the Mother Land in any numbers, and almost without exception Professors are loud in their appreciation of the keenness diligence and ability of Canadian students in the classes. This is the best answer to those who would depreciate the endeavors of Col. Tory. Those who were undergraduates have saved a year of study in Canada, but the beneficiaries were not all of this class: They were Professors, who had served years in the Army, and took this opportunity to refresh their minds by contact with the leaders in these Mother Universities; they were lawyers, artists, engineers, employees of the various Provincial and Dominion Governments; a large number were graduates of Canadian Agricultural Colleges, who were given opportunities to visit and inspect the leading Stock and Dairy farms, and to attend the largest fairs in Great Britain. Col. Tory showed skill and fairness in his selection, for they were drawn from a almost every Unit in the Canadian Corps, from every vocation in civil life, and from all ranks from Private to G. S. O. For all these things we must give credit to whom credit is due—to Col. H. M. F. C., President of the University of Alberta, late President of the Khaki University of Canada, and Director of Education O. M. F. C.; Lt. Col. F. Adams, University of McGill, to Major Gill, to Lt. Burt, Professor in the University of Alberta, and to all those associated with them who were endeavoring in their efforts to enable a few of the temporary soldiers of Canada to fit themselves for re-entrance into civil life. Their task was difficult, but we wish to make this tribute to their industry, their courage, and their devotion to the future interests of the Dominion. I am Sir, etc. EARL D. MacPHEE, F. R. C. I.
