Russia Mute On Arms Question

(Canadian Press)

GENEVA, May 26—Russia has refused to give the views requested on questions touching the control of private manufacture of arms. The League hopes to convene a conference in the near future to deal with this subject. Maxim Litvinoff, deputy foreign minister of Soviet Russia, explains that his country did not attend the conference on the control of arms because she believed it was not sincere; for the same reason she will have nothing to do with the move to control private manufacture.

COURTESY ON THE ROAD

At no time of the year is the friendly relation of the Island farmer to the autoist being made when the roads are being driven, and calls for aid are being made by bogged motorists every day. As an example of the courtesy with which most of the country drivers who are reckless enough to trust themselves to the road can be taken the instance of a party of autoists who left the city on Sunday for Cardigan and Montague. They found the roads in excellent condition, with the exception of just one or two places. The first of these was near Vernon River Bridge and was treacherous enough to be a trap for the unwary. But when the disgruntled travellers were just about to give up in despair, Mr. Andrew MacDonald of that place came to their rescue, and with the assistance of several other willing helpers, soon had the early tourists again on the same party met with a like misfortune, this time in a notorious spot known as Finnigan's Hill, which is a big bog for autoists at any time of the year. A second distress call was set out, to be answered this time by Mr. John Ross, the well known miller of Millington. Mr. Ross and his son, with the aid of a sturdy farm horse, lost but little time in dragging the bogged car back on firm hard road. In these cases the rescuers would accept no remuneration for their labors, and other autoists are giving similar instances of this fine spirit of neighborliness and service. Autoists should remember this in the summer season and extend in return every possible courtesy to those farmers who still cling to the horse and buggy.

Swarm Of Bees Led To Archaeological Findings

ANAHEIM, Cal., May 26—Milton McMillan, geologist, saw a swarm of bees entering a small aperture in the wall of a canyon near here. He set off a dynamite charge expecting to uncover a honey cache. Instead he blasted into a tomb containing a well preserved human skeleton and other objects of archaeological interest. The skeleton was found in a clay jug, hermetically sealed were thousands of vegetable seeds. On many of the largest there were hieroglyphics, presumably carved by members of an early race. The skeleton was found lying back in the large cavern, seated upright on a niche in the rock. A footprint in the rock measured fifteen inches in length.

NARROW ESCAPE AT DEPOT

—Mr. James Duffy, a passenger en route from Boston to Charlottetown had a close call from being cut to pieces by the train at the depot yesterday afternoon. While the cars were being shunted Mr. Duffy stepped off but in such a way that he was thrown heavily to the ground. Fortunately instead of rolling under the wheels, Mr. Duffy took a turn away from the train and thus escaped being killed. He was immediately picked up by bystanders and while he was being attended to the fall, yet it was found that he was not seriously injured. Mr. Duffy was able to proceed on his journey little worse for his unpleasant experience.—Moncton Times.

THE LATEST FROM UIGG

You may be surprised to know that Uigg is still on the map. Some of the farmers are worrying about the late cold spring, although the same grain is already in the ground and farming appears to be the order of the day. The women have a fever for house cleaning, paper hanging and painting. The yards are also being attended to and special mention may be made of the yard of the Uigg High School which received a thorough cleaning under the capable supervision of the school teachers, Misses Hugh and MacKinnon. It might truthfully be said that Uigg High School yard never was in such good shape. We are sorry to note that Mrs. J. A. MacKinnon is still confined to her room under the care of one of Uigg's trained nurses Miss Florence MacKinnon. We look forward to her speedy recovery.—Mr. R. A. MacLeod the Fertilizer King kept on the jump this week delivering several cars of fertilizer to the farmers of Uigg and surrounding country.—Com.

SEALED AND DOG-FISH

—Assuming that one seal will destroy or devour 400 fish a year, consisting of herring, cod, mackerel and other kinds of fish all valuable for food and assuming too that there are 100,000 seals in the waters surrounding our shores, we have here a total of 40,000,000 commercial fish destroyed yearly by this rapacious robber. Putting the value of the fish so consumed or destroyed at one cent each we have a total of $400,000,000 a conservative estimate. Take the Dogfish, it too is a marauder of parts and a good preserver, active in his calling, diligent in the pursuit of his prey, gregarious as a hunter and industrious to a degree in securing a full larder, and he means to survive and conquer and subdue at all hazards. All this he means to do by organized opposition to the well directed efforts of those spoilers of the sea. Gifted writers in times past have frequently told of the havoc wrought by them but nothing on our coasts has been done to take preventive measures and so the slaughter goes on without restraint. Elsewhere, particularly in British Columbia, people have taken up the problem, seriously and factories have been built for the purpose of turning to commercial account these predatory rovers. My purpose in this article is to draw attention to the subject that will not immediately go to sleep again. Much ink may be used in the discussion of subjects of even less importance than the one I have submitted and many reams of good white paper, all of which time in that land the sun never sets, the North Pole ought now to be a favorite summer resort. Coolness and at the same time bright sunlight make indeed a rare and delightful combination.

FORGET NOT THE COMMON FOE OF THE MARITIMES—SEALS AND DOG-FISH

—A scrap of Roman History may be inserted. Cato's constant boy was born in Stafford Springs, Conn., where he had brought his wife and infant son to live. Later the boy was sent back to a private school in Canada, when he was 10 years old, his mother remaining in Stafford Springs, where she married again. Last June the boy came down from Canada with a group of his school mates to visit his mother. It was decided that he would return to the Canadian school and he had barely settled down to the routine of life here when Canada checking up his whereabouts and his mother learned that he would have to go back to Canada again. She could have returned to Canada with him but circumstances prevented that step. Investigation by the State's officers revealed that though the boy was Canadian born, his father's death had resulted in his mother regaining her United States citizenship rights, lost when she married a Canadian, and the mother having regained her citizenship, the son in his turn became a citizen and the little family's troubles were over.

Unique Case Where Death Made Boy Citizen of U. S.

Demise of Father of Fernand St. Pierre Automatically Returns Rights of American Mother, is Decision of U. S. Immigration Officials.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., May 25.—Birth here is usually all that is required for a boy to become a citizen of the United States but in a case that was brought to the attention of the State Immigration officials here death played the major part in a drama that permitted the entrance of a 12 year old lad to this country.

The conventional happy ending came only after a series of adventures in which Canadian and United States Immigration officials were involved, however, and at one time, it seemed as if the boy and his mother were destined to be separated indefinitely by immigration restrictions.

The boy, Fernand St. Pierre, was born in Montreal, Can., just about 12 years ago. His mother, Mrs. Lucinda St. Pierre, was born in Baltimore, Md., but lost her citizenship when she married her Canadian husband in Montreal in 1911. Her husband died soon after the boy was born, in Stafford Springs, Conn., where he had brought his wife and infant son to live. Later the boy was sent back to a private school in Canada, when he was 10 years old, his mother remaining in Stafford Springs, where she married again.

Volcano Causes Terrific Losses

(Canadian Press)

TOKIO, May 26—Mount Tokachi, the long slumbering volcano in the island Hokkaido, which erupted Monday with disastrous results, both in lives lost and material damage done, was quiet today. There were only voluminous clouds of smoke issuing from sulphurous crater. The lava has ceased flowing. Warned by preliminary rumblings, the people on the mountainside escaped before the eruption and the deluge from the Mountain Lake down the side of the volcano. Although the flood rushed down at furious speed onto the village of Bill, an embankment near the entrance of the village checked the force of the water, thus enabling most of the inhabitants to escape. At Kamituran, it is reported that some two hundred villagers were washed away. Fear is expressed that Matsuyama Spa is a total loss. Many bodies floated down the Purano River, which overflowed its banks, rescue work is being badly hampered by the condition of the countryside due to the flood. Lava covers the

Tin Mine Reopened After Quarter Century Shut Down

CORONA, Cal., May 26.—The only tin mine in this part of the world has been reopened after nearly twenty-five years inactivity. It is the Tomosa mine, closed by its English owner, in 1892 owing to low metal quotations in New York. The ore was discovered in 1850. The property passed to a London company in 1890. Sir Henry Takfour and Sir John Stokes were among the owners. A recently organized American company has resumed operations.

The Care of Her Baby Weighs on the Energies of the Mother

Hamilton, Ont.—"After one of my children came, my health was very poor. My nerves were so bad I could not sleep—would walk the floor nearly all night long. I was so weak I could not do my work. I suffered from back-aches and pains in my side. I was just a physical and nervous wreck, but after I took a few bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription my nerves were completely restored, I grew strong and well and was able to do my housework. I never had any more trouble—was just fine."—Mrs. Wilfred Bendell, 123 Bay St., North.
